NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproachable absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to "THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose grand Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 15x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longing home of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be sold obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agricultural men, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, the Journal is intended to possess exceptional merit as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Production and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—What to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration, every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most eminent artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
BRILLIANT OIL-COLOR PICTURES
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,
FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR
TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.
Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.
AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately; often renews the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair re-grows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.
As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons, skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing the slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried to detect the shipping of slate or any other of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned, it will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.
MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by inexperienced tuners to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be beautifully, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.
As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

The American Gentleman of Leisure.

[Dr. Holland in Scribner's Monthly.]

Did the reader ever see a lost dog in a great city? Not a dog recently lost, full of wild anxiety and restless pain and bewilderment, but one who had given up the search for a master in despair, and had become consciously a vagabond. If so, he has seen an animal that has lost his self-respect, travelling in the gutters, slinking along by fences, making acquaintance with dirty boys, becoming a thorough coward, and losing every admirable characteristic of a dog. A cat is a cat even in vagabondage; but a dog that does not belong to somebody is as hopeless a specimen of demoralization as can be found in the superior race among which he has sought in vain for his master. We know him at first sight, and he knows that we know him. The loss of his place in the world, and the loss of his objects of loyalty, personal and official, have taken the significance out of his life and the spirit out of him. He has become a dog of leisure.

We do not know how it may be in trans-Atlantic countries. It is quite possible that in Constantinople, where dogs are plenty and masters comparatively scarce, the canine vagabonds keep each other in countenance. There is a sort of self-respect among human thieves, if only enough of them get together. Where beggars are plenty there are sometimes generated a sort of professional ambition and a semblance, at least, of professional pride and honor. Liquor-dealers form a society, publish a newspaper, call themselves "Wine Merchants," and make themselves believe that they are respectable. Stock gamblers in Wall street, by sheer force of numbers in combination, make a business semi-respectable which never added a dollar of wealth to the country and never will, and which constantly places the business interest of the country in jeopardy. So it is possible that in Constantinople lost dogs maintain their self-respect by community of feeling and a consciousness that they are neither exceptional nor eccentric. A dog's sense of vagabondage would seem, therefore, to depend much upon his atmosphere and circumstances. In New York he loses himself with his home; in Constantinople he joins a community.

The American man of leisure is a sort of lost dog. The people are so busy, they have so long associated personal importance with action and usefulness, that it is all a man's life is worth to drop out of active employment. If a Vanderbilt should quietly release his hold of the vast railroad interest now in his hands, and should never more show his face in Wall street, he would practically shrink to a nonentity. If a Stewart should retire to enjoy his piled-up millions in the quiet repose of his palace he would cease to be an object of interest to anybody. It is undeniably true that there is nobody in America who has so hard a time as the man of leisure. The man who has nothing to do, and nobody to help him do nothing, may properly be counted among the unfortunate classes, without regard to the amount of wealth he possesses.

This is doubtless the reason why so many who retire from a life of profitable labor come back, after a few months or years, to their old haunts and old pursuits. They see that the moment they count themselves out of active life they are counted by their old acquaintances out of the world. They become mere loafers and hangers-on, and a certain sense of vagabondage depresses them. The climate is stimulating, time hangs heavy on their hands, business is exciting, business associations are congenial and attractive; and so they go back to their industries, never to leave them till sickness or death or old age removes them from the theatre of their efforts.

In Europe we know that the case is widely different. The number of men who live upon their estates—either won by trade or inherited from rich ancestors—is very large, while those who have small, fixed incomes, which they never undertake to increase, is larger still. The Englishman of leisure who cannot live at home on his income goes to the Continent, and seeks a place where his limited number of pounds per annum will give him genteel lodgings, with a life of idle leisure. In such a place he finds others in plenty who are as idle as he, and who have come there for the same reason that brings him. He finds it quite respectable to do nothing, and knows that his command of the means that give him leisure is the subject of envy on the part of the inhabitants. He eats, sleeps, reads, visits, writes letters, and kills time without any loss of self-respect, and without feeling the slightest attraction for busier life. Indeed, the tradesmen who are active around him are looked down upon as social inferiors, on account of the fact that they are under the necessity of work. Work is not a genteel thing to do, unless it be done in an office or profession. Shop-keeping and labor of the hands are accounted vulgar.

It seems impossible to conclude that the man of leisure can ever hold a desirable position where labor holds its legitimate position. We wish the American could have more leisure than he has. It would, in many respects, be well for society that men who have property enough, and ten times more than enough, should retire from active life to make place for others rather than go on accumulating gigantic fortunes which become curses to their owners and the community. After all, if idleness can only be made respectable and desirable, by making labor vulgar, we trust that the American gentleman of leisure will be as rare in the future as he has been in the past.

We are glad, on the whole, that every American deems it essential to belong to somebody, to belong to something, to sustain some active relation to some industry, or enterprise, or charity, to be counted in at some point among the useful forces of society. He is the better and the happier for it, and he helps to sustain the honor and self-respect of all those with whom labor is a constant necessity.

Editorial Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 11.

The balmy weather of a few days past is succeeded by a chilly northerly wind. The grass in the Capitol grounds is green and growing, and the winter is as enjoyable as a New England September. It is the province of loiterers in these dominions to take long journeys to the White House or the Capitol, interview the President or listen to the debates of Congressmen. To get news of Washington occurrences, one is obliged to consult the columns of the New York papers. Washington papers are excellently edited and dish up society news with gusto. The average Washingtonian arises before nine A. M., eats four meals per diem and retires at midnight. Time never hangs heavily. When there is not enough to engage one's attention fifteen hours in the day, Congress must have adjourned.

The improvements in the city are wonderful. Streets have been dug down and basements turned into ground floors. The Patent office is rescued as if from a slough and looks more lofty because the streets have fallen away from it. One thing Washington needs, and that sadly. The White House is not a residence to boast of. The front door is hardly as elegant as the entrance to a first-class stable in New York. Foreign embassadors must draw sad conclusions of the nation's poverty from an outside glimpse.

The improvements made by the territorial government are so marked that it is not to be wondered at that a debt of fourteen millions of dollars has been incurred. Sergeant-at Arms N. G. Ordway, of the U. S. House of Representatives, long ago predicted that which has come to pass. The Washington Ring feathers its nest and fights its enemies. Mr. Ordway's goose was supposed to be in fair cooking order several months ago. The most powerful plans for his defeat were laid and the situation was critical, or would have been deemed so by a man possessed of less individuality than the Sergeant-at-Arms. The old members of the House had kindly remembrances of the favors he had bestowed in previous terms. For five successive times had he been chosen, but his hold upon the members' friendship was unshaken when the panic brought its disastrous results to the Cookes and other financial bricks. Then it was remembered that he had prophesied matters that had now come to pass in Washington—and a large majority of the republican members refused to put another man in his place. To-day, Mr. Ordway triumphs as completely as in the times of long ago, when those who are just now discomfited by his re-election endeavored to induce him to act in concert with them in the endeavor to crush out the colored element which casts more than two-thirds of the votes here in the republican ranks. Hon. Edward McPherson, the able Clerk of the House, also remains in his old position, which he honors.

Speaker Blaine is the most prominently talked of candidate for the next Presidency. He presides with dignity over the House and the tap of his gavel quickly brings quiet out of tumult. It was thought he could not arrange the committees without injuring his chances. Per contra, his selections have strengthened him. The Star tells a good anecdote of yesterday's debate in the House. The bill for the repeal of the salary act affords ample opportunity for buncombe speeches. Sunset Cox opened the debate with a personal explanation in which he stated that he was as pure as the "dew-drop on a rose." Of course the House came down. To-day, Cox is known in the House as "the dew-drop of New York." In order to get an opportunity to speak, he sent to the Speaker a note, as follows: "Dear Mr. Speaker: Put me down for twenty minutes. S. S. C."

To which the Speaker replied: "Dear Cox: I would be delighted if I could keep you down half that time. J. G. B."

Alexander H. Stephens, the Ex-Vice President of the defunct confederacy, is stopping at the National House. For some reason he is allowed to sit with his hat on while the House is in session. "Olivia," the sprightly correspondent of the Philadelphia Press says, of him: "Wonderful man! It may be said that he once had a body, but it has been pared down until it is transparent; you feel that God is very good to give you almost a chance to see a naked soul." The press members here leave no opportunity for showing their keenness. Donn Piatt, editor of the Capital, styles Rev. Dr. Newman: "God's chief stump orator." In view of the temptation to write something readable in which all correspondents here vie with each other, it is not at all singular that "Olivia's" ideas should run in a similar vein with those of Donn Piatt and that Townsend who adorns his name with the prefix "George Alfred."

The Dover post-office question is very near a settlement. The Congressional delegation left the matter wholly to the charge of Congressman Small, who recommended Mr. Joshua Varney. Postmaster Colbath, with editor Varney of the Enquirer, carried the case to Postmaster General Creswell and from thence to the President. Probably ere this reaches Portsmouth, President Grant will have decided the case.

Readables.

The steamship Virginius was towed out of the harbor of Havana at half-past four o'clock, Thursday, by a tug boat. She was escorted by the Spanish man-of-war Isabella la Catolica. The tug boat returned to the city at seven o'clock. The destination of the Virginius is supposed to be Key West.

The House Committee on Post Offices have agreed to report a bill allowing all public documents to pass through the mails free. The bill also provides for the free exchange of newspapers, and that all papers shall go through the mails free in the county wherein published.

The officers of the Internal Revenue Bureau will combat the concerted attempt now being made by druggists of the country to secure the repeal of what is known as schedule C, embracing the tax on medicinal preparations. The Revenue officers have collected some rather startling facts about some of these taxed preparations.

Donaldson, the Graphic balloonist, now keeps the wolf from the door by playing in a pantomine at Reading, Pa.

The pork-packing business in Chicago is greater this year than ever before, and the Chicagoans boast that they now associate with more hogs than the people of any other town on the planet. Already have 930,000 swine entered the gates of the city since the 1st of September. Chicago's herds of swine are recruited from nearly all the Western States, and the pork goes not only to all parts of the East, but to Mexico, South America and Europe.

A bill providing for general amnesty and the abolishing the iron-clad test oath was introduced in the House on Monday by Horace Maynard, who devised the test oath in 1862, and was hurriedly passed, although the House subsequently refused to pass the Civil Rights bill, and after some fillibustering referred it to a committee. When the amnesty bill reaches the Senate Mr. Sumner will move Civil Rights bill as an amendment, and will do all in his power to postpone the pardoning of rebels until the colored men are guaranteed their rights.

British cruisers engaged in the Pacific watching for the alleged exportations of laborers from the island are making some important discoveries. At New Hanover, Capt. Simpson, of her Majesty's ship Blanche, found men and women very much in a state of nature. He thinks they had never before been visited by white men. They were ignorant of the use of tobacco, and any old pieces of paper were taken by them in preference to the usual trade articles. Both men and women came alongside in great numbers, and showed no fear. They had little or nothing for barter except spears. They appeared good humored, but are arrant thieves. A party of officers landed, and except that their pockets were picked, were in no way molested.

State News.

J. G. L. Smith, a Pittsfield blacksmith, pulled off the shoes, pared the feet, and set new shoes on 33 horses, in ten hours.

The smart old gentleman in Rollinsford, who in all the 84 years of his life has never ridden in a rail car, has also never taken a cent's worth of medicine during that time. And he wishes to explain that he does not consider himself an old man by any means.

An order for ten more locomotives has been received at Blood's Locomotive Works, Manchester. A cargo of over 600 tons of pig-iron has lately been purchased and received at the Works, which is the largest quantity ever on hand at any time since the war, and as other material has been purchased in suitable proportion, we should judge that the panic would not be noticed very particularly in that shop.

The janitor of Nashua's steam fire engine house has a contrivance by which he can light the fires in the engines at the same time without coming down from his room in the second story.

Sandwich and Bristol have organized prohibition clubs.

The Nashua Gazette says: "From general inquiry among business men we learn that business in this city has taken an upward start, and that in all probability the worst part of the panic has been passed."

The colored jubilee singers of this city are to give a concert in Trefethen's Hall, Kittery, next Thursday evening, for the benefit of Mount Olivet Church.

The debt of Rockingham county, a year ago last May, was $141,050. During the year ending in May it was reduced $24,609. This gives an encouraging and hopeful view of it. This, continued a few years, will bring it so low that all will rejoice.

The latest statistics of the State normal school at Plymouth are in the report made to the legislature in June. For the year there had been in the normal department 170 different pupils. In the model school 127. Total 297.

Mr. Abednego Robinson of Stratham has received the $100 premium offered by Bliss & Sons of New York, for the largest yield of the "Compton's Surprise" potato, from one pound of seed. The yield was 511 1-2 pounds.

Heavy Freighting.

A Portland dispatch says: "More cars left Gorham for Portland, on Tuesday, via the Grand Trunk, than at any time in the history of the road. There are a number of freight cars along the line waiting a chance to come in, and 840 car-loads here waiting shipment. The largest Allan steamer takes 130 car-loads, while the smallest, like the North American, carry only 90 car-loads. There are 1250 car-loads now on the way to Portland this side of Montreal. The Montreal merchants complain that undue favor is shown to American freight."

—Young lady, Tuesday night at the post-office: "If I don't get a letter by this mail I want to know what he was doing Sunday, that's all."

Newspaper Blunders.

A correspondent of Zion's Herald speaks of a religious interest in Lexington, N. H. There is no Lexington township in this State.

A correspondent of the Boston Journal gives some items in the educational history of New Hampshire, and says Prof. R. S. Rust was appointed State school commissioner in 1847, but for some cause he served only one year, and for the two subsequent years the duties of the office were suspended. The duties were not suspended. Prof. Rust was re-appointed and acted in 1848-49. In 1850 he was appointed again, but before the session of the legislature closed, the office was abolished and a commissioner for each county appointed. The writer in the Journal states that Prof. Rust had not the executive ability of his predecessor, Prof. Haddock. That might have been so, and we know that his lectures on education to the citizens were not considered so interesting. The writer states also that the county commissioners were paid by a per-centage of the school money. We never heard of that before. Teacher's Institutes were, when first established, if the towns so voted. Afterwards if they did not so vote.

One who writes in the Haverhill (Mass.) Bulletin gives some account of the "Devil's Den" in Chester, which is a natural opening in the side of a hill. There is no such place in Chester. It is in Auburn, a town disannexed from Chester in 1845.

A writer in the Concord Monitor, in speaking of Rev. E. C. Coggswell of Northwood, says he has had charge there the larger part of the time for over thirty years. All acquainted must speak in high terms of Mr. C. as ever busy and a hard worker as a minister, teacher and agriculturist. But we by ciphering do not make out that "larger part" of the time. He settled there thirty-one years ago, and is now in his second pastorate there. In the interim he was pastor in Newmarket and New Boston. First pastorate in Northwood, six years; present one eight; total, 14. J. F.

The South.

[Providence Journal.]

We doubt if one well-informed man in ten thousand, in the north, has the slightest conception of the state of labor in the south. That which we all know is, that until this section of the country is reorganized so that its resources shall yield something near the product, not only in raw material, but in mental culture and social advantages, which they intrinsically might, the whole country is so far starved, retarded and kept in a dangerous condition. The north wishes the prosperity of the south, not more from philanthropic than selfish or business motives. It ought to be one of the richest sections of the country, and it should and might afford an example of prosperity coupled with general comfort, equal to any other portion of the globe. It is astounding, even in view of the entire revolution which has taken place there in the status of the negro, and in the destruction of property in consequence of the war, to find southern authority for the fact that the larger half of the population of South Carolina live to-day in huts and hovels so poor that their total destruction from one end of the State to the other would not diminish the taxable value of the State one-tenth of one per cent. And this, too, eight years after the war, and while it is agreed that an ample supply of faithful and steady laborers could be readily obtained by any man who would undertake to farm in South Carolina on righteous principles, giving the negroes such food and shelter as the dictates of an enlightened self-interest and a humane spirit may prompt, and that this supply could be obtained at the most reasonable rates.

Conceding all the difficulties which have thus far hedged this matter, it would certainly seem to be time for the people of the south to take the matter in hand once for all, and seek to do that which would not only prove remunerative but start that progression in the south which must come sooner or later, and which is so essential to it and the nation at large. It may be assumed that the negroes are to be, for the present, the laborers of the south; for reasons, many and conclusive, there will not be, for years, any important emigration to that section. Now good, comfortable houses are cheaply constructed in a country where timber is plenty and comparatively unsaleable. There can be no large advance in civilization, so long as the laborer is housed meanly; as witness the condition of the English farm laborer. Give the negro a good, decent house, fair wages, either on shares or otherwise; encourage education; stimulate industry and prudence. These are the means, and it would seem, for the present, the only means of lifting the south from its present anomalous and disheartening condition.

Of course there are many things to be learned and unlearned, both by the whites and the blacks, and we are very far from forgetting that it is much easier to preach than to practice; but, after all, we come back to the fact that the South needs money, and needs peace. How is she to obtain them? Is there any quicker or better method than to make the most of her men? It is the concurrent testimony of all who have impartially examined the subject, that, on the whole, the negroes of the South are willing to work when they have confidence that they will receive a fair consideration for their labor; they are naturally inconsiderate and given to spending their money, even before it is earned, if they can; but so were the old planters. If they were trained by example, as they should be, and a varied agriculture was gradually introduced, the South would soon be independent, rich, a source of strength to the Union instead of one, as now, of weakness. In this case, as we believe in all others, humanity and interest join hands. The Southern people do not always take advice kindly, but in the end they will see that such as we have given is as wise as it is honest.

—"Much aberration of mind" induced a Cincinnati man to commit suicide, according to the coroner's jury.

Nature of Our Cuban Commerce.

The latest monthly report of the Bureau of Statistics gives the aggregate exports of the ten principal ports of the island of Cuba, from January 1st to July 31st, 1873. There is a total of 980,064 boxes of sugar, 569,876 hogsheads, 538,451 tons; of this amount the United States imported of boxes, 302,103; hogsheads, 489,572; a total of 278,710 tons. Our per cent. of the whole exports was 68.80; Great Britain, 19.84; Northern Europe, 1.12; Southern, 6.42; France, 2.22; other parts, 0.60. Of molasses, the total was 165,381, or 224,741 hogsheads. The United States imported 93.70 of the total. The total tons of sugar and molasses for the period named in 1873 was 704,032 tons; in 1872, it was 682,636; an increase of 21,396 tons. The percentages are for the United States, 75.75; for Great Britain, 15.66; France, 1.86; southern Europe, 4.93; Northern, 0.86; other parts, 1.72. It will thus be seen how large a proportion of Cuban slave-holding prosperity is maintained by the United States. Some are asking how much this great interest has to do with home opposition to any settlement of the Cuban difficulties through our action. American interests in Cuba, are said by Cubans, either directly or by mortgage, to have a considerable stake in the maintenance of slavery.

Bishop Armitage.

[Cor. Providence Journal.]

Once more has our church been called to put on garments of mourning for another bishop taken us. Scarcely has the peal of the funeral bell for Bishop Randall died away, than it sends forth its mournful notes over the Bishop of Wisconsin. In the little more than two years that have elapsed since our last general convention, six members have been taken from the House of Bishops—Davis of South Carolina, Upfold of Indiana, Eastburn of Massachusetts, McIlvaine of Ohio, Randall of Colorado, and Armitage of Wisconsin. What a break in two years!

William Edmond Armitage was consecrated Assistant Bishop of Wisconsin on the 6th of December, 1866, just seven years and one day before his death. By the death of Jackson Kemper, Bishop of Wisconsin, on the 24th of May, 1870, the Assistant Bishop became the Bishop of the Diocese. In the seven years in which he bore the mitre he made for himself a name that will not soon die out. He was a thorough worker, an excellent preacher, a sound theologian, a rubrical and canonical churchman, a man of great executive ability; in short, a bishop that "needeth not to be ashamed." In the very prime and vigor of his days, he has been cut down while apparently he had years of usefulness opening before him. The afflicted Diocese of Wisconsin has the sympathies of the church throughout our land, for twice in little over three years has she been called to lose her Bishop. A. E.

The Cook-room of the Body.

The food that has been cooked in the kitchen must be recooked in the stomach before it can be applied to the nourishment of the body. As a means of facilitating this second cooking, in cases where the process is slowly and imperfectly performed, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is invaluable. It promotes the generation of heat in the living laboratory in which the crude materials for building up and recruiting the human frame are turned into convertible aliment. But this is not all. It acts beneficially upon the cellular membrane which secrete the gastric juice, upon the liver, which produces that natural laxative, the bile, upon the mucous which receive the digested food, and upon the absorbents which connect the digestive organs with the channels of circulation. If any portion of this complex machinery is out of order the Bitters will set it right, thus promoting vigorous digestion, healthy secretion, and the production of pure, rich, life-sustaining blood.

Kittery Point.

The ordination and installation of Mr. George W. Christie, (a native of Scotland and recent graduate of Andover,) as pastor of the first Congregational Church in Kittery, took place at the church at Kittery Point on Thursday evening. The neat little church was elaborately and very tastefully decorated with evergreen, mottoes and emblems, and the services were interesting and well attended. The order of exercises was as follows: Anthem; Invocation by Rev. T. W. Towne, of Kittery; Reading of Scriptures by Rev. David Sewill, of York; Sermon by Prof. E. C. Smyth, D. D., of Andover Seminary; Ordaining and Installing Prayer by Rev. S. Thurston, D. D., of Searsport, Me.; Charge to the Pastor by Rev. E. Robie of Greenland; Right Hand of Fellowship by Rev. D. F. Chandler of Hampton; Address to the People by Rev. Carlos Martyn of Portsmouth; Concluding Prayer by Rev. F. Davis of Newington; Benediction by the Pastor.

The Late Accident.

At last accounts there have been no fatal results from the railroad accident at Conway Junction, Thursday afternoon. Both Mrs. McIntire and Miss Shaw, however, are yet in a critical condition, though their physician expresses hopes that their lives may be saved. It was found necessary to amputate the right arm of Mrs. McIntire, and that operation was performed as soon as her condition would warrant it. Miss Shaw, on Friday, remained in a semi-conscious state, able to recognize friends, but evidently suffering extremely.

The accident will have a tendency to awaken the public mind to the necessity of compelling railroads to provide gates and gate-keepers at all road-crossings. Our State legislatures should adopt measures to this effect, or adopt the alternative of requiring railways to pass under or over the common road.

F. W. M. to J. D. L.

I am glad, Messrs. Editors, to hear from my old friend Lyman, of Exeter, through your columns; and to find that he is so sound on the N. H. monument question, after all. If I said anything derogatory to him, I take it all back—only he needs just one more correction yet. Probably in my hurried stating of his first article, I misunderstood him somewhat, as to the "aristocratic" settlers; but never mind that now, since he goes in for the Odiorne's Point monument to Gorges, Mason and the rest of the worthy pioneers. But I am not ready to agree with him that the first New Hampshire church or meeting house was built at Dover Neck. On the contrary, while I have long believed that the first religious services were held in Mason Hall or some of the buildings at Odiorne's Point, I think Rev. Mr. DeNormandie has shown conclusive reason for his faith, in his recent historical discourses, and also has clearly proved that a chapel was built in Portsmouth in 1638 or '39, and that this was the first "church" in the colony.

Yours for the truth, F. W. M.

The aldermen have concurred in the action of the council, raising the pay of the assistant marshals from $600 to $730 per annum.

A lifelike portrait of ex-Gov. Goodwin is on exhibition at the studio of E. T. Billings, in Studio Building, Boston, who painted the same.

Rev. D. B. Sewall has received a call from the First Church in York. Rev. B. W. Pond, the late pastor, has accepted a place in the patent office at Washington.

Mr. B. F. Dame, formerly of this city, and now of Manchester, recently received an invitation to become principal of the Centre Grammar School in Maldon, Mass., at a salary of $1,800 a year, which he declined.

We are getting some light on the water question. The committee appointed by the board of aldermen report that the directors of the Aqueduct Company offer to dispose of the property and franchises of the corporation to the city for $100,000, the city also to assume a debt of $13,000. The committee think the property can be obtained for a less sum. The board went into committee of the whole on the subject, and finally authorized the committee to offer the Aqueduct Company $60,000 for its property and franchises.

Prohibition State Convention.

[Concord Monitor, 11th.]

The gentlemen who represent, and largely compose, the prohibition party of New Hampshire, met in this city, yesterday, and placed in nomination a candidate for Governor, and a candidate for Railroad Commissioner. A platform was also constructed. These preliminaries having been observed in regular order, it may be assumed that the prohibition party is fairly in the field for the campaign, and is fairly open to criticism.

The gentlemen put in nomination are tolerably well known, and all that the occasion requires we should say of them is, that they are fair representatives of their party, and as well qualified, perhaps, for the offices to which they are nominated as are the majority of their fellow citizens.

The principal objection to the platform is that it is the work of factionists. Much of it, if embodied in a Republican platform, would have force and consistency. Other portions are in every way objectionable, as evidencing a zeal which outruns discretion—a zeal which would sacrifice to an impracticable theory all that has been gained for a good cause. To a level-headed republican prohibitionist this is not the only objection. There are others. Aside from the indecent haste to forestall action by the republican party, it is objectionable because of the intolerant disposition which it displays, and which was a characteristic of the convention. No chance for difference of opinion was permitted. No deference to public opinion is to be tolerated. You must go it blind. Now this arbitrary way of dealing with a wrong, is not the best way. Men are much more easily led than driven. Moreover, it has been established—the fact stands out upon every page of our history—that a law to secure thorough enforcement, particularly if it is enacted with a view to the regulation of the morals of the people, must have the preponderant sentiment of the community in its favor. How is this to be secured? By arbitrary mandate? By continual appeals to force? By reliance on legal suasion wholly? Or by argument and appeals to man's better nature? by calling in aid of the reform all appliances, moral and intellectual, calculated to obliterate the slavery of appetite?

Of course, the leaders in this movement have a right to urge temperance men to endorse their action, but we apprehend they will have some difficulty in convincing most well-intentioned persons that their conduct is disinterested and with a purpose single to the promotion of temperance and morality. The resolution, indeed, which urges "friends of prohibition to avoid any alliance or coalition with either of the old political parties," suggests the tale of the fox and the dog.

But while the resolutions are susceptible of inferences uncomplimentary to the framers thereof, the temper of the convention was even more unsatisfactory. The speeches were all more or less denunciatory; and some of them, particularly that of Rev. Mr. Russell, disgracefully so. A minister of the gospel, when he goes into a public convention, is under obligation to keep truth on his side, and also to display a courteous demeanor; but Mr. Russell paid not the slightest attention to either truth or courtesy. He mouthed like a demagogue, and dealt out assertions against the republican party, which, to put it mildly, were utterly incapable of substantiation. Such a man must injure any cause he undertakes to champion. He is capable of doing—and, no doubt, is doing—more injury to the cause of temperance than any half dozen open advocates of free-rum. It is within the power of a glib talker to injure the best cause ever proclaimed by an intemperate advocacy thereof, and this is what the Rev. Mr. Russell is doing in this State. Even the "prohibition" party deserves a better advocate.

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. INK! INK! INK!

TO ALL THAT USE THE PEN!

WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK

is claimed to be far superior to any Ink ever manufactured, for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it grow thick in the bottle, as it contains no sugar or gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy a clear impression, and months after a letter is written with it, it will not blot or blur, smear or rub off. This Ink is noted for its pen-preserving qualities. It needs no pen-wiper. It cleans the pen by enameling it with a thin bronze coating. Freezing does not injure this Ink. It flows quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any Ink in the market. This Ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, and those who have tried it say they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN

HAIR RENEWER!

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and by its use, in one week, the scalp will be healthy and clean.

By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from grey or any other undesirable shade to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and efficiently produces a permanent color, which will neither rub nor wash off.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choklings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confounded; was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MYRON E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, choking and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

An Unimpeachable Witness.
[St. Louis Republican.]

Solomon was called upon to decide some knotty cases of law and equity in his time, and the records of his court are esteemed pretty good authority. Among other cases he decided was one about the ownership of a child which was claimed by two motherly women. A suit something like this lately came before a Cincinnati justice, and was decided on similar principles. A railroad man had an educated mocking bird in his office. The bird could do a great many tricks with his voice, and among imitative utterances he could mimic a locomotive whistle, and turn himself into a full-fledged calliope upon provocation. He was a little lame in his left leg and among some peculiarities of plumage he had one extra long feather in his tail.

The bird disappeared one day. The owner in a day or two visited the shop of a bird man to look around among the tuneful prisoners. One fellow appeared to know him, but the man had no recollection of the feathered acquaintance. He looked at him closely, and the bird seemed to say by the twinkling of his eye and the set of his head, "Don't you know me?" This bird appeared to be lame in his right leg, and had no particularly long tail feather. As the railroad man was turning away the bird got up steam and gave the shrill whistle of a locomotive, and danced round like a conductor threading the aisle of a car. There could be no doubt about it, but how changed. The railroad man asked the merchant where he got that bird? He had bought him, of course, but he could not tell from whom. The owner claimed his bird, but the merchant did not recognize his claim, so the case was taken to court, and the bird too. The bird man and five of his friends all swore like parrots that the bird had just come up from the South; and could not therefore be claimant's bird. The rail man's witness, even, could not recognize the bird in court as their old acquaintance, with a lame left leg and a long tail-feather. The owner was confident, however, and told the judge that if the bird would only speak he could settle the matter.

Then the bird, as if it knew the case was going against him, did speak, and the judge told the man to take his bird. It was found that his feathers had been pulled and cut, and stained, and that a toe-nail on his right foot had been twisted and pinched off, so as to make it lower than the other one. But the mocking bird was believed in court before the oaths of half a dozen men. This case of evidence will never be found in any of the law books.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined, as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up the Nervous and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out and healing diseases, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Vitality, Impotency, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to "THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practitioners, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Production and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $3.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the agent of the Club; TEN COPIES, $25, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

CONSUMPTION!!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!

At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.

But immeasurably more valuble is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to be owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

Ordinance No. 41.

Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. The time herein allowed for the performance of the work to be computed from sunrise the succeeding morning whenever the fall of snow shall have ceased in the night time.

SEC. 2. Any person disregarding or offending against the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each and every offence, with costs of prosecution; and it shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner, under the counsel and direction of the Mayor, to cause this ordinance to be enforced.

Passed Dec. 21, 1854.

Ordinance No. 65,

In Amendment of Ordinance No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

Passed Jan. 16, 1860. n25-1m

INK! INK! INK!

TO ALL THAT USE THE PEN!

WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK

is claimed to be far superior to any Ink ever manufacture; for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it grow thick in the bottle, as it contains no sugar or gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy a clear impression three months after a letter is written with it. It will not blot or blur, smut or run off. This Ink is noted for its penpreserving qualities. It needs no pen-wiper. It cleans the pen by enameling it with a thin bronze coating. Freezing does not injure this Ink. It dries quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any Ink in the market. This Ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, and those who have tried it say they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market Street. I should be happy to show the musical public that with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out-of-town will be met to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders. D. H. MONTGOMERY.

Arctic Foxes.

In the year 1740 the Russian Government dispatched two vessels, under the command of Captain Beering, to explore the northwest coast of America, and the islands lying between it and the Asiatic continent. The ships were soon parted by tempestuous weather, and separately continued their voyage. The crew of Beering's vessel was under the necessity of passing the winter on an uninhabited island, where the commander with many of his crew died, and to which the survivors gave the name of Beering's island. It was during their residence there that Stellar, a man of letters, attached to the expedition, had an opportunity of observing the manners and customs of the Arctic fox, an animal far exceeding the common fox in impudence, cunning and roguery, and of which he has given the following entertaining description:

During my unfortunate abode on Beering's island, says Stellar, I had opportunities more than enough to study the nature of these animals. The narrative of the innumerable tricks they played us might vie with Albertus Julius's History of the Alps on the Island of Saxenburg. They forced themselves into our habitations by night as well as by day, stealing all that they could carry off, even things that were of no use to them; as knives, sticks and clothes. They were so inconceivably ingenious as to roll down our casks of provisions, each weighing several poods (a pood is equal to forty Russian pounds, each somewhat less than the English pound) and steal the meat out of them so ably that, at first, we could not persuade ourselves to ascribe the theft to them. As we stripped an animal of its skin, it often happened that we could not avoid stabbing two or three foxes, on account of their rapacity in tearing the flesh out of our hands. If we buried it ever so carefully, and even added stones to the weight that was upon it, they not only found it out, but with their shoulders shoved away the stones, lying under them, and helping one another with all their might. If, in order to secure it, we fixed any animal on the top of a high post, they either dug up the earth at the bottom, and tumbled the whole down, or one of them clambered up, and with incredible artifice and dexterity, threw down what was upon it.

They watched all our motions, and accompanied us whatever we were about to do. If the sea threw up an animal of any kind, they devoured it before we could arrive to rescue it from them; and if they could not consume the whole at once they dragged it in portions to the mountains, where they buried it before our eyes, running backward and forward as long as any remained to be carried away. Others, in the meantime, stood on guard and watched us. If they see any one coming at a distance, the whole troop join, and begin digging together in the sand, till a beaver or a sea-bear would be so completely buried under the surface that not a trace of it could be seen. In the night-time, when we were asleep, they came and pulled off our night-caps, and stole our gloves from under our heads, with the beaver coverings, and the skins that we lay upon. In consequence of this, we always slept with sticks by our sides, so that if they awoke us, we might drive them away, or knock them on the head. When we made a halt to rest by the way, they gathered around us, and played a thousands tricks in our sight; and when we sat still, they approached so near as to gnaw the thongs of our shoes. If we lay down, as if intending to sleep, they came and smelt of our noses to discover whether we were dead or alive; if we held our breath, they gave us a tug by the nose, as if they would have bitten it off. On our first arrival, they actually devoured the noses and fingers and the toes of the dead, while we were preparing the grave, and thronged in such a manner around the sick and infirm, that it was with difficulty we could keep them off.

Every morning we saw these audacious animals parading among the sea-lions and sea-bears, lying on the strand, smelling at such as were asleep, to discover whether some of them might not be dead. If that happened to be the case, they proceeded to dissect him immediately, and soon afterward all fell to work to drag the parts away. As the sea-lions sometimes in their sleep over-lie their young, the foxes, as if conscious of the circumstance, every morning examined the whole herd one by one, and immediately dragged away the dead cubs from their dams.

As they would not suffer us to be at rest, either night or day, we became so exasperated at them that we killed them, old and young, and destroyed them by every means we could devise. When we awoke in the morning, there always lay two or three that had been knocked on the head during the night; and I can safely affirm that during my stay on the island I killed above 200 of these animals with my own hands. On the third day after my arrival, I knocked down with a club, within the space of three hours, upwards of seventy of them, and made a covering to my hut with their skins. They were so ravenous that with one hand we could hold to them a piece of flesh, and with a stick or an axe in the other, could knock them on the head.

They have nine or ten cubs at a litter, which they drop in holes and clefts of the rocks. They are so fond of their young that, to drive us from them, they barked and yelled like dogs, by which they betrayed their retreat; but no sooner do they perceive that it is discovered, then, unless they are prevented, they drag away the young in their mouths, and endeavor to conceal them in some secret place. If any one kills the young, the dam will follow him with dreadful howlings, both night and day, for eighty or a hundred miles, and will not desist till she has done her enemy some material injury, or is herself killed by him. In storms or heavy falls of snow, they bury themselves in the snow, where they lie as long as it lasts. They swim across rivers with great dexterity. Besides what is cast up by the sea, or destroyed by other beasts, they seize the sea-fowl by night, on the eyots where they settle to sleep; but they, on the contrary, are themselves frequently victims to the birds of prey. From all the circumstances that occurred during our stay, it was evident that these animals could never before have been acquainted with mankind, and that the dread of man is not innate in brutes, but must be grounded on long experience.

Readables.

Marshal Bazaine's sentence is commuted to twenty years' seclusion, and although he is to be degraded, the humiliating ceremony will be omitted.

The Secretary of the Treasury communicated to the ways and means committee, Friday, facts showing the unfavorable condition of the national finances. The public debt, he states, will be increased by $12,000,000 during the present month.

The Virginius has gone to the port of Bahia Honda, sixty miles west of Havana, where she will be delivered by a Spanish man-of-war to a vessel of the United States navy.

A mass meeting was held in New York Friday evening to express sympathy with the Cuban insurgents. Speeches were made by Rev. G. H. Hepworth and others, and a memorial to Congress was adopted setting forth the Spanish atrocities in Cuba and praying for the recognition of the Cubans as belligerents.

The salary question was discussed further in the house of representatives, Friday, and Mr. Orth's proposition was adopted. The select committee is thereby instructed to report a bill repealing the whole salary act, so far as it can be done under the Constitution, excepting the judges of the Supreme Court, and establishing the compensation of senators, representatives and delegates in Congress hereafter at the rates, as near as practicable, of the the forty-first Congress, with necessary traveling expenses, and restoring all other salaries as they were before the passage of the salary act. The bill granting an extra appropriation of $4,000,000 to the Navy department was passed after considerable debate. The communication from the Secretary of War respecting the accounts of the late freedmen's bureau was referred to the committee on military affairs.

Enormous shoals of herrings have lately invaded the Irish and English coasts, and have been taken in almost incredible numbers. At Waterford the fish invaded the coasts, in a compact mass, wedged together as closely as locusts, and the men were afraid to let out more than half their nets lest these should be rent by the unusual weight of the take. At Yarmouth, one week's catch amounted to a total of 32,000,000 of fish all of excellent quality; and from one fishing ground after another come tidings equally cheering. Four herrings—fine fresh herring—are a day's food for a man; and thus, viewing the great Yarmouth take of a single week, we may estimate its importance by saying that it would feed 1,000,000 men for eight days. These herring now sell in London at "four for a penny."

State News.

The eleventh New Hampshire regiment held its first annual reunion in Manchester Friday. General Walter Harriman was chosen president of the newly-formed association.

Fatal Church Quarrel.

A dispute about a meeting house near Lumberton, Robeson county, N. C., has had a disgraceful termination. The building was owned originally by Freewill Baptists, who, unable to maintain services, allowed it to pass into the hands of another branch of the Freewill denomination. In October last, a Freewill Baptist minister attempted to resuscitate the original church, the result being a war between the two branches, and a struggle for the possession of the church. On the 4th of November the building was burned down, and four of the Freewill faction were arrested on suspicion of firing it, one of them being bound over for trial. A quarrel among members of both factions who had been present at the preliminary examination ended in the killing of H. Hoyes, a Freewill Baptist, by a club in the hands of Alvin G. Britt. Britt and a companion immediately absconded. The murder occurred Nov. 29.

The New Marriage Law in Prussia.

The new law of Prussia in relation to marriages provides that marriage by the civil authorities shall be obligatory. Any clergyman, however, who may be willing to act as civil Commissary of Matrimony, is to be eligible for the office, a clause it is said which will probably remain a dead letter, as both the Catholic and the Protestant clergy strongly object to the measure. The new law is intended to effect a further separation of church and State in Prussia by diminishing the legal influence of the clergy. It will undoubtedly be favorably received by that large class of Germans who regard church organizations as merely human institutions, and in any event will become an efficient instrument in the hands of the government in its contest with the Roman Catholic Church.

The Prohibition Convention.

[Cor. Concord Monitor.]

To some people there is a comical side to all conventions and public gatherings which others do not see. The Prohibition Convention which met in Angelos hall, last Wednesday, was no exception to the general rule, but rather uncommonly full of points for the humorist. Mark Twain would have found it a placer worth working. Believing that we followed a delegation of strangers from the depot to the hall, and sat through the convention, and considered that we were well paid by the comicalities presented. We wanted to see just how our Independent Prohibitionists proposed to stop the sale and use of intoxicating liquors, knowing that a great many very good people had worked at their problem, ever since the day when Commodore Noah, having quit the seas, became a granger, and got drunk on the fruit of his vineyard, and was treated to the mildest form of moral suasion on record, by two of his sons, down to the blessed day of grace on which this convention assembled.

"A little fun, now and then,
Is relished by the best of men,"

On entering the hall, we thought we had made a mistake, and got into a meeting of clergymen, instead of politicians, as we recognized the familiar faces of so many brethren elect, and heard the familiar appellation of "Brother" applied to every speaker. This delusion was of short duration, however. We soon found that the "children of light" who manipulated the convention, had learned political wisdom from the "children of darkness," and had arranged a programme of business in the State Committee, which they proceeded to carry out with commendable haste and zeal. After the usual preliminaries were through, and before the momentous political work of the day was commenced, "Brother Russell," of the Wolverine State, was called on to invoke a divine blessing. "Brother Russell" responded with alacrity, and in a most condescending and complaisant manner, proceeded to give the "Great Lawgiver of the Universe" a very lucid exposition of the objects to be aimed at in the establishment of a good government, and of the motives which ought to actuate people in conducting such a government. We should have said that he "addressed the audience in prayer," had the chairman not distinctly invited him to invoke "a divine blessing."

Next followed the selection of a committee on credentials, who were very considerately saved all labor, by a brother suggesting that all in the hall, who favored prohibition, should be considered as delegates, and in order to ascertain who were prohibitionists, called for a rising vote. This brought every one to his feet except the reporters, and they were consigned to the "goats" by the chairman before they knew it. They took the classification philosophically, however, and in the language of the "Sage of Quincy," mentally exclaimed, "I am content," and plied their pencils with renewed vigor. The announcement of a State committee followed, and here came in some tactics that would put Bill Nye's heathen Chinee, Ah Sin, to blush. No political children of darkness ever tolerated the selection of a State committee of a political party by a retiring State committee. But that was just what this convention tolerated, the list submitted being accepted and a few names added by nomination from the floor. When Merrimack county was reached, Brother Smith appealed imploringly to have two good men added to the list from Concord, and despairingly asked for a nomination. Silence reigned for a season, when a clerical brother from a rural district innocently inquired, if the printer of the Prohibition Herald was not a sound prohibitionist, and like Mark Antony, "paused for a reply." None coming, he repeated the inquiry, which lost itself in silence, and the printer of the Herald was not added to the committee. Perhaps Brother Millen can throw some light on the subject.

The selection of a candidate for Governor was an easy matter and out of the way in a moment; likewise that of a candidate for Railroad Commissioner, and then came in another "Star Chamber" device, leaving the selection of all other candidates to the State Committee. This is very convenient. It relieves the people of all care and responsibility. It is so nice in a "government of the people, by the people, and for the people," to have all nominations made by a State Committee of Rev. Cream Cheeses, Deacon Stick-in-the-muds, and Dr. Blue Pills. It shows progress.

Camphor as a Medicine.

The Scientific American lectures those people who make frequent use of camphor as a medicine. It says: The physiological action of camphor is not yet understood; but, judging by the symptoms that follow the taking of a moderate dose, it may be called a nervous stimulant. It is somewhat like opium and alcohol, therefore, in its action, when given in small quantities; but, when taken in large doses, it causes excessive irritation to the nervous system, producing convulsions and death. Camphor acts to irritate and congest and finally to inflame the mucous lining of the stomach, causing in the milder cases a form of dyspepsia, and, in the more aggravated, ulceration of the stomach. From these two actions—namely, that of the nervous stimulant and local irritation—come all the good and evil of its use. We can, therefore, readily see how nauseated this drug is to be a household remedy.

—The latest piece of ingenious carving is a glass bottle, inside of which is a round table very nearly filling the diameter of the bottle. On the table is a cask made of staves, with brass hoops, and a head in each end. In the nose of the bottle is a wooden stopple, nearly filling the space, and this is keyed in on the inside and pinned. The table and miniature barrel had to be set up inside the bottle, and glued together. The man who did it is not a state prison convict.

The Grand Army of Operatives.

[New York Evening Mail.]

In a recent article we referred to the iron-workers of the country, and their number, by way of illustrating the serious practical effects likely to follow a suspension of that important industry. But it must be borne in mind that the iron-workers, although numbering nearly a million of persons, are only one class of the operatives upon whom financial depression bears with a crushing weight. A review of the census figures connected with the manufacturing industries of the country may be worth giving, as showing how enormous must be the aggregate of individual workmen and workwomen whose bread and butter and family comfort are dependent upon activity and prosperity in all the departments of American manufactures.

As subdivided among the several States, the army of operatives may be thus exhibited: New York, 351,800; Pennsylvania, 319,487; Massachusetts, 279,880; Ohio, 137,202; Connecticut, 89,523; Indiana, 82,979; New Jersey, 75,552; Missouri, 65,354; Michigan, 63,694; Iowa, 58,852; Rhode Island, 49,417; Maine, 49,180; Maryland, 44,860; Wisconsin, 43,910; New Hampshire, 40,783; Kentucky, 30,636; Louisiana, 30,071; Virginia, 26,974; Illinois, 25,032; California, 25,392; Vermont, 18,686; Tennessee, 19,412; Georgia, 17,871; North Carolina, 13,622; West Virginia, 11,672; Minnesota, 11,298; Delaware, 9,710; Alabama, 8,248; South Carolina, 8,141; Texas, 7,927; Kansas, 6,844; Mississippi, 5,941; District of Columbia, 4,685; Arkansas, 3,206; Oregon, 2,834; Nevada, 2,859; Florida, 2,739; Nebraska, 2,665; Utah, 1,534; Washington, 1,026; Colorado, 876; Montana, 701; Wyoming, 502; New Mexico, 427; Idaho 265, Dakota, 91; Arizona, 84. Total, 1,974,747.

The above enumeration is obviously inaccurate as an exhibition of the actual total of our population engaged in manufacturing operations. Apart from the circumstance that the figures belong to 1870 and cannot include the increase of the last three years, there are discrepancies in them which appear at a glance. For example, all Illinois is credited with only 25,032 operatives in manufacturing industries, whereas Chicago alone, as we showed the other day, can probably claim nearly double that number within her city limits. Moreover, if it is true that the iron-workers of the country number 940,000, this would leave only 1,074,746 as the number of operatives at large among all other branches of manufacture combined. This can hardly be accepted as being anything near the truth.

But it remains pretty evident that, even upon the basis of the census returns, 2,000,000 of our people, representing with their families at least 8,000,000 persons, are dependent upon manufactures for their support, and upon a healthful condition of business generally for their proper supply of the means whereby they live. It becomes, therefore, a most serious subject of thought and study as to how such a mass of humanity, is going to live, pending the continuance of the existing depressions in manufacturing enterprise all over the country. Their hope, and ours for them, can only be that the cloud will soon lift and the old vision of Ezekiel be theirs, to see "the spirit of the living creature within the wheels." But should this prove a deferred hope, many a heart will be made sick. The several communities will soon, in all probability, have to face the problem of furnishing employment after some sort to all those idle and starving thousands, or else must establish means of feeding and sheltering them without exacting labor in return. What shall it be?

The Charlestown Tragedy.

There are several theories relative to the murder in Charlestown, Mass., and in regard to which of the victims was killed first. The most probable theory is that Kimball killed his wife first. The facts which would seem to substantiate this are as follows: About three weeks ago one of the boarders says that while in conversation with Mrs. Kimball she told him that the night previous she retired early in order to obtain sleep, which she needed. When, however, Kimball came to bed he awoke her and they had high words, and she told him if he attempted violence she would alarm the boarders and they would come to her assistance. She said that she did not get to sleep again till 4 o'clock in the morning, and thought that was not much time to rest for a woman who had boarders to look after.

Taking these remarks of Mrs. K. as a basis, it would seem that on Thursday morning Kimball had another quarrel with his wife, and, as he says in his note, his temper got the best of him and he choked her to death; that he then arranged her body, as when the murder was discovered the remains of Mrs. K. were found in bed, her hands placed across her breast, and a sheet drawn over the remains; that after choking his wife to death, which some think he did not intend to do, but only to frighten her, his first thought was to escape, and he then wrote the note relative to the "trouble," but finding it was quite late he determined to murder his step-daughter and then kill himself; that he then wrote the second note which was published.

The murderer did not lose his venom, even when his own throat was cut, and the life blood was fast flowing from the ghastly wound, for he attempted to cut an officer with the razor which sent his step-daughter and himself into eternity. The officer was called into the house and went to the room where Kimball was. He found Kimball lying on the floor, his clothes saturated with blood. He asked Kimball to give him the razor. Upon hearing this request Kimball jumped up quickly and said, "I'll give it to you;" and with these words he struck at the officer with the razor, but failed to injure him. While the officer was watching him Kimball again drew the razor across his throat and fell upon the floor. He lived but five minutes after the second cut.

An Agricultural Serenade.

The "farmer's movement" in the western States has offered a fine opportunity to the rural wits who do not engage in it. In Minnesota the new party has been the subject of ridicule to an extraordinary degree, because many of the political leaders who have been successful in the old parties have been particularly prominent as "farmers." Among them is one who was once more widely known as a member of Congress—Mr. Ignatius Donnelly. One popular way of treating him and others is to represent them as "scattering hayseed in the hair" and "following the plough in a high-top buggy," while putting into their mouths conversations of a ridiculous and laughable character. One of the best specimens of this style of literature lately appeared in the Minneapolis Tribune. It purported to be the report of the "Potato Bug Caucus," by Peleg Wales. One of the chief actors was Donnelly, and during the debate he asked about a proposed serenade to his "sweetheart." His friend inquired, "Hev you p'inted it off?" The narrative goes on:

Father Donnelly was embarrast. He turned as red as a rose, blue his knows, brushed his close, and trod on Denman's tose, but at last he arose, the tide of his eloquents flows, and the words which he spoke air those:

SERENADE BY FARMER DONNELLY.

Oh come, my love, and live with me;
And keep my cottage in the glen,
As patient as a bumble bee
And busy as a setting hen.

Oh, rest beneath my fragrant bower,
Where sweet stramonium doth entwine;
Come, smell the gentle cauliflower
And call the mangel-wurtzel vine.

Ah! listen to the rural songs!
The pea shall wind his magic shell,
As Echo plaintively prolongs
The warble of the pimpernel.

Beyond the vermicelli row
I hear the bull-frog's sigh again—
The cackle of the Durham ewe—
The bellow of the Berkshire hen.

Oh, come, love, come! the morn is fair,
I'll celebrate the day with thee;
I'll merrily dig the Bartlett pear,
And shake the ruta-baga tree.

Oh, hump yourself, my lovely Poll,
And in the cause of Anti-monop,
We'll mulch the turkeys in the fall,
And graft the long clam on the hop.

My sweetest! I am fond of mush,
And thou will set some out for me;
We'll early sow the current bush,
And tap the cranberry-jelly tree.

We'll pull the wool from off the calf,
The cottonwood its fleece shall shed;
So at the winter will we laugh,
And gaily weed the oyster bed.

We'll blithely hoe the winter wheat,
We'll chase the eggs the squirrels lay,
And when the Bantam hog shall bleat
We'll feed him with some clover hay.

All savory game to thee I'll bring;
The burdock knows my spear is sharp;
I'll shoot the dolphin on the wing
And hit his in the pericarp.

Then come, my love, and live with me:
And beautify my lonely den,
As patient as a bumble-bee
And busy as a setting hen.

The Cook-room of the Body.

The food that has been cooked in the kitchen must be recooked in the stomach before it can be applied to the nourishment of the body. As a means of facilitating this second cooking, in cases where the process is slowly and imperfectly performed, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is invaluable. It promotes the generation of heat in the living laboratory in which the crude materials for building up and recruiting the human frame are turned into convertible aliment. But this is not all. It acts beneficially upon the cellular membrane which secrete the gastric juice, upon the liver, which produces that natural laxative, the bile, upon the vessels which receive the digested food, and upon the absorbents which connect the digestive organs with the channels of circulation. If any portion of this complex machinery is out of order the Bitters will set it right, thus promoting vigorous digestion, healthy secretion, and the production of pure, rich, life-sustaining blood.

Kittery Affairs.

The Christian Society of Kittery on Thursday evening closed a very successful fair in aid of the fund for purchasing an organ for their church, a goodly sum being realized for that purpose. Mr. Oliver Wilson headed the subscription list with twenty dollars. We hope soon to see the society in possession of a good organ, which their energy deserves.

The Portsmouth Journal of last Saturday says "Lieut. Durand has been ordered to command" the U. S. S. Plymouth, and that "the new third-class steamer Marion was launched Wednesday." I am not quite prepared to deny that the Marion was launched Wednesday, but if so she was put back on the stocks in the ship-house again before Thursday morning, and there she is now. Lieut. Durand is ordered to the Speedwell and not to the Plymouth.

The projected absence of Dr. M. F. Wentworth (who is to represent the town in the State legislature, which meets Jan. 7th,) has been a source of uneasiness to many of his patients; but as the Doctor will return home every Friday night and not leave again until Monday night, his patients will still be able to avail themselves of his professional skill and experience. No doubt Dr. Wentworth would make more money by giving his entire attention to his professional practice and letting politics entirely alone; but he won't do that any way, so he might as well be sent to Congress as not.

On Friday evening some of the friends of Mrs. Fannie U. Roberts, pastor of the Universalist Society, met at A. A. Hayes' hall and gave her a surprise. Although the weather was bad a goodly number of persons were present and a varied social entertainment was enjoyed, at the close of which it was found that some sixty dollars in money and provisions had been contributed. An original poem (by Mrs. A. W. Brooks of Eliot, who was too ill to attend,) was read by Mrs. Louisa Quinn. Mrs. Roberts is much loved and respected by the town's people generally as well as by the members of her society, which is prospering under her charge. COM.

Laconics.

Sunday was a beautiful winter's day, and there was generally a full attendance at the churches.

The altar of St. John's church was draped in mourning, on Sunday, in memory of the late Bishop Armitage.

On Saturday night a fisherman, on going on board his vessel lying at Rollins' wharf, slipped and fell between the wharf and vessel, but was rescued from his perilous position by the fishermen belonging to the other vessels.

It is hardly necessary to remind Portsmouth people that the "Barnabee entertainment" comes off to-morrow night at the Temple. Mr. Barnabee will be assisted by Mrs. H. M. Smith, soprano; Miss A. R. Clark, contralto and pianist; Miss Pervis Bell, violinist; and Mr. W. J. Winch, tenor. The combination is a very strong one, and a highly enjoyable evening may be expected.

Messrs. Editors: Mr. Pearson's unique card in Saturday's CHRONICLE seems to be printed against the Conservatory. "Jubal" (evidently Mr. Moses) of the Journal recently took similar ground. Now, is not such testimony rather one-sided, coming as it does from professional musicians? Prof. Tilton has made no sign. Will he not, as one of the original board of instruction, speak a word of encouragement? MAS.

As will be seen by their advertisement, Messrs. A. Robeck & Son have established in this city, in the Rogers block, a fancy cake bakery and confectionery. The firm is well known to many of the naval officers at this station, and comes here highly recommended. Our epicures will now have an opportunity to regale themselves with everything curious, novel and palatable in the pastry line, without being at the expense of sending to Boston for it.

Mr. Woodbury M. Fernald died in Boston, on Wednesday, at the age of sixty years. He was born in this city, and in his earlier years he was an earnest clergyman of the Universalist denomination, settled in Newburyport and other places. Then he became connected with the Unitarian body; and finally adopted, in whole or in part, the views of the New church, so called. He was fond of speculative subjects and doctrinal and metaphysical discussions, held a ready pen, and engaged in diversified literary and other pursuits with more or less of success.

The Romance of Reality.

[Boston Globe.]

A widow of seventy years died in Portsmouth, the other day, the truth of whose life was stranger than many a fiction. At the age of eighteen, she married the choice of her heart, a young sea Captain, and after a brief and happy honey-moon, he left her for a foreign voyage. But his ship wasn't heard from, and doubtless foundered at sea, with all on board. The young husband, as he was dressing for sea, on the morning he left home, playfully threw a pair of stockings backward over his head, to test some sailors' charm or other, and they chancing to land on the top of a canopy bedstead, he remarked, "Sarah, let them stay there till I come back." And many and many a long year they laid there; but, alas! he never returned. But neither love nor hope nor expectation ever died out in her faithful heart during all the many years of her lonely pilgrimage. To the last, whenever a door opened, or a step was heard approaching, she turned to see if it might not be he whom she mourned and sought. But he never came again to her—let us hope and trust that she has gone to him. By her desire she was buried in her wedding dress, with white gloves and wedding ring.

Her sister also had a peculiar but very different experience. After an engagement of twenty-seven years, her lover left Portsmouth for New York, and in a very short time became enamored with an Irish servant girl in his brother's family, and married her.

A Romance of Real Life.

Twenty years ago, London theatre-goers were fascinated by the beauty and accomplishments of a young debutante who was known as the Brighton Pearl. She appeared at Drury Lane in leading characters, and obtained the favor of the critics and the applause of the public in an equally generous degree; but after a brief season she disappeared altogether, and it was whispered that some nobleman had met and loved and married her. She did leave London as the wife of Lord Denbigh, travelled with him for some months on the continent, and lived with him in great seclusion for a short time in Florence, where Lord Denbigh died. Her claims as his wife were set aside by the family of of the nobleman, and having neither money nor friends to prosecute them she abandoned the contest and returned to the stage, winning something of her old success in Australia and Montreal. In 1869 she returned to England and married a man named Whittlesey, with whom she came to this country and lived quietly and happily in Kansas City for several years; but on the death of her husband she was compelled to support herself and child by sewing. That resource, however, proved inadequate, and the child, a little girl of thirteen years, in endeavoring to eke out the scanty support furnished by her mother's needle, by gathering such bits of coal as fell from the cars on the Missouri Pacific railroad, was arrested for stealing from the coal sheds of the company, and her mother's attempts to rescue her from punishment brought out the above facts in that mother's strangely checkered history. Mrs. Whittlesey is said to preserve many traces of the beauty and talent which entranced the frequenters of Drury Lane twenty years ago. She attracted the attention of some kind hearted gentlemen when she appeared at the police station to regain her daughter, and he found means to place her in comfortable circumstances, and to release the child from the degrading associations of her former occupation. It is seldom that the novelist ventures to paint greater or stranger freaks of fortune than have befallen this whilom ornament of the London stage.

A Monstrosity.

[Centralia (Mo.) Guard.]

Mr. J. E. Walker, residing midway between this place and Fayette, on last Monday, brought to this office, on its inspection, a corn-stalk measuring the enormous length of twenty-six feet and eight inches, which was grown on his farm the past summer. The only product of this mammoth corn-stalk was a strange monstrosity in the corn line, it being a combination of five fully developed, healthy ears of corn, grown compactly together, in one solid mass, while at the lower end was a curious formation, closely resembling a man's wrist and hand, with six perfect and faultlessly-formed fingers, the latter being blood red, while the balance of the corn is of snowy whiteness. This wonderful freak of nature measures twenty-seven inches in length by fifteen inches in circumference, and weighs thirty-two pounds. It grew within five feet of the ground, while the balance of the stalk towered aloft like a flag-staff, and was bare as a bean-pole with the exception of the tassel on the top. It grew in rich bottom-land, and although there were forty acres of corn surrounding it, none others grew above the usual height. Mr. Walker intends sending this moustrosity to the agricultural museum at Washington.

—Dr. Dio Lewis now tells "our girls" that if they want to learn to walk well, they should "walk an hour a day, with a bag of beans—upon their heads." A few days ago the Doctor advised ladies to eat beans to improve their complexion. We begin to suspect that he belongs to a bean "ring," and is trying to bull the bean market.

—Profundissimus was astonished at the crowds of ladies who have been to the junks shops lately, but was satisfied when he found that they were buying up second hand cooking stove covers to use as buttons on their redingotes.

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Hermion, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to free myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I do not run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to free myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I do not run pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and strangulings. have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

Two Idols Smashed.

A watering-place correspondent tells the following story of some of the experiences of busy life at our fashionable summer resorts. The hero is Augustus, who is employed in a Broadway establishment which deals in wearing apparel for men. The clerk, having saved something from his earnings, went to a Saratoga, Newport or Long Branch hotel, no matter which, to spend his money and his holiday. He was well dressed, and on the piazza he one day formed the acquaintance of Marie, a young lady of beauty, and arrayed in the height of the mode. The impression was made upon the mind of Augustus that Marie was wealthy and high born. He fell in love with her, but carefully concealed from her his occupation. He mysteriously talked of stocks, and made her believe that he was a man of large capital. After the holiday Augustus returned to town and resumed his position behind the counter; and now we quote the words of the writer: "It was a week or two after his return, and Augustus' soul was not yet in his vocation. Already the heavier woolens were coming in for the fall trade, and Augustus smiled albeit sardonically, at the change which overtakes all fashions and things, as he stood at his familiar counter. But an extra and peremptory order for custom-made shirts obliged him to visit one of the many seamstresses employed by the emporium. As Augustus turned down the narrow street of a remote, unfashionable locality, and rung the bell of a modest tenement house, his mind reverted to the past, and he glanced nervously up and down the street lest Marie from a passing carriage should detect him with the ominous parcel under his arm. He was relieved when the opening door enabled him to enter. But as he did so the bundle slipped from his nerveless fingers. For there, seated at a sewing machine, with her pretty fingers on the plate and her slim foot on the treadle, sat Mary Jones—the Marie of his dreams."

Hard Case.

The New York Tribune says: "We knew when they began to make women justices of the peace in Wyoming, that matters would speedily become mixed and miscellaneous. Just fancy Rhadamantha forced to try her own husband for the misdemeanor of drunkenness, and worse, to pronounce him "guilty," and to fine him: and worse still to pay the fine herself, to prevent her lord and master from going to jail! Where she held the court we are not informed, but it is just possible that the poor man was arraigned, tried, convicted and sentenced before he got out of bed in the morning."

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND NUMBNESS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, it so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched, and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN STREET blown in the glass.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attraction any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, who takes no responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

CONSUMPTION!!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry!

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!

At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.

But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

INK! INK! INK!

TO ALL THAT USE THE PEN!

WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK

is claimed to be far superior to any Ink ever manufactured, for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it grow thick in the bottle, as it contains no sugar or gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy a clear impression three months after a letter is written with it. It will not blot or blur, smut or rub off. This Ink is noted for its pen-preserving qualities. It needs no pen-wiper. It cleans the pen by enameling it with a thin bronze coating. Freezing does not injur this Ink. It dries quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any Ink in the market. This Ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, and those who have tried it say they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to care the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating, repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by owners desirable to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

The Presidential Succession.

[Syracuse Journal.]

Recent telegrams contained the statement that a prominent Republican journal in the West has suggested for the republican nomination for President, in 1876, the name of Elihu B. Washburne. It is quite early for the consideration of the succession to the Presidency, three years hence, but it is probable that plans have long since been set on foot, by adherents of leading men in the country who aspire to the Chief Magistracy for the promotion of that high ambition. Such intriguing has been inseparable from Presidential nominations ever since the time of the first President; and the results of nominating conventions, although frequently contrary to the wishes of managing politicians, are yet more often largely shaped by their manipulations than seems to be the fact from surface indications. These managers are sharp, shrewd men, and they seldom waste their efforts in behalf of aspirants without expectations.

The suggestion of Mr. Washburne's name, by an influential party journal, is not without significance. It has been thought of before, and has doubtless been duly considered in the conferences of managing politicians. Mr. Washburne is however, not responsible for this. It is the experience of every public man who has sufficient prominence before the country to be considered in a national canvass. His name is a strong one, and it contains large possibilities for the future. Mr. Washburne served for fourteen years in the House of Representatives, where he was at the head of important committees for several sessions and occupied in other respects a foremost place in the national councils. He was always an uncompromising opponent of all jobs and special grants; he was economical to closeness; he was vigilant in his watch over the public treasury; and although he was not a popular member among his fellows in the House, yet this was mainly because his face was set against all raids upon the treasury, and the fact being known to the people, they respected and trusted him. During his Congressional career, Mr. Washburne's public acts were such as to make him strong with the masses of the people, in the Western States particularly, where antipathy to gigantic monopolies, of all descriptions, is taking the form of political action. Since Mr. Washburne has been Minister at Paris, he has added largely to his reputation, by his splendid conduct during the siege of the French capital by the Germans, as well as by his energy and efficiency in the discharge of all the duties of his office; and besides this he has been absent from the country for four years, and is free from complications with political affairs which might be to his disadvantage; and these are strong circumstances in his favor as a Presidential candidate. Mr. Washburne befriended President Grant, by introducing him to the military service at the outbreak of the rebellion, and is considered one of the President's nearest friends. Circumstances which are quite strongly against Mr. Washburne, are the selections of both the republican Presidents, Lincoln and Grant, from the State of Illinois, which is also Mr. Washburne's home; and it would be strange, indeed, were the next republican candidate to be taken from that State, after she had had the President for sixteen consecutive years. Such an event would look like the making of Illinois another "Mother of Presidents," as with Virginia under the old-time Democratic regime.

We have made the best presentiment of Mr. Washburne, in our power; but good as it is, it is not better than can be made for others. We call to mind the names of several other honored and respected republican leaders, some of whom are quite as likely as Mr. Washburne to be the next President of the United States. The coming man will undoubtedly be from 1:1 life. In the East, James G. Blaine, of Maine, now for the third term Speaker of the House of Representatives; and were Henry Wilson in vigorous health, he, too, would be in the list from that section. General Hawley, of Connecticut, deserves favorable consideration also; and General Butler, of Massachusetts, will doubtless have his admirers. In the West, besides Elihu B. Washburne, is Oliver P. Morton, of Indiana, one of the noblest of the republican statesmen of this land; and also, James F. Wilson, of Iowa, a strong man, who may possibly be brought into the field with an unexpectedly vigorous backing. In the South, there are no names of sufficient prominence in public affairs to be discussed in this category. And in the Middle States there is but one man to whom general expectation points, in connection with the Presidency; and that man is Roscoe Conkling, of New York, whose great abilities, valuable services, and recognized position of leadership in the nation, place him in the forefront of Republican statesmen, and render him the most natural and eligible selection for the position of standard-bearer of the Republican party in the National campaign of 1876.

We have not the space to-day to refer specially to those public men who have recently wasted their chances for elevation to the Presidential office. It is sufficient to refer to Messrs. Sumner, Trumbull and Fenton, as public men of former promise, who had longings for the capital prize, but who have so blundered as to put it far beyond their reach.

Death of Prof. Agassiz.

Prof. Louis John Rudolph Agassiz died at his residence in Cambridge, Mass., Sunday night. He was born near Lake Neufchatel, Switzerland, in May, 1807, and early developed a taste for scientific study and research, and studied at the college of Lausanne, at the Zurich Medical School, and at the universities of Heidelberg and Munich, besides attending for four years Schelling's lectures on philosophy. Up to the time of his entering the University of Munich he seemed to have looked upon medicine as his future profession and while his mind had a general scientific bent, which he to a very considerable extent indulged, as was natural, the greater portion of his time was devoted to the study of medicine, under the ablest teachers of his day. However, on entering the University, he was brought in contact with some of the most profound scientific men of the time, among whom may be enumerated Oken, Martius, Schelling and Dollinger, and he became the leading spirit of the scientific student circles of the university. He was selected by Martius to assist him in completing his great work on Brazil. Agassiz, next great labor was the publication of his celebrated work on the "Natural History of the Fresh Water Fishes of Europe." While studying living fishes his attention had been naturally drawn to the fossil species, and he commenced the study of the ichthyology of bygone periods with characteristic ardor, devoting ten years of travel and research to the study of this branch of science, the result of which was published in the completed works in 1834-1844. In the preparation of this work he received material assistance from Humboldt, who had contemplated an exhaustive treatise on the same subject, but willingly placed the result of his researches at the disposal of Agassiz. In 1832 he was appointed professor of natural history in the college at Neufchatel, and in the succeeding fourteen years which elapsed between the appointment and his arrival in this country, travelled, studied and wrote much.

In 1846, he visited Boston, having been sent to this country on a scientific mission from the Prussian government, and the following year, having obtained an honorable discharge, he determined to make his home there. He delivered lectures in various sections of the country, and then accepted the chair of zoology and geology in the Lawrence scientific school, founded by Mr. Abbott Lawrence. Since that time, with the exception of two years when he held the position of professor of comparative anatomy in the Medical College of Charleston, S. C., he has been closely identified with Harvard College, and has labored indefatigably in the interest of science. One of the most important undertakings which will suffer is the Cambridge Museum. Though only fourteen years old it has a reputation second to none, while in some respects it is far superior to institutions claiming an equal name. It was to pay a debt of gratitude which Professor Agassiz considered that he owed to the people of this country—already repaid by the free gift of his life and presence—that he undertook the establishment of this museum. For many years beforehand he worked almost unaided, making his collections at his own expense. In 1852 these scattered collections, through private subscription raised by the treasurer of Harvard University, were purchased for $12,000. Professor Agassiz continued to add to it, and six years later had secured a collection which furnished a formidable argument for the execution of his cherished plan A bequest of $50,000 by Francis C. Gray of Boston, in 1858, furnished the financial nucleus for the Museum of Comparitive Zoology, the State voting the following year aid to the extent of $100,000, and $71,000 being raised by subscription. With his two later enterprises—the Hassler expedition and the natural history school at Penikese—nearly every one is familiar.

Old Time Chronicles, No. 98.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

In 1641 Hampton had been settled but three years. It appears from the names of men there in some old records that there were then some thirty families and the number of persons might have been 100 or more. At that date the towns in New Hampshire, four in number, were united to Massachusetts and the union continued 39 years. The towns were allowed a representation in the General Court of Massachusetts held in Boston. The representatives were called deputies. The following is a list sent from Hampton. The spelling is preserved as found in the Massachusetts Records of the General Court.

1667, Wm. Fuller; 1668, Robert Page. Next three years, Samuel Dalton; 1672, Xtoph Hussey. This was Christopher Hussey. Then for six years Samuel Dalton again, excepting 1673, when none was sent. 1677, Tho. Marston; 1678, '79, Samuel Dalton again. This last year the union with Massachusetts terminated.

Robert Page, named above as a Deputy two years, was the progenitor of the Page family in Hampton and other towns around. He was one of the early settlers of Hampton, was one of the selectmen several years, was deacon of the Congregational church, as was also a son of his named Christopher. Robert Page died Sept. 22, 1679, aged 75.

Samuel Dalton it is seen was Deputy thirteen years. It is believed he was a nephew of Rev. Timothy Dalton, the second minister of Hampton. Rev. Dalton died Dec. 28, 1661, and Samuel had a legacy in his will.

An "Improved" Wedding Tour.

Mr. Newbury, of Davenport, Iowa, like Burns, of Gettysburg, is a practical man, under which guise he won the heart of Miss Zamie Severance a brilliant lady and deservedly school-teacher, and about five weeks ago they were made man and wife. It has been the custom of Mr. Newbury to take an annual barge-trip to New Orleans, and he conceived the novel and romantic idea of making a wedding tour in the same way. The subject was broached to his friends, and also to the friends of the bride; and, as it met with much favor on all sides, he decided to carry the plan out. A barge was accordingly fitted up in sumptuous style, and everything made in shipshape order for the reception of the newly-married couple. In addition to the luxuries of life a cargo of onions and potatoes were stowed away in the hold, to be disposed of on arrival at New Orleans. In this manner was profit combined with pleasure and common sense with romance. In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Newbury, the craft carried fourteen passengers, three of whom were ladies. Mr. Hall, an experienced Mississippi navigator, piloted the barge and commanded a crew of four men, all told. The balance of the party was composed of ambitious followers of Nimrod, who had pledged themselves to keep the cuisine well supplied with wild game. Immediately after the marriage ceremony had been performed the bridal party and their retainers were escorted to the barge, which was pushed out into the stream, and slowly floated past the city on its way to the Gulf. The only steam on board was that which issued from the mouth of the teakettle, and hence dreams of boiler explosions did not haunt the slumbers of the voyageurs. After an enjoyable trip of four weeks' duration, the barge, with its novel cargo of onions and bride, reached St. Louis on Saturday night. As the journey was only continued by daylight, the length of time consumed was longer than anticipated, but it passed only too quickly for the happy passengers. When game was sighted a landing was effected, and the hunters of the party were given a chance to amuse themselves. The animated floaters spent three or four days in the city, calling on their friends and visiting places of amusement. On Wednesday they continued their voyage, and expect to reach New Orleans in about two months. They propose to remain in Cairo a week, and also a week in Memphis. The vessel's log will be an interesting document to peruse when the trip is completed, and Mr. and Mrs. Newbury will doubtless carry it back to Davenport with them on their return next spring. Taking all circumstances into consideration, this wedding tour can be safely classed as the most practically romantic one on record.

A nice question of taste; Jeweller—What kind of a chain would you like? Young Man—Well, I don't know, hardly. What kind of a chain would you think I ought to have; that is, what style would you think would be the most becoming for a young man what carries groceries to some of the best families in town?

—A young lady of Harper's Ferry tried to commit suicide the other day because she has a wen on her neck and hadn't money enough to buy an Elizabethan hedge fence to hide it.

Re-Modeling Old Clothes.

There have probably never been styles so well adapted to the remodeling of old clothes so that they may appear "almost as good as new" as the present. Any lady having on hand several cast-off dresses may with tolerable ingenuity, cut of two make a street costume which will vie in elegance with the latest; or, with certain appliances of trimming, out of an old silk may have an elegant dinner dress. For instance, an old silk skirt can be modernized by trimmings, and of a cast-off cashmere, a polonaise, a redingote, or a basque and tunic can be easily made; the costume when completed, being perfectly in mode—the difference in color between the skirt and over-dress, unless the contrast be glaringly strong, offering no obstacle to the outfit. Unless, as is our peculiar good fortune, our fashionable ladies could get an inside view of the workrooms of certain of our most fashionable dressmakers, they would scarcely credit the shifts of fashion to accommodate herself to the necessities of all.

A Mexican blue moire antique silk that was ludicrously antiquated in style was elegantly modernized by taking a surplus width, making a flounce for the back breadths, which was finished at the bottom with a bias band of velvet of the color of the dress, and headed by a double puff and stand frill of the velvet. The front gore was unusually wide and scalloped at the bottom; and instead of an overskirt was a sash of the full breadth of the velvet, about four yards in length, trimmed all around with pale buff yak lace, and folded across the front diagonally and knotted on the side not very far above the heading of the flounce. The basque corsage was of the velvet, made perfectly plain; and this, with the antique sleeves of the silk, finished with puffings and frills of tulle, had the appearance of a sleeveless jacket.

A dress of brocade silk, long laid aside as worthless, has been suddenly brought out and made into an elegant dinner costume. The silk was striped, with a brocade spray in contrasting colors enlivening it. The front gore was plain; upon each side was a reversed piece trimmed with guipure lace, and on the back breadths a deep Spanish flounce with its own heading, the flounce forming a demi-train, and the upper portion of the skirt being puffed in paniers. The waist was of black velvet, finished with heavy cord covered with black silk, and with sleeves of the brocade silk, had the effect of the sleeveless jacket.

An evening dress of rose-colored satin which had done its duty upon so many brilliant occasions as to tire its owner, has been given a new face by flounces and a sash of delicate corn-color, trimmed with pale buff yak lace, the sash folded and disposed as the one of velvet described above. The low necked pointed body was filled in with puffings of tulle, divided by pipings of the corn-colored satin; the short puffed sleeves were finished in the same manner, and the waist in the berthe style, and the sleeves were trimmed with a slightly full piece of the yak lace. The flowers to be worn with this dress were tea-roses and their foliage, and blue for-get-me-nots. The effect of the dress was eminently Parisian.

The New England Textile Industries.

[Economist and Dry Goods Reporter.]

The news of extensive industrial revival in the manufacturing districts will be regarded by the public as the most potent and satisfactory news of the day. To thousands of workingmen in all parts of the country it carries an almost unhoped for assurance of employment during the winter; to business men generally it affords a sure indication of returning prosperity, and to all classes it brings the welcome promise that the much dreaded "hard times" during the winter will be abated of much of their severity, and that there will be at least a great deal more employment and business activity than lately seemed probable or even possible.

Our information is very full and precise, especially from the New England States, and relates chiefly, though not entirely, to textile industries. From these reports it appears that the cotton and woolen mills are everywhere very generally resuming operations. A large number which had stopped, it was feared for the entire winter, resumed work on half or three-quarters time on the 1st of December; others which have not yet resumed will do so on Monday next, and mills which have been running half time, or even less, are now running three-quarters time, and some of them are working full time. The great Lowell factories are now nearly all working full time. The Fall River mills, whose entire stoppage so lately seemed imminent, have considerably increased their operations. Some of them are now working full time, and there is scarcely a doubt that all of them will do so on the first of January.

From the manufacturing centres in Maine and New Hampshire the accounts are almost invariably favorable. In Pennsylvania the textile factories are again started up, and even from Paterson, N. J., we have the good news of the resumption of some of the silk factories at that place. This revival of industrial activity is attended for the most part by a reduction of wages of from 10 to 20 per cent. To this reduction, however, there are some exceptions, the extensive Wamsutta and New York mills, and some others, having increased their operations at former rates of wages. From the very full and accurate information now at our command, we feel fully warranted in anticipating under ordinary circumstances, a complete and entire resumption of the country at the commencement of the new year—now only three weeks hence. And considering the magnitude of this industry and its relations and influence upon other branches of trade and on general business, this must be regarded as an event of national importance.

It has long been remarked that when the dry goods trade is good every branch of business is prosperous, and this holds good at the present time more than ever. It is surely a hopeful feature of the future that this great industry which was the last to feel the effects of the panic, is the first to recover from it. There is not a commercial or industrial interest in any part of the country which will not speedily experience the beneficial effects of a restoration of the great woolen and cotton manufactures. It is the first and best sign of returning prosperity to the whole American people.

The Rose Gardens of France.

The rose gardens of France are celebrated. Acres and acres of roses bloom in them for perfumers. Heliotrope, mignonette and other floral plants are also found side by side with them in dense masses. The air is heavy with almost sickening fragrance and for miles around the breezes bear the sweet tidings that they "have flown o'er the gardens of Gul in their bloom." But who has heard of an English lavender field? Very few, certainly, in this country. Fewer still have seen one. Yet within thirty miles of London these lavender fields have become quite an extensive and recognized industry and there is annually produced in England alone sufficient oil from the plant to manufacture thirty thousand gallons of spirits of lavender, besides a large quantity the total of which is unknown, to be used in the production of other perfumes with more pretentious names. The plant is at the best between three years of age and seven. The harvest time is the week in August. The flowers are then cut and taken to the distillery, followed by an innumerable number of bees, which insects are especially fond of them, where the essential oil is pressed out, and is ready to be mixed with the proper ingredients to make lavender water.

Most all pills in the market, and those styled vegetable, are not only large, nauseous griping and difficult to swallow, but they contain Mercury, besides Aloes, Gamboge, and other injurious drastics. These are old medicines, and used before medical science developed better, now supplanted by much more pleasant but effectual cathartics. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets embody the latest and best cathartic properties in a concentrated, yet mild and searching form, and are never taken with disappointment. Wholly vegetable, sugar-coated, small, neat and in delicate glass vials. Sold at 25 cents, by Druggists. 706

The Cook-room of the Body.

The food that has been cooked in the kitchen must be recooked in the stomach before it can be applied to the nourishment of the body. As a means of facilitating this second cooking, in cases where the process is slowly and imperfectly performed, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is invaluable. It promotes the generation of heat in the living laboratory in which the crude materials for building up and recruiting the human frame are turned into convertible aliment. But this is not all. It acts beneficially upon the cellular membrane which secrete the gastric juice, upon the liver, which produces that natural laxative, the bile, upon the vessels which receive the digested food, and upon the absorbents which connect the digestive organs with the channels of circulation. If any portion of this complex machinery is out of order the Bitters will set it right, thus promoting vigorous digestion, healthy secretion, and the production of pure, rich, life-sustaining blood.

Rev. A. C. Hardy lectured in Greenland, Monday evening; subject, "Masonry."

Rev. James DeNormandie closes the North Hampton lyceum course, this evening, with a lecture on Palestine.

The life-saving station at Rye Beach is now framed and boarded, and the structure will be completed in a short time.

A. J. Penhallow, Esq., has purchased the farm near York village formerly the homestead of Col. Luther Junkins.

Hon. William Simes is mentioned as the prospective republican candidate for State Senator from this district.

On Monday, Mr. Charles Letts of Kittery, employed on the Navy Yard as a fastener, received an accidental blow on the forehead from a mallet in the hands of a fellow workman. He was knocked off the staging but no serious injury is anticipated.

Ship Frank Jones, Ross master, arrived in Liverpool on the 14th, 39 days after leaving Portsmouth, stopping 14 days in New York for her cargo of 2000 tons to be loaded. Quick work, that! Piscataqua mechanics have not forgotton how to build fast vessels.

There is a suit pending against the European Railway Company in which a firm of lumber dealers in York county claim $30,000 for damages alleged to have resulted from the burning of a large quantity of lumber, originating from sparks from a locomotive.

A joking correspondent of the Boston Advertiser says: Portsmouth people now hope that the long-heralded truss having been applied to the bridge over the Piscataqua, the rupture in travel between Dover and Portsmouth, occasioned by the loss of the old Piscataqua bridge sixteen years ago, will never again occur.

The Barnabee concert to-night will be a pleasing one and the object commendable. There is no need of introducing H. C. B. to a Portsmouth audience. The programme is likely to be as interesting as ever—and Barnabee knows well how to please his old friends. Mrs. Smith, Miss Clark, and Mr. Winch are favorites with the musical public. Miss Persis Bell will furnish some exquisite violin music.

The Transit of Venus.

"Perley," correspondent of the Boston Journal, writing at Washington under date of Dec. 8th, says, scientific men regret that the weather is foggy as the observations being made of the transit of Venus require clear skies, and it is feared that the observers' stationed in diffrent parts, may not be favored. "Perley" goes on to state that Congress appropriated $150,000 and $5,000 for instruments, with which parties have been established in eight different places, and it is expected reports of these parties will all be ready before the close of the present session of Congress.

A transit of a planet is its crossing the sun's disk. Venus is to make a transit. It will not be seen in our country. So if foggy at Washington, and it is sometimes in more senses than one, as will be seen in this weather presently, is it likely that it will be in China, Japan and other places on that side of the globe where the transit may be seen?

But this is not all. The report of observers will not be made to the present session of Congress unless it shall continue a year and some months from now. Mark that, on there at Washington. Because why? Nature's arrangements are not ready for the transit yet. Nor do we believe the parties to make observation with instruments are nearly ready. The fact is, Dec. 8th, was not the time for it. Dec. 8th, 1874, is to be the time, as any one may see by "Burrit's Geography of the Heavens," article Venus, page 195, Leavitt's Almanac for 1874, or any other scientific work that mentions the matter. So, gentlemen at the national Capital, do not have the fidgets about the fog. Wait patiently nearly a year, as we are doing this way. The transit will surely be then. J. Y.

Roger A. Pryor on the Negro.

Hon. Roger A. Pryor, a member of Congress from Virginia in ante bellum times, and prominent among the pro-slavery members of the House, on Tuesday last in Brooklyn delivered a lecture on the "Present and Future of the Negro in the South," before the Long Island Historical Socity. The lecturer said that the fortunes of five million human beings, part of the population and political community of nation, could not but be matter for anxious deliberation to every thinking man. Our own welfare was intimately connected with that of the negro. If not by generous impulses, then by sordid self-interest; for just so sure as the negro was enlightened and morally elevated would he contribute to the good of the nation; and just so far as he was improvident and dwarfed in intellect would his influence be felt on the white race. The lecturer said there never was a race which owed less to the past than the negro of the South. The negro race, however, had maintained itself as no other race had ever done in a mighty conflict with the greater civilization of a ruling race. Thirty years' close observation of the negro had convinced the speaker that there was no deficiency on their part, physically, morally or intellectually, and that they were capable of attaining the highest civilization. He then spoke of their faithfulness and earnest religious spirit, and said it was true that there were some dark spots on the picture, but it must be borne in mind that while the virtues of the negro were his own, his vices were his heritage, and the former outnumbered the latter. The speaker gave interesting statistics to show what the negro was capable of doing, and what he had accomplished since emancipation, and said that a true idea of his condition could only be obtained by visiting among them, and comparing their present condition with their past. The prejudice of race and color against the negro entertained at the South, and also at the North, was yet to be overcome. It was seen in the church, theatre, hotel, and, said the speaker, even in the graveyard, for the bones of the negro may not rest in your beautiful cemetery. I have great hopes for the negro. To be sure, the system of slavery was not the best school in which to learn the science of government, but we have not yet heard that a negro Congressman was in any way implicated in the credit mobilier scandal; and I do not believe that the negro legislature of South Carolina was any more purchasable than the New York Assembly during the days of the Ring.

—A hatter in Terre Haute has a bundle of old unpaid bills hung up in his store labelled "The reason why I do not give credit."

—"I'm in such a quandary; for if I turn my back on Charley, he becomes offended at once; and, if I don't, he can't see my new buckle. What shall I do?"

—"Grandma, why don't you keep a servant any longer?" "Well, you see, child, I'm getting old now, and can't take care of one, as I used to, you know."

—Captain Jack's widows have shaken off their mourning, and now stand out arrayed in sixteen yards of red and orange flannel and number nine cavalry boots.

—The four hundred girls at Vassar College are obliged to rise at 5 o'clock in the morning, and are not allowed to have beaux except in the presence of three old women.

—The hard times also effect the Indians. One horse will now purchase two Apache women, and the owner of the women will throw in a dog or two rather than spoil a trade.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured a wide reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long-continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed those dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well-founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!

Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; everyone who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,

Woman in Sacred History,

is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the

make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $3 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N. H., and previously resided at Rochester, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking; so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, choklings and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six bottles. Cause of Catarrh, acute relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Instinct in Insects.

Ants and beavers lay up magazines.—Where do they get their knowledge that it will not be so easy to collect food in the rainy weather as it is in the summer? Men and women know these things because their grandpas and grandmamas have told them so; ants, hatched from the egg artificially, or birds hatched in this manner, have all this knowledge by intuition, without the smallest communication with any of their relations. Now observe what the solitary wasp does; she digs several holes in the sand, in each of which she deposits an egg, though she certainly knows not that an animal is deposited, and still less that this animal must be nourished with other animals. She collects a few green flies, rolls them up neatly in separate parcels, like Bologna sausages, and stuffs one parcel into each hole where an egg was deposited. When the wasp worm is hatched, it finds a store of provisions ready-made; and, what is most curious, the quantity allotted to each is exactly sufficient to support it till it attains the period of wasphood and can provide for itself. This instinct of the parent wasp is the more remarkable, as it does not feed upon flesh itself. Here the little creature has never seen its parent; for by the time it is born its parent is already eaten by sparrows; and yet, without the slightest education or previous experience, it does everything that its parent did before it. Now the objectors to the doctrine of instinct may say what they please, but young tailors have no intuitive mode of making pantaloons; nor a new-born mercer never measures diaper; nature teaches a cook's daughter nothing about muffins. All these things require with us seven years of apprenticeship; but insects are like Moliere's persons of quality, they know everything (Moliere says) without having learned anything.

The Tower of Babel was a pigmy to what a company of enterprising Philadelphia bridge builders propose to construct as a toy to grace the approaching centennial exhibition in that city. It is to be of wrought iron, 1000 feet in height, and beside it such structures as the dome of St. Peter's, the pyramids of Egypt and Bunker Hill Monument would be dwarfed into insignificance. The tower is to be circular in section, one hundred and fifty feet in diameter at the base, diminishing to thirty feet at the top. It is proposed to have spiral staircases winding around the centre tubs for those preferring to walk up; but elevators will be provided, which are calculated to ascend to the top in three minutes. The Scientific American says this is one of the greatest engineering projects of the age and it is in the hands of constructors capable of completing whatever they undertake.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, so easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the appetite, gives Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and carries "a thousand lilts" simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The sunken and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhoea, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, imparting strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron Constitution.

Thousands have been cheated by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidery, slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pic ures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood-cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding t a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The medal is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-SIXTH (219,756) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and adaptability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

SEC. 1. The occupants, or, if unoccupied, the owners, of all the buildings and lands situate within the city, shall keep the sidewalk adjoining their respective premises, in all cases where a sidewalk has been or may be constructed, free from snow, by causing the snow to be removed into the street and evenly spread, within six hours after the cessation of every fall thereof, or when the snow shall have blown or drifted upon the sidewalk by the wind. INK! INK! INK!
TO ALL THAT USE THE PEN!
WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK
is claimed to be far superior to any Ink ever manufactured; for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it grow thick in the bottle, as it contains no sugar or gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy a clear impression three months after a letter is written with it. It will not blot or blur, smut or rub off. This Ink is noted for its pen-preserving qualities. It needs no pen-wiper. It cleans the pen by enameling it with a thin bronze coating. Freezing does not injure this Ink. It dries quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any ink in the market. This Ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, and those who have tried it say they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN SEED ASH COAL,

LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be employed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.
MR. EDWARD De Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thoroughly practical knowledge, both of musical and mechanical instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.
As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, as competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders. D. H. MONTGOMERY.

Daily Chronicle.

American School for Sailors.

The Utica Herald thus relates the adventures of a young man from Rome, New York, named Staple: George F. Staple is a Rome boy. He has recently been undergoing some strange experiences, which show what great crimes are perpetrated in the metropolis under the very eyes of the police. Staple supports an aged mother in Rome. Some time ago he worked as a carpenter in New York city, and then returned home. In May, 1872, he returned to New York and tried to get work on the Brooklyn bridge. He failed at that, but obtained work at other places until last Christmas, when he turned his steps towards Rome, taking with him $300 for his mother. Again, in May, 1873, he went to New York and sought work. He failed to find it. For several days he walked from one carpenter shop to another, and asked for work. They had all the hands they could employ. Gloomy and disheartened he had about determined to give up his search for that day, when a well-dressed man tapped him on the shoulder and pleasantly inquired: "Would you like something to do, my man?"

"Yes, sir," replied the lad, "that is just what I have been looking for."

"Well, I think you will suit me. How would you like to go to San Francisco? I have just made a big contract to put up advertising for a patent medicine out there, and I want to get a smart young fellow to go with me."

"I should like to go, sir, if the wages are good; work seems pretty hard to get here this spring. What would you pay me, sir?"

"I will give you $25 per month and pay your expenses, so that you can save all your wages. The pay will be in gold, too, and you can have a nice little sum when we get through, and perhaps strike something even better out there, for there is plenty of money to be made there by a smart man. Will you go?"

"Yes, sir; when do you wish me to start?"

"We shall have to get off by Monday at the furthest (it was Friday), but may have to go by to-morrow night, for the firm I have contracted with are in a great hurry."

"Well, sir, I can be ready, though I should like to have time to go home and bid my mother good-by. But if I can't do that I can go over to Brooklyn, where I have been living, and get my clothes and meet you to-morrow."

"All right, but you had better come and get supper with me, as it is pretty near supper time, and we can talk it all over."

So the two went to take supper together. The man took Staple to what appeared to be a sailors' boarding house, and purported to be kept by Charles Gleason. Arriving, they proceeded at once to the wash-room where Staple took off his hat and coat to take a thorough wash before taking his supper. When he turned for his hat and coat they had disappeared, and the stranger, who name appeared to have been Gleason, furnished him with a pea jacket, which he said Staple must wear while his own clothes were being cleaned. Supper over, a lively scene ensues. Gleason commences the conversation:

"Now, I guess we had better go down and see the captain, and you must tell him that you are a sailor and have long been going to sea for four years, and then you will get $50 advance."

"But I can't tell him that. I have never been to sea in my life."

"D—— your soul, I'll make you a sailor," said Gleason, clenching his fists and advancing to the boy. "You ——, you come down to my house and eat my supper, and tell me you have never been to sea."

"But I never have been to sea."

"Hear me!" thundered the man. "You've been to sea four years."

"But I can't ——"

"D'ye hear me?" shouted he again, hitting the boy a heavy blow with his right hand, on the side of the head. "You've been to sea four years, when the captain asks you!" striking him another heavy blow with his left hand. "Now, you remember when the captain asks you, that you have been to sea four years, or I will knock the d—— head off of you; do you hear?"

"Yes, sir," said the boy, thoroughly frightened, and feeling that he could have no chance for escape until he got out of the house.

They then emerged to the street. Staple threatened to shout for a policeman. He was comforted by the assurance that if he did so he would have his teeth knocked down his throat by Gleason, that the runner who had taken his left hand would kick him to pieces, that they would then summon the policeman themselves and give him two dollars to club a very unmentionable piece out of him. So when they passed a policeman, Staple did not say a word. His captors, however, exchanged pleasant nods with the star. They then took him to a shipping office. It was not that of the United States, but an outside concern. The captain of the Baltic, on which vessel they proposed to ship him, rejected the boy because he was too small. Staple attempted to speak while at the office, but the repetition of the former threat silenced him, and he was taken back to the boarding house.

Arrived at the house again, he was taken to a small room at one end, where there was a little cot, and ordered to go to bed, being admonished that if he dared to try to escape during the night it would be at the peril of his life. Left in the darkness, the boy cautiously felt the floor and the bed, for he had heard there were places in New York where they dropped men through traps; and then, finding nothing that seemed like a trap, he sat down on the bed and abandoned himself to his thoughts. He knew he was in the hands of men who would not hesitate to murder him, but the thought of his aged mother in Rome dependent on his support, nerved his arm, and about four or five o'clock in the morning he succeeded in picking the lock of his door. Slowly and cautiously he opened it, but as slowly and cautiously an immense bloodhound, which had been placed on guard at the door, raised himself to his feet and gathered himself up with a growl to make a spring upon his victim. Reluctantly he gave up the attempt to escape and threw himself back on his bed.

At length the morning came. He was furnished with breakfast and kept a close prisoner during the day. In the evening the captain of the Baltic sent up word that if Gleason had not done better he would take the man who had been rejected the evening previous. Then he was furnished with a sea outfit. The pea-jacket he had been wearing was of some little use, so from a box of old clothes a long swallow-tailed coat, or what was left of what had once been the property of some shanghied hammer, was selected, and he was made to exchange. This, with an old quilt, two flimsy check shirts, three clay pipes, a pound of plug tobacco and a sheath knife and belt, constituted the outfit with which he was to be sent to round Cape Horn in the dead of the southern winter. Then Staple was again taken down to the shipping office, as on the night before, the landlord on one side and the runner on the other. He was marched up to the desk and ordered to sign a piece of paper; at the same time he was cuffed under the jaw and threatened with death if he did not. Staple signed the paper. Then he was hurried down to the wharf by a drunken man. He asked about the $50 which had been promised him the day before, and was told that he would get it on shipboard.

"Take your dunnage into the starboard forecastle," said the man whom he afterwards found was the mate.

The boy started off toward the cabin.

"Where are you going?" shouted a man somewhat in liquor, who confronted him, and proved to be the boatswain.

"I was just going back there, sir. Are you the captain?"

"Going back there, you damned fool?" half laughed, half roared the boatswain, hauling off and knocking him down with a blow of his fist. "You're a pretty specimen to come on board a ship. Go forward there, or I'll kick you forward."

So Staple went forward. At the forecastle he found a crew who had been pressed in much the same way that he had himself. He tackled the mate and asked permission to go ashore. The mate, who seemed to be a kindly man, said he could do nothing for him. He said that fifty dollars had been paid for him, men were scarce, and he must stay. At night the watchman aboard ship found him crying on the forecastle, and took a letter to his mother, which he promised to mail for him. The letter never reached its destination.

The captain and pilot came aboard, the tug got out the hawser and the Baltic was towed out to sea. The boy's last hope failed him, and he went to work as faithfully as his ignorance of a ship and his sea-sickness would permit him. He was kindly treated, but on arrival at San Francisco made a complaint which embodied substantially the foregoing facts.

The national House of Representatives has passed a bill repealing the bankrupt act.

Col. Frederick Dent, father-in-law of President Grant, died Monday night, aged 88 years.

The Treasurer of Chicago, David A. Gage, is $130,000 short.

Fifteen lbs. of dried apples is the minimum charge of an Iowa editor for a first-class marriage notice. One with poetry costs more.

It is stated that Mr. Williams, now nominated for the Chief Justiceship, while in the Senate from Oregon, was the author of all the reconstruction bills that ever became laws; was the author of the civil rights law and of the law creating the freedmen's bureau.

The Cincinnati Times wickedly says: Plymouth Church still has a Bowen sticking in its throat.

A bill has been introduced in the U. S. Senate, authorizing the establishing of floating marine schools in each port, and a detail of thirty naval officers as instructors. It was referred to the naval committee.

An interesting discussion in the Senate, Monday, developed the fact that some $30,000,000 could be saved by reducing the estimates of the Departments. The propositions to renew the income tax and the taxes on tea and coffee are not received with favor. Reduction of expenses and a slight increase in taxation will doubtless result.

The report of the accountant who has been investigating the frauds on the Brooklyn city treasury shows that the deficit amounts to $1,010,213.

Ex-Empress Eugenie is deeply affected at the verdict and sentence in the case of Bazaine. Her agitation is so great that she has been compelled to postpone the visit she was about to make Queen Victoria.

State News.

Noah Davis, the judge who sat on the Stokes and Tweed cases, was born in Haverhill, this State, Sept. 10, 1818.

A honey bee stung Mrs. George W. Howard of Stratford on the lip while down cellar eating an apple recently. Her face assumed monstrous proportions, and erysipelas set in.

The name of Hon. Jacob H. Ela, the honest Fifth Auditor of the U. S. Treasury, is prominently used in connection with the republican gubernatorial candidacy. Mr. Ela, is too well situated, we are quite sure, to desire the nomination, but should the necessity demand, is just the man to put away selfish considerations for the salvation of the party which has so frequently honored him. Of his election, there could be no reasonable doubt, could he be induced to accept. It is a well deserved compliment that after representing his constituency in various capacities, Auditor Ela is sought for as one of the most available men in the republican ranks to unite conflicting interests and bring to the republican State ticket the support of an element which might otherwise be lost to it.

Hon. S. W. Hale of Keene, who has been considered one of the most prominent candidates for republican nomination for Governor, has published a card announcing it as his desire that his name should not be used for the candidacy.

A fire broke out in the stable of the Elm House at Farmington, Monday evening, and burnt that, and the shoe manufactory of Charles W. Thurston, adjoining. Loss about $3000. The contents of the stable were saved, but the furniture of the hotel was badly damaged by being removed.

Boston Correspondence.

BOSTON, Dec. 15, 1873.

To the uninitiated, "Old Probabilities" seems rather mixed; at least, the weather is hardly such as we expect at this season, and if those in authority cannot give us more frost and less slush in December the "Hub-ites" will desire to have some word in the matter. All around we hear of sleighing: in our own burg the slaying is terrible, consumption, croup, pneumonia, congestion of lungs, &c., &c. The ladies find such walking a great disadvantage, although it offers opportunity for a display of otherwise unseasonable goods. The National game and the champions receive much credit for the number of "Red Stockings" on our street, but most of these also wear a red pet balmoral, in connection with their hosiery.

The crowd in the city, making holiday purchases, seems larger than ever. A favorite place for all literary people, is the "Archway Bookstore" of A. W. Lovering, under the Marlboro' Hotel, Washington street. "Al" is as widely known as any man in New England, and may always be depended upon for fair dealing, while his stock is more comprehensive than any other we know of, and we have visited the leading dealers from the extreme northeast to the far south. His stand is worth an inspection from every book lover.

The Eastern Railroad hold high place in the good graces of travelers, and Bostonians are proud of their Eastern connections by rail. "Twere vain to tell thee all I feel," or all I hear regarding this admirably equipped road: their improvements and steady efforts for safety and accommodation of patrons are so numerous and persistent as to need a better correspondent than I. Yet with all their wide-reaching branches and connections; with all their palace cars and extra local accommodations; with all their special freights and sumptuous rolling-stock for all passage trains, the road is brought to curtail for the while in many lines of expense. Trains have been withdrawn in some instances, and conductors now run as high as 1100 miles per week in others, to supply omissions caused by such withdrawals. The standing of the Eastern in financial circles speaks loudly in favor of a Railroad that in such times as the present can make extensive new connections and extensions and hold its place in public confidence. So much for a good management and board of directors, backed by a liberal policy toward the public.

The bad weather of the past week has told heavily against the business of our large retail dealers, but every bright day sees our principal streets crowded, and many think the general holiday trade will approximate in amount to the best years of the past. High-cost goods sell to nearly as great an extent as ever, and thousands who never came before seek to secure "bargains."

That favorite annual "The Ladies' Almanac," for 1874, is already out, for, I don't know, the how-manyeth time. A half dollar to your bookseller, or to Geo. A. Coolidge, 44 Temple Place, Boston, will secure this little gem.

As a granger, I must not omit to notice an article, "just the cheese," No. 61 Quincy Market. It weighs 4081 pounds and will be cut next Saturday. 'Twas born Ohio.

Disasters by sea and land, homicides, parricides, suicides, and the like are becoming sadly common; yet most who have traversed the mighty deep, passing through sunshine and shadow, fog and storm, are interested in the experience of others. Mr. Chas. A. Berglund, the well-known Swedish Agent, for this city, informed me that on his last trip across the ocean, [the sixth, by the way, for the present year,] at 2 P. M. in a heavy fog, in the German Ocean, a narrow escape occurred to a heavily laden steamer. A ship under full sail was sighted by the officer in charge of the deck in season to change the direction of the steamship, but not so soon as to avoid the smashing of the boat at the stern davits of the steamer by the passing ship. Any one who wishes to moralize on "the dangers of the sea" is welcome to this item, as I thing it has never before been published. H.

Where the Rich Men Will Come From.

[Boston Traveller.]

What becomes of the sons of our great men, is a question that is frequently asked, and as frequently left unanswered. The intellectual powers of the father, if predominant, seldom descend to the son. In a certain sense this rule holds true with respect to the ability to acquire and retain riches. If the father possess this in a remarkable degree, the son, in nine cases out of ten is a spendthrift. Examples of this are not wanting. The descendants of the men who two or three generations ago rolled in opulence hold clerkships or other subordinate positions. Wealth, influence and ability in some families descend from father to son; but these are isolated cases and as exceptions, only prove the truth of the rule. Since they are so seldom retained in one family for any great length of time, the query, Where our rich men of the future will come from? naturally suggests itself. They do come to the surface, and, gradually unfolding those powers which enable them to manage vast enterprises, control millions, and wield a mighty influence, display little of that innate power, the hidden spring of their success. The result is not a freak of fortune; they are not kicked into good luck. Their success is merely the result of long and laborious years, a right appreciation of business and a persistent, devoted application to its details. Wealthy young men begin life just where their fathers left off, and of course end where their fathers began, i. e., the little end of the horn. Our future rich men are to-day peddling fish in the streets, selling oranges or papers on the sidewalk, or engaged in some remunerative employment, the wages for which are each week divided between current expenses and the savings bank, the latter generally getting the lion's share. A case in point is that of a candy man who owns a little stand on a street corner, and a marble block at the south end, or a little boot black on State street, who has $600 in one of the city savings banks. Business men appreciate the tact displayed by this boy, and he has a long list of regular customers, bringing him a weekly income of from $16 to $20. Another case is that of a little match merchant who frequently visits State street and vicinity, and salutes you with, "Buy some parlor matches, cap'n?" He is a bright, active, intelligent little fellow, with a cheery voice, betraying the metropolitan accent, and large black eyes, that always flash when he sees a chance to make a dime. His history is as interesting as it is brief. He formerly lived in New York, where he was thrown upon his resources, and formed the laudable determination to support himself, and not, like others, become a drone. Borrowing twenty five dollars from a friend, he invested the entire amount in matches, and disposing of his stock at a fair profit, was soon enabled to pay the debt, and begin business on the profits. Appreciating money at its proper value and knowing from intuition what it has taken others years to learn, he began right, banked every dollar he could spare, and now, although he has been in business only a very short time, has $300 in the bank, a stock of matches worth $75, pays $4 per week for board, current expenses, and constantly adds to his fund in the bank. His enterprise, keen business tact and foresight, when his age is considered, are simply wonderful, and the discernment and push already shown by this boy will in part answer the question, Where are the rich men of the future coming from?

A Foe of Her Sex.

A Massachusetts woman, it is said, has lately patented a self-fastening button, which needs no button-hole, which holds as fast as the most desperate person can desire and which yet can be unfastened by a simple touch. The time will come when that unhappy, too ingenious woman will be denounced as one of the worst foes of her sex who has ever existed. Nothing is a greater provocation to connubial ideas in the mind of a forlorn bachelor than the difficulties which he has with his apparel on the subject of buttons. How these useful fastenings leave his wristbands and collars, and vests and pantaloons every man who has been single can sadly tell, and how he himself has made absurd attempts to repair the damage by sewing on buttons himself he would be ashamed to tell. Despair at inability to conquer this annoyance of single life has made many a man double, reduced the wild bachelor to the discipline of a home, taught him his duties as a citizen, and made him in time respected as a husband and father. And this Massachusetts woman, who undertakes to emancipate the male sex from the social influence of buttons, will become, after years, a scorn and byword to her sex, especially among single sisters.

Business Notices.

Gov. Thos. E. Bramlette, of Louisville, Ky., has given three years to the building up of a Public Library in Louisville, which he intends shall be the best in the country. He is doing it by a series of Gift Concerts, the profits of which go to the Library. The third drawing distributed $500,000, and the fourth, which has just been postponed to March 31st, distributes $1,500,000. Gov. Bramlette has almost doubled the business of the Louisville post-office. Eighteen clerks are kept busy twelve hours each day sending off circulars in answer to inquiries for tickets.

Most all pills in the market, and those styled vegetable, are not only large, nauseous griping and difficult to swallow, but they contain Mercury, besides Aloes, Gamboge, and other injurious drastics. These are old medicines, and used before medical science developed better, now supplanted by much more pleasant but effectual cathartics. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets embody the latest and best cathartic properties in a concentrated, yet mild and searching form, and are never taken with disappointment. Wholly vegetable, sugar-coated, small, neat and in delicate glass vials. Sold at 25 cents, by Druggists. 706

Quack Medicines.—We never puff, but ANAKESIS, the great western pile remedy, has cured thousands, in the worst, obstinate, and long standing cases others have failed. It is the discovery of DR. SILSBEE, an eminent western physician, and has been endorsed by medical men of all schools. It is a simple medicated suppository, acts as an instrument, poultice and medicine, affords instant relief from pain, and is pronounced an infallible cure.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. ANAKESIS Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

The Cook-room of the Body.

The food that has been cooked in the kitchen must be recooked in the stomach before it can be applied to the nourishment of the body. As a means of facilitating this second cooking, in cases where the process is slowly and imperfectly performed, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is invaluable. It promotes the generation of heat in the living laboratory in which the crude materials for building up and recruiting the human frame are turned into convertible aliment. But this is not all. It acts beneficially upon the cellular membrane which secrete the gastric juice, upon the liver, which produces bile, a natural laxative, the bile, upon the vena is which receive the digested food, and upon the absorbents which connect the digestive organs with the channels of circulation. If any portion of this complex machinery is out of order the Bitters will set it right, thus promoting vigorous digestion, healthy secretion, and the production of pure, rich, life-sustaining blood.

Two guardians of the peace were attracted by the cry "watch" and exclamations of "he.p" as they were travelling their beat on Water street about midnight of Saturday. They found several men engaged in a rough and tumble fight, one lying on the ground groaning and declaring that he had been badly cut. As he said he could not move, they bore him on their shoulders to the station house, where he informed them that he was not hurt. The pall-bearers do not like any refe ence made to the subject in conversation.

The Barnabee concert, being the fourth entertainment of the lyceum course, brought out an old-time audience, Tuesday evening, the weather being propitious. Mrs. Smith sang sweetly and Miss Clark proved herself a valuable acquisition to the quartet. Mr. Winch sang with his accustomed ease and pleasantness, and Mr. Barnabee indulged the good-hundred audience with some very fine singing as well as his usual melange of mirth-provoking characterizations. Miss Persis Bell made her second appearance here and delighted all who heard her violin performances.

Death of Captain Briard.

[Madison, Wis., State Journal.]

Captain Wm. A. Briard, of this city, died at the Pulaski House, Savannah, Dec. 10. The deceased was born in Portsmouth, N. H., February 6, 1797. He was captain of a merchant vessel for thirty-nine years. He settled in Madison over sixteen years ago, and was highly esteemed. He was the father of Mrs. James Hill, of this city, and Mr. Hill and son are now on their way to Savannah. The remains are to be taken to Portsmouth, N. H., and will find a final resting-place beside his wife, who died eight days previous, of the same disease, (pneumonia,) in the same house where he breathed his last. He was a man of high character and exemplary life, a most devout member of the Episcopal Church, and his death will be sincerely mourned by a wide circle of friends.

[Harp r's Bazar.]

The collection of information from a number of army correspondents stationed at different points made it necessary for the leading newspapers to have offices or "news bureaus" at Washington, which have since been kept up, often at a large expensive. A number of these offices are located on Fourteenth Street, opposite Willard's Hotel, and the locality has been christened "Newspaper Row." A few correspondents are located elsewhere, and some of them, who represent half a dozen or more journals, find it difficult to secure room on the exterior walls of their modest quarters for the pretentious signs which have been sent to them by their different employers, each one of whom boasts in his paper of "our own correspondents," although he only pays for a small fraction of that individual's services.

The Washington offices of the more important newspapers in distant cities have each its suit of apartments, comprising ante-room, reading-room, and reporter's room, beyond which is the carefully guarded "sanctum sanctorum" of the chief correspondent, with a trusty janitor as his bodyguard. In this retreat any one who has information to communicate can be kept securely from interlopers until he has been "pumped" dry of all that he may know or surmise.

A Washington chief correspondent is expected to be omnipresent himself, besides keeping his subordinates at work. He must daily visit the White House, haunt the departments, call at the hotels, drop in upon communicative Congressmen at their rooms, dine with diplomats, chat with promenaders on the Avenue, listen to the conversation of those who may be his fellow-passengers in the street cars—in short, he must ever be on the qui vive for "items" on week-days, Sundays, and holidays.

Then there are the proceedings at the Capitol, where the chief correspondents have to keep the run of business before the different committees, look out for executive communications and nominations, and occupy their alloted seats in the reporters' galleries of the Senate or the House whenever any question of public interest is up. At other times they are generally to be seen in the ante-rooms to the reporters' galleries, where they hold informal sessions of their own, often indulging in comments on what is going on in the halls near by in a manner not overcomplimentary to these honorable Senators and Representatives who are there engaged in legislation. But let a vote of any importance be taken, a report of interest be made, or any thing else happen of value as "news," and the correspondents are at once at work, hastening to "make a note of it," and then to start with the most undignified speed for the nearest telegraphic operator.

The Arapiles.

The New York Graphic has the following: "The officers and crew of the Arapiles deserve sympathy. Just as the vessel was ready to leave the dry-dock a coal barge sunk in front of it and thus blocked up the way. That the barge should have sunk just in that place, and just at that precise time when the Spaniard was about to go to sea, was certainly an extraordinary coincidence—about as extraordinary, indeed, as that which characterized the upsetting of Mr. Weller's conchful of voters just before election. Nevertheless it is not strange that the Spanish officers are excited, since they cannot go to sea until the barge is raised. They spend their time leaning over the bows of their frigate and hurling strange and unintelligible oaths at the workmen engaged in the attempted removal of the barge. Even this, however, fails to relieve their minds, for they insist that, while there are pumps in the Navy Yard which could raise the sunken barge in a few hours the pump now used for that purpose cannot pump the water out as fast as it runs in. Every humane man will sympathize with the unfortunate Spaniards, and hope that the Arapiles will be able to put to sea by the time that our difficulty with Spain is over. Still, it is very sad to find that our Spanish guests actually believe that the sinking of the barge was not an accident. Such want of faith in human nature is very shocking to the sensitive mind."

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!

Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; everyone who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,

Woman in Sacred History,

is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources. ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the

make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $3 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choakings, Strangings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.: I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, choakings and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Cultivation of Jute in the South.

[Harper's Magazine.]

Attempts have been made in various sections of the South, and with gratifying success, to introduce the cultivation of the jute plant—in Texas, Louisiana, and South Carolina. In India the cultivation of the jute is fast gaining on that of cotton, and the annual export of it from India to Europe and America bids fair to equal if not exceed the export of cotton. Jute is the cheapest fibre produced, and on that account has been largely used as a substitute. In India the comparative yields as contrasted with cotton on the same field is as 552 pounds to 69, and it is much easier cultivated. Even its stems are useful, resembling willow branches, and fit for basket-work. The export of this cheap substitute for cotton from India in 1870 was 300,000,000 pounds; in 1871, 450,000,000—an increase in a year of fifty per cent. In 1872 it is estimated an equal increase took place, which would equalize it with the cotton product of India. The value of the imports of this article into the United States in 1871 reached nearly five and a half millions of dollars. This product is used to make the cotton bagging, such large quantities of which are now bought at the South, and it is also used in carpets and other fabrics as a substitute for wool, cotton, and flax.

The cost of its production in India is one-eighth that of cotton, while it brings one-fourth of the price. It sells now in Boston at seven cents per pound. If it can be brought from India at that rate, it certainly would not cost more than half that to raise it at the South. The simple machinery for spinning and weaving hemp used in Kentucky may be applied to this. The Agricultural Bureau at Washington has called the attention of Southern planters to this culture, sent seeds, and detailed the results of the experiment. "Its manufacture," says the report, "requires little capital, skill, or machinery. The Indian widow still sits upon the ash heap and weaves the sackcloth largely used in America to envelop both grain and cotton." The reports made by Southern experimenters are very encouraging, and it is probable a few years more will make jute an article of large production, as it already is of large consumption, in the Southern country.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an oleaginous food, easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing behind to ferment.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Carbuncles, Eruptions, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
No. 70 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the prudent matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pic ures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes for TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14 x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos Free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Thus, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

INK! INK! INK!
TO ALL THAT USE THE PEN!
WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK
is claimed to be far superior to any Ink ever manufactured, for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it grow thick in the bottle, as it has no sugar or gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy a clear impression three months after a letter is written with it. It will not blot or smut or rub off. This Ink is noted for its pen-preserving qualities. It needs no pen-wiper. It cleans the pen by enameling it with a thin bronze coating. Freezing does not injure this Ink. It dries quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any Ink in the market. This Ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, and those who have tried it say they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.
MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for selling, repairing and regulating Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, 28 Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and he far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.
As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders. D. H. MONTGOMERY.

Daily Chronicle.

The Boston "Tea Party" of December 16th, 1773.

At Griffin's wharf, in the good old city of Boston, on the 16th day of December, 1773, lay three ships, the brig "Beaver," the "Eleanor," and the "Dartmouth." The cargo of each ship was tea. This tea, with which the Indiamen came laden, was hateful to the inhabitants of Boston. Was it because they did not like tea? O no! Not by any means. If any poor soul on the face of the earth needed the comforting influence of tea, then did the poor colonists of bleak, raw New England need it. The tea was hateful to them because of the heavy tax which England placed upon it. A number of ships had been sent back to the "mother country" because the people of the colony would have none of the fragrant Hyson and Congou.

A meeting of the indignant men of Boston was held in Faneuil Hall to determine ways and means of getting rid of the three obnoxious Indiamen. The meeting increased so rapidly that Faneuil Hall could not hold the members of it, and Josiah Quincy, Jr., proposed that it should be held in the old South church. As a final effort, a committee was sent to appeal once more to Governor Hutchinson to send off the ships, and meanwhile Mr. Quincy undertook to keep the men and boys quiet by making a good long speech to them in the church. Governor Hutchinson refused to dismiss the tea-laden vessels, but the poor fellow himself was so greatly alarmed soon after the committee left by the rumor that a crowd of persons was approaching his house that he ran away with his face only half shaven across the fields, and hid himself until the excitement was past.

The members of the committee who had made the demand upon Governor Hutchinson, and been so decidedly refused, got back to the old South church about sunset.

The instant the committee reported that the governor refused to send the ships away, a wild, Indian yell arose upon the air and penetrated the old South church. A band of men disguised as Mohawks filled the street. The citizens rushed from the church to behold the Indians, blanketed, painted, brandishing hatchets, and flying down Milk street to the wharf where the three Indiamen lay.

Joseph Lovering, a boy of twelve years old, held the candle in a carpenter's shop while the men disguised their white faces and covered their fine coats and dainty ruffles with blankets. The men in charge of the ships obeyed the orders of the Mohawks for the "keys, candles, and matches." They rushed into the hold of the Dartmouth, and in no time at all had one hundred and fourteen chests of tea on her deck.

After the Dartmouth was unloaded, the Indians rushed upon the Eleanor and the brig Beaver, and going down into their holds took out every chest of tea, three hundred and forty-two in all, and threw every one into the waters of the harbor. The tide was low, and the crowd of "apprentice" boys which had followed the Mohawks did what it could to help on the work of destruction by jumping into the mud and breaking the chests still more so that not a bound of the tea escaped.

Sixty-five names are left upon record of persons who helped to make a tea-pot out of Boston harbor. An English fleet lay in the roads, and in the castle were many English soldiers, but the band of Mohawks was not disturbed in its work.

Thomas Melvin, who was of the tea-party, spilled some of the tea into his shoes, and when he reached home his wife gathered it up and put it into a bottle, but so many persons came to see it that either they looked it away or stole it away, for it was found necessary to seal the bottle in order to preserve it. This bottle of tea is now owned by Lemuel Shaw, of Boston, and in the tea-party held on the 16th of this December (just one hundred years since the harbor tea-party), in Faneuil Hall, it appeared upon the scene.

One poor fellow, John Crane, while in the hold of one of the ships, got so badly hurt by the falling of a tea chest from the deck upon him, that his friends, believing him dead, hastily hid him away under a pile of shavings. Going to the place after the work was done, great was their surprise to find him alive.

Howes tells the following story: "One Captain O'Conner, whom I well knew, came on board one of the ships for the purpose of secreting some of the tea that he might carry it away with him, and when he supposed that he was not noticed filled his pockets and also the lining of his coat. But I had detected him, and gave information to the captain of what he was doing. We were ordered to take him into custody, and just as he was stepping from the vessel, I seized him by the skirt of his coat, and in attempting to pull him back I tore it off; but in springing forward by a rapid effort he made his escape. He had, however, to run the gauntlet of the crowd upon the wharf, each one as he passed giving him a kick or a stroke. The next day we nailed the skirt of his coat, which I had pulled off, to the whipping-post in Charlestown, the place of his residence, with a label on it."

And here is the lament of one woman over her empty tea-urn:

"Farewell the tea-board with its gaudy equipage
Of cups and saucers, cream-boat, sugar-tongs;
The pretty tea chest also lately stored
With Hyson, Congou, and best double fine.
Full many a joyous moment have I sat by yo,
Hearing the girls tattle, and the old maids talk scandal.
And the sprightly coxcomb laugh at—may be—nothing,
Though now detestable
Because I am taught (and I believe it true)
It's use will fasten slavish chains upon my country,
To reign triumphant in America."

Daily Chronicle.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1873.

Congress.

In the House, Tuesday, Mr. Hale of Maine, from the select committee on salaries, reported back a bill, the first section of which repeals all the provisions of the act of March 3, 1873, which increase the salary or compensation of senators, representatives and delegates in Congress, or of any officer or employe of the government, except so far as relates to the judges of the Supreme Court, and to the President of the United States during his present term of office. The second section provides that hereafter the compensation of senators, representatives and delegates in Congress shall be at the rate of $5500 per annum, and this shall be in lieu of all allowance except actual and necessary individual travelling expenses coming to and returning from the capital once every session, which shall be paid to every senator, representative and delegate on the same being certified by him to the proper accounting officer; and the salary and compensation of officers and employes of the government, subject to the exceptions named in section one, shall hereafter be the same as they were prior to the passage of the act of 1873. The third section requires the Secretary of the Treasury to cover into the Treasury all sums that may remain undrawn or that have been received as increased compensation, which shall or may have come into his possession by the return thereof.

Mr. Hale stated how the committee had arrived at the figures of $5500. The aggregate mileage of both houses of the last Congress was $180,824, making a yearly average of $416 80 for each member. To that was to be added the allowance for stationery, $125. That would make the salary and allowance $5541 80. The committee had therefore fixed the total amount at $5500.

Mr. Kasson of Iowa, a member of the committee, offered an amendment providing that senators, representatives and delegates of the Forty-third Congress who received compensation since the 4th of March, 1873, in accordance with the act of 1873, shall hereafter be paid only such equal monthly instalments as shall in the aggregate make their compensation for the whole Congress equal to the amount fixed in this law.

Mr. Butler of Massachusetts asked to offer an amendment to Mr. Kasson's providing further that members of any Congress, who received back pay under acts passed at that Congress, shall have the amount of such back pay deducted from the amount due them for this Congress. [General laughter and hand-clapping all over the house.]

Mr. Kasson refused to withdraw the previous question and allow Mr. Butler's proposition to be offered. The house, however, refused to second the previous question, and then Mr. Butler offered his amendment to Mr. Kasson's amendment. Pending the vote on Mr. Butler's proposition a motion to adjourn was made and rejected. Yeas, 77; nays, 184.

Mr. Hale of Maine expressed his belief that Mr. Butler's amendment was offered for the purpose of weighing down the bill and killing it.

Mr. Butler denied it and did not believe Mr. Hale believed it.

A question was taken on Mr. Butler's amendment and was rejected,—yeas, 121; nays, 129.

After another motion to adjourn was defeated the house adopted Mr. Kasson's amendment, making the reduction of members' salaries take effect from the 4th of March, 1873. Yeas, 172; nays, 77.

Without further progress the house adjourned.

An Advent Elder has been fined $50 and costs at Great Falls for selling cider. The cause of his selling it is in dispute, but that it was sold was proved.

The bell recently hung in the belfry of the Congregational church in South Seabrook was imported from Sheffield, England, by Messrs. Naylor & Co. of Boston, and weighs 999 pounds, costing with the hangings $350. The material is cast steel, the tone is very rich and heavy, and it is distinctly heard five miles away.

The Nashua Telegraph editor thinks Judge Hiram R. Roberts, of Rollinsford, is to be the democratic nominee for Governor.

The Work of Retrenchment.

The Boston Advertiser's Washington special says:

Following in the line of the resolutions adopted in the house yesterday from the committee on ways and means, on motion of Mr. Willard of Vermont, the committee on the civil service was instructed to investigate and report upon means of securing greater economy in the civil service. It is believed by many members that the present force employed in the various branches of the government service is much greater than is really needed to transact the public business efficiently. Some place the excess as high as one-third of the whole number employed. The resolution contemplates a full investigation of this subject. It is held by many that the hours of work in the departments here, and in government offices everywhere, should be increased at least by one, which would make it possible to reduce the number of employes materially. The organization of some of the departments is much more cumbersome than is needed, and it is proposed to effect a great saving by changing this condition where it exists. It is also proposed to correct a practice which yearly takes large sums from the Treasury, by prohibiting the payment of any additional sum, under any name, to those whose compensation is fixed by law. There are large numbers of public officers throughout the country, particularly custom houses at minor ports, where the force is two or three times what it needs to be. Each navy yard is nearly a duplicate of the navy department itself, being organized into bureaus, each with clerks of its own, and so the force at each yard is three or four times what it needs be. This will be likely to receive close attention. If Mr. Willard succeeds in interesting his committee, the work he performs will play no small part in securing the reduction of expenses now so generally desired.

Mr. Holman of Indiana has taken it upon himself to object to the consideration of all that class of bills involving claims which it has been the custom to try and pass immediately after reading the journal. In the confusion which is general at that time, many claims of a large amount in times past have slipped through almost unnoticed. Mr. Holman insists daily that these go on the calendar and be sent to the committee of the whole. This places them where a single objection will prevent action and insure deliberate consideration. It is the opinion of old members that such a course, if continued by Mr. Holman and those who choose to assist him, will save at least a million dollars a year.

The Postmaster-General was for a short time before the appropriation committee today. He was disposed to do all in his power to reduce the estimates. He had cut down the estimates of his bureau officers very largely before presenting them, He thinks the salaries of postmasters are too large, and is willing to return to the old method of fixing the compensation upon the basis of actual business at each office for the entire year.

The most active member of the house committee on commerce is authority for the statement that in his opinion three millions is all that is necessary to do all that is actually required to be done for rivers and harbors for next year. This is two and a half millions less than the last appropriation, and about a million more than the appropriation committee intends to recommend.

The Veterans of the House of Representatives.

The House is always unwieldy, and when a Representative rises only himself is thought of. There are not a few of the old faces missed. The granite, stupid, expressionless countenance of Oakes Ames no longer stares vacantly around. The acute, narrow, peevish, yet cultivated features of Brooks have passed from view. The rabbi beard of Farnsworth did not to-day suggest a snow-drift flung against the gallery wall, under which he always sat. Hard-favored, bronze-smitten Michael Kerr, the most logical Democrat in Congress for ten years, is here no more, but is making money for himself out of a people for whom he saved money by the hundreds of thousands of dollars as a law-maker. Slocum, to whom premature grayness brought the specular distinction of an old young man, is much missed by all the members, but a Brooklynite's idea of home is satisfied when he sees Schumaker back in his old place, the best acquainted man in the House, and when he thinks he sees William C. De Witt, and finds it to be his brother David M. Though a number are gone—among them the billious, sacerdotal, intense Bingham—yet not a few of the old guard remain. Schoolmaster Dawes, now the father of the House, is as superfluously as serious as ever. Butler—his dumpling head eccentrically holed for eyes—bowls along the aisles or spreads himself on two chairs as offensively satisfactory as ever. The conscientious, cultivated, chastened Garfield retains his place in the centre of the right, and is good for much honest service yet. Cadaverous, sepulchral, irregular Kelley raises his small head as defiantly as ever under his thicket of Solferino hair. Massachusetts Hopper still resembles Ald. Richardson, minus forty pounds and the smile, which is child-like and bland. The attenuated Maynard, swarth, agile, courteous, quick as a cat, is for two years more to represent the minority party in Tennessee by virtue of the foolish division of the democracy of that State. Saucy Sam. Cox bustles and scintillates as of old, and kindly introduces the stately Tremaine to the hundreds of members who want personally to meet and thank the man who prosecuted Tweed behind iron bars. Gen. Hawley's bushy head sets off the common-place polls contiguous to him.

His hair is as rebellious as ever, and so is his air. He intends to scold his party into civil service reform, or he intends to leave it. The judicial Poland of Vermont, walks, as of old, his hands behind his back, and himself dressed in the immemorial blue coat, white vest, and standing collar, suggesting not the man who drove so remorselessly at Ames and Brooks, but a fine old gentleman who is ready to be framed and take his place in a gallery as an antique portrait.

So much for the old members. The formal proceedings at the opening were punctuated by an incident which brought several new members to the front. That surprised and good boy Mr. Blaine, who seemed overwhelmed at his unexpected reelection, swore the members in.

Imaginative Medicine.

The earth-bath once had an amazing run. About a century ago a London empiric opened a "Temple of Health" in Pall Mall, where he gave lectures on health at an extravagant charge of two guineas for admission, which fee many wealthy simpletons were willing to pay. Among other attractions, he enlisted the services of a beautiful woman, said to have been that equivocal person who afterwards became Lady Hamilton. Many kinds of mountebank fraud were exhibited at this place, the last of which was earth-bathing. He and the goddess of health immersed themselves to the chin in warm earth, he with his hair full-dressed, and powdered, she with the fashionable coiffure. How many dupes honestly believed in their own cure by such means, history has not recorded, but the admission to the "Temple" gradually fell from two guineas to one shilling, and the earth-bath died out—not, however, before the "lady" had run much chance of ruining her health by this peculiar kind of bathing.

The toad has had its day of importance in the minds of those who look for specifics against diseases; and so has the toad-stone, which was described by Joannie Baillie, in a letter to Sir Walter Scott, as "a celebrated amulet, which was never lent to any one unless upon a bond for a thousand marks for its being safely restored. It was sovereign for protecting new-born children and their mothers from the powers of the fairies, and has been repeatedly borrowed from my mother for this purpose." The amulet was described as being a convex circular stone, rather less than three-quarters of an inch in diameter, semi-transparent, dark grey, and apparently silicious composition. It was set in a massive silver thumb-ring. Besides its virtues as a charm for keeping off wicked fairies, this toad-stone was believed to be a specific against diseases of the kidneys. It was immersed in a cup of water, and the water then quaffed off.

Fish charms have been met with among many nations. The fish called the bullhead is used by some of the Russian peasants as a charm against fever. Again, if suspended horizontally, and carefully balanced by a single thread, while allowed some freedom of motion, the fish is credited with the power of indicating, by the direction of the head, the point of the compass from which the wind will blow. Many kinds of fish have two hard bones just within the sides of the head; and one species, the maigre, has these bones larger in proportion than most others. These two bones, called colic stones, are in some countries regarded to possess medical virtues; mounted in gold, and hung round the neck, they are a specific for the colic. But this peculiarity attaches to them. They must have been received as a gift; if purchased, they do not possess the magic virtue.

Serpents of the Yeast.

One of the most remarkable illustrations of the mysterious line that separates the deadly and the wholesome in nature is given in the English Medical Press, which states that the poison of the cobra, the most deadly of the East India serpents, has been chemically analyzed, with the following results:—Carbon, 46; nitrogen, 13; oxygen, 6; sulphur, 2½; and hydrogen, 10. This is exactly the composition of beer yeast. The latter is used in manufacturing the staff of life—bread; the former is so deadly in its nature that, even when taken from the snake and preserved, and afterwards injected under the skin of animals, it is immediately fatal.

—A rat trap with a mirror set in the back part is one of the latest devices of inventive genius. The rat espies the bait, but at the same time sees, or thinks he sees, another rat about to seize it. This creates confidence, which is the soul of business, so we are told, and as in other larger business concerns, confidence being created, the trap is entered, and the trap snaps up the victim.

—An obituary notice in a western paper contained the touching intelligence that the deceased "accumulated a little money and ten children."

SANTA CLAUS' LAND, by Amanda M. Douglas. This is the story of the journey of a little boy and girl to Santa Claus' land, and what they saw in his work shop. A very interesting book for children, especially at this season of the year when they are all so anxious to know where Santa Claus obtains all the presents that they receive. Published by Shepard & Gill. For sale by J. H. Foster, price $1.25.

CHILD WORLD, in two volumes, by Gail Hamilton, who has written so many interesting stories for children. This is one of her best works, beautifully bound and illustrated, making a most acceptable present for Christmas. Published by Shepard & Gill and for sale by J. H. Foster. Price $1.50.

THE BEST OF ALL GOOD COMPANY, by Blanchard Jerrold, illustrated. The first of the series is entitled: A Day with Scott, Thackeray, Dickens and Douglas Jerrold, and contains a fac simile of the hand writing of the different authors, with a history of their lives, some of their shorter speeches, and extracts from their writings. The object of the book is to induce the rising generation to become better acquainted with the best writers of this and other countries by presenting to them in an attractive form selections from some of their interesting works. Published by Shepard & Gill, No. 157 Washington St., Boston. For sale by J. H. Foster, price $2.50.

The January number of HARPER'S MAGAZINE has 69 engravings. Its illustrated articles treat of the Island of Martinique—the birth-place of the Empress Josephine and of Sultana Validi, of the remarkable financial career of the Rothschilds; and of Washington News-gatherers. There is another installment of M. D. Conway's "South-Coast Sauntergs in England," and two illustrated poems—"Dies Natalis Christi," a Christmas Ode, by R. H. Stoddard, and "Vagrant Pansies," embodying a quaint and beautiful conceit, by Nelly M. Hutchinson. One of the most attractive features of this number is the first installment of "My Mother and I: A Love Story for Girls," beautifully illustrated. Professor De Mille's serial story, "The Living Link," is continued, and there are two excellent short stories—"A Little Sensation Drama," by Justin McCarthy, and "The Sleep-Walker," a tale of rare humor and thrilling interest, by S. B. Reach. The most important of the miscellaneous articles in this number is "The New South," by Edwin de Leon. This is the first of a series of papers on the subject—the result of recent and thorough investigation into the agricultural, mechanical, and commercial progress of the South since the War. George M. Towle contributes a very entertaining and timely paper on Ashantee and the Ashantees." The "Easy Chair" discusses the Opera, Secret Societies, and, apropos of the recent death of Lewis Gaylord Clark, the progress which has been made in magazine literature since the days of the old Knickerbocker. The other editorial departments are instructive and entertaining as usual.

Business Notices.

Calamities will come upon us in spite of all precaution; but it is gratifying to learn that HELMBOLD'S CELEBRATED BUCHU can still be obtained at all the drug stores, and that it can be relied on to cure all diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Look out for counterfeits! The genuine bears the private proprietary stamp of H. T. Helmbold. For sale by all druggists.

"Happiness is the absence of pain" says Jean Paul Richter, and 20,000 grateful patients bless the ANAKESIS of DR. SILSBEE as the only infallible cure for Piles ever discovered. It is purely scientific, combining the best methods of the French, English and American surgeons, acting as an instrument, poultice and medicine, and not only affording instant relief from excruciating pain, but performing an absolute and permanent cure. All Doctors approve it.—Sold by Druggists everywhere. Depot, Walker st., New York.

Gov. Thos. E. Bramlette, of Louisville, Ky., has given three year's to the building up of a Public Library in Louisville, which he intends shall be the best in the country. He is doing it by a series of Gift Concerts, the profits of which go to the Library. The third drawing distributed $500,000, and the fourth, which has just been postponed to March 31st, distributes $1,500,000. Gov. Bramlette has almost doubled the business of the Louisville post-office. Eighteen clerks are kept busy twelve hours each day sending off circulars in answer to inquiries for tickets.

Most all pills in the market, and those styled vegetable, are not only large, nauseous griping and difficult to swallow, but they contain Mercury, besides Aloes, Gamboge, and other injurious drastics. These are old medicines, and used before medical science developed better, now supplanted by much more pleasant but effectual cathartics. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets embody the latest and best cathartic properties in a concentrated, yet mild and searching form, and are never taken with disappointment. Wholly vegetable, sugar-coated, small, neat and in delicate glass vials. Sold at 25 cents, by Druggists. 706

"Used up."

What is the precise meaning of this familiar phrase when employed to signify an unnatural condition of body and mind? It means exhaustion, languor, want of vital energy, mental apathy—a pitiable state of physical and mental helplessness. The best, and in fact the only perfectly reliable panacea for a "used up" system is that most popular and potent of medicinal stimulants, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. No matter whether the health has been broken down by excessive labor, over-study, an insalubrious atmosphere, anxiety, irregularities in diet, dissipation, or any other cause, this powerful and pleasant vegetable restorative will soon recruit the drooping energies of nature, restoring the integrity of the nerves, and re-establishing that functional regularity which is essential to animal vigor and a hopeful frame of mind. As a cure for debility, in all its various manifestations, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is unapproached by any tonic in the materia medica.

Our citizens are cautioned against paying heed to the requests of professional beggars, who go from house to house, sometimes showing a deformed foot or hand to secure charity. To encourage these people is but abuse of benevolence. The best course is that advised by Mayor Marvin, to report the cases to the City Marshal, who will see that their needs will be supplied if they deserve it, or send them out of town if impostors.

John Henry Claus and Christopher Columbus Santa Cruz must have visited Pleasant Street very early this season, and Kriss Kringle must have joined hands with them, judging by the grand assortment of toys, games, et cetera, displayed by H. sep5 LAFAYETTE LAIGHTON.

Her legs were cut by the stones and bleeding. When he could carry her no longer, he laid her near a thicket and ran for help, but the ants had begun to eat her face before he could return." It must in candor be said that some authorities consider the accounts of the numbers of the men and animals destroyed by snakes very much exaggerated, and affirm that many men, and women, and others who are murdered, are said to have died from snake-bite. On this point we can offer no opinion. Certain it is that nothing is more rare than to hear of Europeans bitten.

Kenealy's Last Speech.

[Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

We have shrewdly suspected for some time past, that among all the bores who sit in judgment over Sir Robert Tichborne, the only bore who really enjoys the fun is the corpulent claimant himself. It must be for him indeed a triumph to think that for nearly three years he has monopolized the English press, been the subject of conversation in every parlor in the land, and kept the bench, jury, and bar in a constant state of legal excitement and forensic hot water. Whether it be his fate to dispense the hospitalities of Tichborne Hall, or to return to his original hunting-ground with a log attached to his dexter ankle, he can at least lay the flattering unction to his soul that he has gained the historical notoriety of being either the worst-used man or the cleverest rough that ever lived. In either event his ability is undoubted; because, should he turn out to be the sham that the aristocracy would have us believe, the patient study necessary to a knowledge of such minute facts as he has made use of, the astonishing memory necessary to recollection under searching examinations, the ever-watchful care with which he has guarded his words—all exhibit an ability which he could scarcely look for in one whose physique so belies his head.

But the tide of popular judgment appears to be turning. Many who were bitterly opposed to him and his impudent assumption are veering round to think that after all he must be the man. The evidence upon both sides has at last been had, and Dr. Kenealy has commenced his summing-up speech. His opening remarks took up a trifle of a month or so, and it is a difficult mathematical calculation to decide when in all probability he may close. Distinguished actuaries fix it at next June. Perhaps the learned counsel intends to make it his last speech and dying confession. Our sympathies, if we have any, are all with that jury. Should they bring in at last a verdict for Sir Roger, the least that Roger can do is to maintain them for the rest of their natural lives. About this time we may very naturally expect to find Sir Charles Dilke upon the throne of England, a tunnel beneath the Atlantic Ocean, the Prince Imperial at the Tuileries, and the capital of the United States in Chicago.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!

Never before was such an idea attempted for book-illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,

Woman in Sacred History,

is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the

make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Hermiker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would springe up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at times, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

How a Reporter Lost His Situation.

It is said that in a moment of temporary insanity a Boston city editor assigned a horse-racing, base-ball and aquatic reporter to report in half a column the Sunday services at the church of a sensational preacher. This is the report he published, and for which he was discharged:

"The House met at 10:30 A. M. Prayer by the Chaplain. The first race was between the Chaplain and the singers, it being a pretty even match the first two heats; but the singers got the best of the last three heats, and came in on the amen two lengths ahead, winning the last three heats and race. Time, 5:02. 'Petitions were then presented for forgiveness and other similar matters, and notice was given for special assignments during the coming week for various objects.' The singers then sailed up to the judges' stand, and after getting into position sailed away on the course with all canvas set and a spanking breeze from the organ, which drove them along in fine style. The top-rigged flat flying the blue pennant was well ahead at the stake, and came home ahead of all the fleet.' The speaker then took the floor and announced his intention to ask that the resolutions of censure that had been heaped upon Ananias should be rescinded, and proceeded to read the records of the case, from which it appeared that Ananias had sold his horse and had not given all the price to the church.' The speaker then went on to say that no reason appeared on the records for Ananias to give any, and much less all, his property to the church, and he questioned if any of those before him would do any more than Ananias had in the same place. He then went on to show that Ananias had obeyed his wife in the matter, and expressed the belief that few of these before him could say as much for themselves. After further arguments of similar character, he moved that the character of Ananias be and hereby is declared A 1 by the members of the House.'"

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills" simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, purifying out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the purest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals or a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever achieved. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Chromos issued for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL of AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agricultists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the homes of the Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Profits of the land—both those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to refer recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is the World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND SIXTEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (216,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the sales of Sewing Machines (all these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

INK! INK! INK!
TO ALL THAT USE THE PEN!
WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK
is claimed to be far superior to any Ink ever manufactured, for these reasons: It will not gum up the pen nor rust it; neither will it grow thick in the bottle, as it contains no sugar or gums, alcohol or acids. It will copy a clear impression three months after letter is written with it. It will not blot or blur, smut or rub off. This Ink is noted for its pen-preserving qualities. It needs no pen-wiper. It cleans the pen by enameling it with a thin bronze coating. Freezing does not injure this Ink. It dries quickly and flows freely, and is as cheap as any Ink in the market. This Ink has been used in Portsmouth for several years, and those who have tried it say they would use no other. For sale in bottles of all sizes by JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no mine will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.
MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the mechanical ingenuity which I believe, theoretical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desperate, to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible travelling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.
As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders. D. H. MONTGOMERY.

New York Fashions.

"Furbelow," of the Chicago Tribune, gossips as follows relative to the latest styles in vogue in New York:

CHRISTMAS TOILETTES

are by no means overlooked in the present burst of economy. They are less elaborate, though prettier than I have seen them for many a year. Not infrequently, they are merely combinations of several old gowns; but this does not detract from their becomingness, which, of course, includes beauty.

The dress of a bride, who is to be dined, on Christmas day, for the first time in her new capacity, is made of white silk and white cashmere. The petticoat (entre nous, it has appeared several seasons in various combinations, but is freshened by a new kilting) is of the silk (glace), with a kilting which appears to cover the skirt entirely. Confidentially, it reaches a trifle above the knee in front, but is less deep in the back. The over skirt and waist are cut somewhat like a Gabrielle,—or, as it is called now-days, a Princesse—dress. It has three wide box plaits in the back, at the waist, and three deep loopings, which, however, hang gracefully, though rather flatly, over the tournure. In front it is closed like the old Gabrielle; but the broad band of swan's down, bordering the overskirt, passes up the front seam (where it is closed) and around the throat. The close coat sleeves of silk have a band of down following the square cashmere cuff, and outlining the armhole. Of course, the over-dress, though quite long, does not reach the bottom of the demi-train by fourteen inches behind, and barely covers the top of the kilting in front: while on the sides, it is looped very high, almost to the hips. As you see, the dress is extremely simple, but wonderfully effective. Altogether, I think that the most effective costumes are those that are the least trimmed.

GAUZE DE CHAMBERY,

or what we should once have called sheer silk grenadine, striped in self-shades or contrasting tints, is popular again for polonaises, which everybody clings to, despite the Parisian flat. It is often made over silk of the shades of one of the stripes, the polonaises and all the skirt trimmings being of the thin goods. A charming robe of this description will be finished in a brief while. The silk is Nile green, and the gauze the same shade (the thin and thick stripe being alike in hue), of course a trifle intensified by being over the silk. The skirt is covered half-way up with Valenciennes lace. (This doesn't suggest extreme penury, does it?) A sash of a single breadth of the thin stuff, edged with lace, is caught on the right hip with a chain of finely-strung, opalescent shells; is brought gracefully round the train and hangs low on the left side by another chain of shells. The waist of silk, with deep points before and behind, is covered with bias folds of the gauze, laid on surplice-fashion, with ruches of the lace in the pointed neck, and half flowing sleeves, and a ruffle of it round the bottom of the waist. Do you think the shells a little startling? They belong to the gown, which seems as if spun from the froth of the sea. It might have been designed for some Naiad of Fifth Avenue, because, after all, it belongs to the realms of high art instead of to Nature.

Another robe of a similar character is more to my fancy than the preceding. The silk skirt is white glace. It is festooned with white tull all over the skirt, in the most delicate and indescribile manner. The lace was so gracefully arranged that it seems to have fallen where it lies, and to be held in place but by a few bunches of white marabow feathers. The waist is round and low, and has short sleeves of silk; but a scarf of tulle is carried over the shoulders so as to conceal the neck, and long angel-sleeves shade the arms. The whole dress is in perfect keeping, and on its blonde owner suggests the spirit of Winter. Frost and snow, and moonlight appear to be its threads, and a fairy its wearer.

A charming and prevalent style of head-covering for the carriage, is a long veil of white Spanish blonde with large silk dots. This is twisted over the head and about the neck, like a worsted cloud. The effect is so very becoming, especially with a white cloak, that one marvels the wearers should be willing to remove it during the performance.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Seal-skin caps have a seal's head, and short feather made of chenille, for trimming. Occasionally the tail of the seal serves for a plume, but it is not so popular as the chenille feather.

The proper color for seal-skin, this winter is very dark brown; the warm, close browns of last year being scarcely salable this.

Low-necks have been seldom seen at the opera this season. Good taste has never countenanced their wearing in so public a place, and fashion has finally yielded.

"The latest thing" in feminine walking boots is a buttoned goatskin gaiter with the broad English sole, extending beyond the upper all round, and stitched with yellow thread, after the approved masculine manner. It is not very elegant, but remarkably comfortable; and, as soon as the streets have assumed their proper depth of mud and slush, these boots will, undoubtedly, be widely worn.

The newest ruches for mourning are of black and white crepe lisse, plaited separately, and then fastened together. White crepe lisse is much used for ruches inside velvet and silk fraises.

Daily Chronicle.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1873.

Congress.

On Wednesday, the Senate passed the special naval appropriation of $4,000,000.

The House debated the salary bill.

Mr. Hale of New York moved to amend the bill by striking out that portion referring to the President, and gave notice that he would move a similar amendment in regard to the cabinet officers and to the employes of Congress.

Mr. Tremaine of New York moved to amend Mr. Hale's amendment by excluding from the effect of the bill the Vice-President, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, the Secretary of the Interior, the Attorney-General, and the Postmaster-General.

Mr. Tremaine's amendment was rejected, 193 to 79.

The question then recurred on Mr. Hale's amendment in reference to the President's salary, and it was rejected—yeas 70, nays 186.

Mr. Poland of Vermont offered an amendment requiring the members of the present Congress, who received back pay as members of the last Congress, to refund by monthly reductions, and directing the Treasurer to communicate the passage of this bill to the ex-members of the last Congress, and to cover into the treasury the money that should be returned.

Mr. Holman moved as a substitute an amendment applying only to members of the present Congress who were also members of the last. Mr. Poland accepted the substitute, and it was agreed to—yeas 156, nays 101.

Mr. Maynard of Tennessee offered an amendment to except from the proposed reduction the employes of Congress, and he spoke in support of that proposition. The amendment was rejected without the yeas and nays.

Mr. Butler of Massachusetts moved to amend by adding a proviso requiring all the members who had also been members of the preceding Congress and in which they had received back pay to return the same to the Treasury. He held that the proposition was logical, but he appealed to the house to come up to the matter squarely and like men, and support a substitute which would be offered for the whole bill by the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Hurlbut) fixing the salary at $6000, to take effect from the passage of the act. [Cries of Good! good! That's right.]

After other speeches, the house seconded the previous question on Mr. Hurlbut's substitute. The main question was ordered on substituting Mr. Hurlbut's proposition for the pending bill and all amendments, and it was, amid much excitement and after several changes of votes, agreed to. Yeas 138; nays 130.

Mr. Butler's amendment was then carried by 113 to 70.

Mr. Hurlbut of Illinois then offered the following as a substitute for the whole bill:—

That from and after the passage of this act the compensation of senators, representatives and delegates shall be at the rate of $6000 per annum, payable monthly, and in addition thereto, the actual individual expenses of each senator, representative and delegate, in going and returning from the seat of the government once in each session, to be certified in writing by each.

2. That the compensation of the speaker of the house of representatives shall be at the rate of $2000, in addition to his pay as a representative, amounting in all to $8000, and that of the Vice President shall be the same with allowance for travelling expenses as heretofore provided.

3. That all laws and parts of laws inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

4. That the Secretary of the Treasury is required to cover into the Treasury all sums that may remain undrawn, or which have been received as increased compensation under the provisions of said act, approved March 3, 1873, which shall have or may come into his possession by the return thereof.

The house then proceeded to vote on ordering the bill to be engrossed and read a third time. It was so ordered by 159 yeas to 105 nays.

Mr. Hurlbut yielded the floor to Mr. Butler of Massachusetts, who proceeded to give his views on the matter. He called the house to witness that he had hitherto taken no part in the debate. He felt that that course on his part was due to himself and the republican party. He had supported the substitute offered by his friend from Illinois [Mr. Hurlbut] because he looked upon it as a compromise.

He argued that the salary fixed by the act of the 3d of March 1873, was not too high. He had gone for it, not for his own benefit, but in order that poor men who had raised themselves by ability and industry, and had received the confidence of their constituents, might be able to keep their families in Washington during the session without having to live in attics. He had never yielded to any clamor.

The question was taken on the passage of the bill. The yeas and nays were demanded, but refused, and the bill was passed on a division—122 to 74.

Readables.

Cyrus Baker of Saco, who took laudanum at Biddeford but failed in his attempt on his life, has died from starvation. He refused to take any nourishment for over four days, and drank hardly anything for nearly a week. Examination showed that his throat was so parched as to be badly cracked.

The town of Milton, Cal., was destroyed by a tornado on Tuesday. No lives were lost, though many persons were injured.

The Surrender of the Virginius.

The Virginius was surrendered by Senor De La Camora, the commander of the sloop-of-war Favorita, to Captain Whiting, the commander of the Despatch, Tuesday morning, the 16th.

Punctually, as the bells on the Despatch struck for nine o'clock, and before the echo had died away, the American flag flew to the flag-staff of the Virginius and at the same moment a boat containing Captain Whiting and Lieutenant Marion put away from the Despatch. As they ascended the ladder of the Virginius the single man on deck, who proved to be Senor de la Camora, advanced and made a courteous salute. The officers then read their respective instructions and Captain de la Camora remarked that in obedience to the requirements of his government he had the honor to turn over the steamer Virginius to the American authorities. Captain Whiting accepted, and ascertaining that a receipt would be acceptable, gave one. A word or two more, civilly spoken, and the Spaniard stepped over the side, signalled to his oarsmen, and in ten minutes he was again upon the deck of his own vessel, having discharged with becoming dignity the unpleasant duty imposed upon him by his government. It appears that the Virginius was towed to Havana by the Isabella la Catolica, the commander of which retired immediately and left the surrender to be made by the Favorita, which had been in the vicinity of Bahia Honda for several months engaged in a surveying duty. The notorious steamer being once in American hands no time was lost in putting her in order for sea. When supplied with provisions and coal the Virginius will probably be sent to a northern port.

Domestic Service.

The Boston Transcript has for the past two months, under the heading of "A Row in the Kitchen" been printing all sorts of letters on the "help" question, thoroughly discussing the relative duties and shortcomings of mistress and maid. The controversy has brought out many valuable ideas and some spicy writing from correspondents. The discussion was for obvious reasons given recently closed in the columns of the Transcript, and, as that newspaper is considerably read in this locality, the communication which we print below naturally comes to us from a friendly Boston source. It will be found to contain many pointed hits at men's doings, particularly in their help toward the spoiling of the house girls, though in some respects the article may be considered allegorical as to strict letter-of-fact.

MASTER, MISTRESS AND MAID.

To the Editors of the Chronicle:—The daily details of the "Row in the Kitchen" in the Boston Transcript I have mentally devoured with keenest zest, and, as nobody has said what I wanted said in that fray of "ink slinging," (a professional phrase, I think,) I must find vent, by writing myself for the effervescence that has been up since "A Housekeeper" or some one writing over a similar signature, threw the first stone in the Transcript so long ago, and said it was the women who were somewhat to be blamed for the panic, defalcations, failures, and such things. The discussion in that paper was soon narrowed down to the relations of "Mistress and Maid," pure and simple in argument, and never have I known of the discussion of propositions or asserted facts more vigorously kept in line than have been those of the "Row in the Kitchen."

Now I must stop making preludes and proceed to say what I wanted said, and nobody has said, viz., that the reasoning standpoint in that controversy should all along have been, collectively, "Master, Mistress and Maid," the master being an element often too prominent to be left out. Some more spoil the house girls and thus "Mistress and Maid" have more than a silent partner in this business, the "Master" becoming the head of the firm.

Oh, dear! it's a terrible skeleton to let out of the closet, and it may tell against myself, but the fact is that if the servant girls are good-looking our husbands are very apt to notice them too much, and make them pert. We are all vain creatures, (men and women,) and like to be made of; I do, by Joseph, so I don't much blame the girls, and, of course (under the rose,) not altogether the men, for what like creatures some of our house girls are. What hair, what eyes, what teeth, such color, such a ——, well, I might run through the whole vocabulary of personal charms, with some of them. Strong-limbed, full, rich-blooded; they are not the women that come up from the "bloodless" girls that Dr. Clark, in his "Sex in Education" tells us about, and which men, though perhaps they shouldn't, but they do, sometimes tire of when they come to the time of life when health and fine figure are more to them than mere intellectuality and faces. A man may marry a doll, but married life isn't always for gushing; it commonly means companionship, brings care, and requires strength to bear burdens too heavy; neuralgia, rheumatics and dyspepsia. Now if this last is the kind of woman you happen to be, avoid by all means having a handsome servant girl. Individual experiences have been the rule in this discussion, and I may as well say that I have tried a plain one, an exceedingly plain one, and it (or she) works well. Why I did so this story, that I remember somewhere to have seen, will perhaps illustrate:

A son, who had spent much money in riotous living, came to his father for more shekels. The parent was loth to disburse them, but finally inquired what the money was wanted for. The son, whose frequent applications for funds had made him bankrupt in probable reasons, replied that a dog-trainer had undertaken to make his dog talk for a given sum of money. Pater-familias was so pleased with the ingenuity of the reason that he handed the prodigal half the sum asked for, and said that when the dog could talk he would furnish the rest. It was one of those cases where the sense of justice leaves no room for complaint, and the boy departed, partially cast down but not defeated. In a few days he appeared again.

"Father, the dog talked."

"Well, where is he? let me see him."

"O, you can't see him, I killed him for lying."

"Killed him for lying! why, what could he have said?"

"O, he said he saw you kiss the servant girl and I knew that that was a lie, so I killed him!

"Here, boy, here is the rest of the money, but you had better not tell mother that I gave it to you."

I am not a bit jealous, I am always glad to see how much the ladies notice my Joseph, and he is handsome and I am proud of him, but I was a little taken aback and discouraged when I found that it wasn't altogether the furnace that he went below to regulate nights and mornings, nor always strictly to learn if the potatoes were out, and that neither was it the corks coming out of the ketchup bottle as he "guessed," that made such popping noises at such times. More than all can I not forgive him for spoiling with his theatre tickets and circus cards my hitherto pet Norah, who was a creature superb enough to be queen if and obliging me to discharge her. She, to wit: the said Norah, being the party in the second part to the ketchup bottle noises.

"Beauty were the test,"

"Only this, and nothing more."

O, ye men of Athens and everywhere! It is very nice, no doubt to you, but very naughty in the economy of the household; besides how it looks.

Again, O, wives, remember the long summer vacations, when our husbands are "detained in town by business." There is no end to the indulgences that the men allow the girls it the house is kept open. This I know of my own household expenses—for I will look over the bills,—that the items of sugar were never so large as one summer when I and the children were away. The Scotch ale, too, that Joe takes nights and mornings for his constitutional, and that he pretends to get to "build me up," was more frequently charged in the bill than would have been the case had I been at home. I don't think the girls drank it all or used all the lemons and sugar. I incidentally heard that the "Can't get away Club" used frequently to meet at our house to console themselves with smoke and smoking, and hot weather makes very dry times, when, as the temperance-pledge man said, all signs fail, and so I suppose, if there were any teetotallers in the club, they felt so miserable because their families were away they couldn't resist the Scotch ale. There was nothing stronger on the bills, but lots of that.

It is well perhaps to repeat here what Henry Ward Beecher is reported to have said: "The wife who values her domestic peace leaves her husband to the mercy of her servants for two or three months at her peril." He might as truly have said "the wife who values her domestic peace leaves her servants to the mercy of her husband's indulgence at her peril, and is apt to leave at home a person who will add disproportionately to the store bills." We have reformed that now in our household.

Observe that these last paragraphs are not under the rose, as appears in another part of this writing, but are my parting shots at those husbands who, besides being so wicked, lecture us wives on economy, then light their fifteen-cent Partagas, (so Joe calls them,) and go away to play billiards. MR. JOSEPH SMITH'S WIFE.

State News.

It has been ascertained that one of the men recently killed by a falling ledge in Rhode Island was William W. Hawkins of Stratham, who, for some cause unknown to his friends, had assumed the name of Smith.

A man and his wife from Lyndeborough, while out riding a short time since, invited a young woman to get in with them. She accepted the invitation, but while getting in one of the springs broke; and the man charged her 75 cents for damage to the carriage.

The fine church edifice which during the past year has been erecting by the Universalist society in South Newmarket has been dedicated, and Rev. E. McKinney installed as pastor. A very fine desirable corner lot was given by the Swampscott Machine Company, and its president, Amos Paul, Esq., was a liberal contributor of money for its erection. The building is of wood, finished with a basement containing all modern conveniences. The auditorum has circular, hard wood pews, elegant frescoing, colored glass windows, &c. A very symmetrical tower and spire stands at the west corner, and a large rose window ornaments the principal gable over the main entrance door. The style of architecture is a Germanized Roman, and was from designs by Mr. T. W. Silloway of Boston. The cost of the building exclusive of land and furnishing was $9000, and it has a seating capacity, inclusive of gallery in the front end, for about 400 persons.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Mills, an aged couple of East Concord, died within two days of each other, and were buried together last week.

Elias H. Cheney of the Labanon Free Press has gone south to spend the winter for his health. He leaves the office in charge of his son Fred. W. Cheney.

The annual business meeting of the New Hampshire editors, will be held at Manchester, Jan. 20th, 1874. There will be a festival in the evening.

How to Cook a Goose.

[Lippincott's Magazine for January, 1874.]

Among our many readers there may be a few who are willing to take the trouble to make a right royal dish of a fowl which is very commonly despised as unfit for the table. For their benefit we offer the following recipe, derived from a chef de cuisine who is a graduate in the schools of Paris and St. Petersburg. Select a young and healthy goose, well grown and in his first feathers. Feed him for one week on well-cooked cornmeal dough or stiff mush, and give him the free run of the yard, with its sweet grass and abundant fresh water, to keep his liver in order, for you are not contemplating a pate. Then for two weeks feed on thoroughly boiled rice. If chopped celery or parsley be mixed with the rice, so much the better, but the rice alone will answer.

Our bird is now ready for the knife. Knock him on the head, and cut his throat tenderly, being careful to let him bleed freely. Draw him without removing the feathers. Then, in place of the intestines, insert a large herring (Labrador preferred), wrap him in several folds of old linen or cotton cloth and bury him for five days under at least three feet of good clean clay soil. At the expiration of the five days exhume him, remove the herring and throw it as far as the strength of your arm will enable you to send it, or, better still, bury it from five to seven feet out of sight and smell of yourself and neighbors.

Next pick your goose, singe him, wash him in many waters and wipe perfectly dry. Put him then into a kettle, cover him (barely) with cold salt water, and let him boil gently for an hour or an hour and a quarter. While the boiling is in process prepare the dressing as follows: Take of best pippins (other apples will serve, though not so well) a sufficient quantity, peel and core them, stick a few cloves into each, and place a small flake of mace in each core. When the goose has been sufficiently boiled—and of this the cook must judge by inspection—take it from the pot, drain carefully and fill with the prepared apples, the liquor in which it was boiled being in the mean time concentrated as rapidly as possible to about one-fourth of the original quantity. Lay the goose in an old-fashioned oval Dutch oven, placing more apples around and over it, pour on the liquor, cover closely, and apply a gentle fire of clear live coals over, under and around the oven for from four to six hours, according to the size of the goose, and until it is thoroughly done.

When done, dish, and invite a set of really good fellows to help you eat your goose. It will be a kingly feast. Allow three pounds to the man, but if your guests are men of taste and capacity, you may allow four pounds to the man without fear of the goose proving too much for their digestion—provided always that the wine is what it should be.

—St. Louis is an eminently quiet and peaceable town. Not having had the opportunity to enjoy the prize-fight which had been arranged, the people have gone to knocking each other down. The suit against the Chief of Police, which is now pending, has given rise to three fights, or, as the St. Louis people pleasantly call them, "personal encounters." One of the counsel in the case was knocked down the other day by a gambler. The next day, Mr. Garesche one of the attorneys for the Chief of Police, knocked the Lieutenant-Governor down for calling him a liar, and within twenty-four hours Mr. Garesche was knocked into a gutter and soundly whipped by a hackman, because Garesche called him a scalper in court. Now, Garesche threatens to shoot the hackman, when he finds him. Nice, quiet town that St. Louis!

Calamities will come upon us in spite of all precaution; but it is gratifying to learn that HELMBOLD'S CELEBRATED BUCHU can still be obtained at all the drug stores, and that it can be relied on to cure all diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Look out for counterfeits! The genuine bears the private proprietary stamp of H. T. Helmbold. For sale by all druggists. 16

"Happiness is the absence of pain" says Jean Paul Richter, and 20,000 grateful patients bless the ANAKESIS or DR. SILSBEE as the only infallible cure for Piles ever discovered. It is purely scientific, combining the best methods of the French, English and American surgeons, acting as an instrument, poultice and medicine, and not only affording instant relief from excruciating pain, but performing an absolute and permanent cure. All Doctors approve it.—Sold by Druggists everywhere. Depot, Walker st., New York.

Most all pills in the market, and those styled vegetable, are not only large, nauseous griping and difficult to swallow, but they contain Mercury, besides Aloes, Gamboge, and other injurious drastics. These are old medicines, and until the modern medical science developed better, now supplanted by much more pleasant but effectual cathartics. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets embody the latest and best cathartic properties in a concentrated, yet mild and searching form, and are never taken with disappointment. Wholly vegetable, sugar-coated, small, neat and in delicate glass vials. Sold at 25 cents, by Druggists. 706

What is the precise meaning of this familiar phrase when employed to signify an unnatural condition of body and mind? It means exhaustion, languor, want of vital energy, mental apathy—a pitiable state of physical and mental helplessness. The best, and in fact the only perfectly reliable panacea for a "used up" system is that most popular and potent of medicinal stimulants, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. No matter whether the health has been broken down by excessive labor, over-study, an insalubrious atmosphere, anxiety, irregularities in diet, dissipation, or any other cause, this powerful and pleasant vegetable restorative will soon recruit the drooping energies of nature, restoring the integrity of the nerves, and re-establishing that functional regularity which is essential to animal vigor and a hopeful frame of mind. As a cure for debility, in all its varied manifestations, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is unapproached by any tonic in the materia medica.

Local Matters.

The Best Yet.

The Portland Advertiser is a very readable exchange and we seldom open it without finding something of interest. In a late issue we find the following good one:

"Is it true that a committee of the Portsmouth, N. H., city government has returned home from Washington with assurances from the Navy Department that hereafter the municipal boards of that city are to have the full control of a certain proportion of the places of responsibility in the Kittery navy yard? Such a story is afloat and some very peculiar people will persist in asking for what right such privileges are delegated. But then, they forget that this is a matter for politicians alone to manage, and they must propound no foolish conundrums."

No committee of the city government has been delegated to visit Washington, neither has any member of the city government visited that city of late. The Advertiser is badly sold by those "peculiar people" it mentions. Not more than one man in Portsmouth aspires to "the full control of a certain proportion of the places of responsibility" over the river, while the number of contestants from York county, Me., just now disturbing the equilibrium of Washington society is astonishingly large, considering the fact that no harness is purchased for them as a reward of merit, which would be a convenient excuse for neglecting to pay the expenses of their "delegate," to Washington and back. Some "peculiar people" persist in asking the question: "If one pays $300 for his friends' advancement in Washington, and returning is presented with a $150 harness, how much does it profit him to advance on Washington, and how much encouragement does it offer patriots of the city government to endeavor to control certain places of responsibility at the navy yard?" Isn't this conundrum as full of suggestion as that of the Advertiser?

Kittery Affairs.

Mr. W. E. H. Fentress on Tuesday evening lectured in the Methodist church at Kittery, in aid of the Sunday school library, his subject being: "A ride from Joppa to Jerusalem." Mr. Fentress commenced by saying that he had at first hesitated to comply with the invitation to lecture, not perhaps from any unusual modesty but from a desire to avoid publicity, finally yielding, however, as the object was so commendable. He then expressed himself as having been much surprised, Tuesday morning, at finding himself assailed by burlesque handbills which were stuck up all about the Foreside—and as Mr. Fentress' services were gratuitous he may be excused for experiencing some surprise. One of the handbills was then read by the lecturer, as follows:—

M. FAUNTROY,
The Great American BLOW HARD, will tell what he knows (It won't take long) at the METHODIST CHURCH
at the frontside,
Tuesday Eve'ng, Dec. 16th.
ADMISSION NOT FREE.

Mr. F. remarked that he had not been aware he had an enemy, yet it was evident this handbill was not the work of a friend; however, he did not believe any one in Kittery was responsible for it, and it would not in the least deter him from keeping his engagement,—while it had evidently been an excellent advertisement, as the very large audience showed.

The church was well filled, and the lecture (although an hour and a quarter long) was listened to attentively to the close, as it deserved, for it was really a very interesting discourse and very pleasingly delivered. As an entertainment for the audience and a means for transferring quarters from their pockets to the church treasury, Mr. Fentress' lecture was a decided success.

Hard Cases.

The family of Henry A. Huneyfield, living in Partridge street, are in a distressing condition. About ten days ago, the two children were sick with scarlet fever and Mrs. Huneyfield was confined. Her nurse on learning the fact that the children had the scarlet fever, deserted her charge, and for twenty-four hours no person called. Then a neighbor went in, and found the boy, eight years old, lying dead in bed by the side of his mother, and a little crippled girl lying on the floor with nothing to cover her but her night dress. She died the next day. The baby is very sick with the fever.

Eight children of Mr. Daniel Clark, living on the same street, are sick with the same disease, one other having died. Our informant says that the eight children occupied one bed. The City Physician visited them and furnished them with fuel and provisions. Two of them are still in a precarious condition.

The High School.

In your Thursday's issue, I was sorry to notice that Miss Morgan, the efficient Assistant in the High School, had resigned, and the reason of her leaving the school at this time (knowing that her energy and talent was almost wholly devoted to her labors in teaching,) must be of such a nature as would warrant it. It is with pleasure that we agree with the majority of parents who have children attending the school that under the instruction of Miss Morgan, morally intellectually and physically, a steady improvement could be noticed. I sincerely hope that she may be persuaded to reconsider her resignation and continue on in her situation. If our High School Committee would study the interest of the school, parents and children, they would not for a moment hesitate to use all their efforts in influencing her to remain and to reward her justly for her labors pecuniarily.

PARENT.

The Monument.

[Concord People.]

The proposed monument at Odierne's Point, Rye, is beginning to be a subject of controversy among the Historical "inkslingers." Exeter and Dover are furnishing writers for the local press, and Dover wants to prove that the tartherest point from a given object must necessarily be reached first. If old Euclid had only known about that, how he would have altered his Geometry.

Laconics.

The highway over the Dover Point bridge is open to travel.

The concert by the colored singers is postponed until the 30th.

Dr. Norton of this city, after delivering a temperance discourse at Concord, recently, became insensible from an attack of heart disease.

The New Hampshire Historical Society has voted to request John Albee, Esq., of Newcastle, to prepare and read a paper on the New-castle records, lately discovered.

Congressman Burleigh of Maine has secured the appointment of Mr. Cyrus H. Hobbs of Wells as master teamster at the navy yard in place of Mr. George D. Shannon, removed.

We have been shown a carnation pink in full bloom found in the garden of Mr. Chas. E. Buzzell on Islington street. The snow had covered it. Other pinks in the same garden are in bud.

J. Horace Kent, Esq., presided at the mass temperance meeting in Concord, Wednesday evening, and the Boston Advertiser's special says he made a neat speech on assuming the chair.

York county, Me., is engaged in hunting up its centenarians and quite a competition has been developed that was not expected. Mrs. Mary Chadwick of North Berwick, born Dec. 21,1772, is the latest. She expects to go to meeting next Sunday, her 101st birthday.

The new editor of the Times tried to be funny over the appointment of A. F. Howard Esq., to the Collectorship, and says he asked for "more." As the position he abandons is worth considerably more than the office of Collector, the "awfully funny fellow" of the Times has only shown his own ignorance.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!

Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,

Woman in Sacred History,

is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the

make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $3 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous and salesmen, because it is absolutely new and "has money in." To get pleasant work and good pay, send for terms, circulars, &c., to J. B. FORD & CO., New York, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, or Cincinnati. d12

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh nearly five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. I affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membrance and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors, Mount Washington in Winter.

Prof. Huntington, of New Hampshire, had a perilous time ascending Mount Washington, the latter part of November, as will be seen from the following:

Twenty rods above the Gulf House the gusts of wind came down with a swoop, and filled the air with snow and fragments of frost work. There was evidently a new conflict in the elements. The wind had been N. by W., but now the N. W. wind was striving fiercely for the mastery. When we reached the spring, where they collect water for the tanks below, we began to feel the full force of the blast; so fierce was it, that we were literally carried along and we struck the railway eight rods above the Lizzie Bourne monument. The ice, the snow, the frost work were blinding, and now we had to turn and go up the mountain, and thus the wind was on our right, and to go against it was an impossibility. The railway might protect us if we were on the other side, or so we thought, and we were on that side scarcely before we knew it. But the railway was no protection and the wind was taking us away from our only hope, the buildings on the summit. And now came the fiercest struggle probably, that a man ever had with the wind and cold, and survived. Crawling on hands and knees, clinging to the rocks, with the wind seventy-two miles per hour and the thermometer 17° below zero, at last we reached a point where the hotel broke somewhat the force of the wind, and then we climbed up to the platform, and were almost entirely sheltered from the wind.

Nowhere on the mountain does the wind blow more fiercely than between the hotel and the observatory; but being satisfied that we still had some force left we prepared for the final struggle. We thought by taking a tack we could stand against the wind, but the instant we came into the full blast we were thrown upon the ground. Again we tried the crawling process, but every effort brought us nearer the observatory, and there was warmth and shelter. At length the goal was reached—alive but somewhat frozen. Although we had made the ascent of the mountain not far from fifty times, yet we never before encountered a wind of so great a velocity, accompanied by cold so intense. The moral of all this is, if you want to get to the top of Mount Washington in winter, start from the base when the weather is favorable, early in the morning, and you will not be liable to encounter severe weather, if you reach the summit before noon.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, so easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been snatched by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Harper's Bazar.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that a woman only can find in any degree; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidery, slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

NOT FOR SALE IN DOCK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood-cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding; a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 16x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free. For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or to any of the local canvassers, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the homes and fields of Practical Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $3.50; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy free to year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? There is no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuble is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. The enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care.
Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean.
By its tonic properties, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness and making the hair grow thick and strong.
As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.
Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."
BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,

COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,

LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.
MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thoroughly practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desirable to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.
As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders. D. H. MONTGOMERY.

Daily Chronicle.

We're Deaf.

It is getting colder; this may be no news to many readers, but it was brought to my mind by the fact that the annual array of canvassers, for everything, from a book to a buttonhole cutter, have again commenced their raids upon the public. They are ladies this year, many of them, at all events the last one that called on us was a lady.

She wished to dispose of a book. She was alone in this world and had no one to whom she could turn for sympathy or assistance, hence we should buy her book. She was unmarried and had no manly heart into which she could pour her sufferings, therefore we ought to invest in her book. She had received a liberal education, and could talk French like a native; we could not in consequence pay her less than two dollars for a book. We had listened attentively and here broke in with:

"What did you say? We're deaf."

She started again in a loud voice and went through her rigmarole. When she had finished, we went and got a roll of paper and made it into a speaking trumpet, placed one end to our ear and told her to proceed. She nearly broke a blood vessel in her effort to make herself heard. She commenced:

"I am alone in this world—"

"It doesn't make the slightest difference to us. We are husband and father. Bigamy is not allowed in this State. We are not eligible to proposals."

"Oh, what a fool the man is," she said in a low tone; then at the top of her voice, "I don't want to marry you; I want-to-sell-a book."

The last sentence was howled.

"We don't want a cook," we blandly remarked, "our wife does the cooking, and she wouldn't allow as good looking a woman as you to stay in the house five minutes. She is very jealous."

She looked at us in despair. Gathering her robes about her, giving us a glance of contempt, she exclaimed:

"I do believe it a three hundred pounder was let off alongside of that deaf fool's head, he'd think somebody was knocking at the door."

Slinging herself out, slamming the door, she walked down the stairs with a vehemence that called every one in the Chicago store to the door. When she was gone, we indulged in a demoniac laugh. She isn't likely to sell us a book any more.

The Unfortunate Man of New Ashford.

[Pittsfield (Mass.) Eagle.]

To begin with, he was born of poor parents—which first misfortune was enough to make him wish he had never been born—and his troubles commenced very soon after that sad event. At six weeks of age the whooping-cough seized him, and, after days of pain and sorrow, he apparently died. His mother "laid him out," and told her neighbors he was dead. They all wept over the pretty little corpse, when one of them of a meddlesome disposition, thought from his looks that there might be life in him, and commenced blowing breath into his lungs and tossing him in her arms. He came back to life again. When he was six months old his sister rocked him out of a cradle into an old-fashioned fire-place, and left him lying under the "fore-stick" in a hot-bed of coals, while she went out to call her mother, who was picking up chips in the door-yard. He was so badly burned that the flesh all came off his arms, leaving the bones bare. One side of his head was full of live coals when he was picked up, and his eye-lids were so burned that when they healed they grew together, closing his eyes. A year later the doctor severed the lids and found the eyes all right, and the eyesight was good. Life with this subject was not unusually rough again until he was six years old, when he was seized with rheumatic fever, and it ended in a fever-sore on his right leg. The bone decayed, passed away from the knee to the ankle, and a consultation of physicians was held on the subject of amputation. It was decided that he was too weak to stand it, and so the limb remained upon the trunk. Months afterward it began to heal, and after three years of crutch gymnastics he was well again. Hardly had he thrown aside the crutches when he fell from a tree, breaking his right arm. It began to heal promptly, but one night he thrashed it over the head of his bed, made a new break, inflammation got into it, ulceration followed, and after six months' lying in bed he had it amputated at the shoulder. After that he had the measles, and the typhoid fever, which caused an eighteen months' illness; but after all, with only one arm, with one leg shorter by three inches than the other, and one ankle joint-less and stiff, this man follows chopping as a business, and can put up a cord and a half of wood a day.

A Colored Sharp One.

Evansville has a very sharp negro—Burden Parker—and one who is constituted just the other way—Jacob Thompson. Parker has figured in the political field, and is full of the tricks and strategy of political bummers. Politics have lately been dull with him, and he was obliged to work or go to jail. He tried the former for a few days, but honesty disagreed with him, and he threw up the job. Then he immediately bent his steps toward the latter as the only course left. He wanted money, and concluded to borrow it of his friend Jacob Thompson. But Jacob demanded security, and Parker gave it very readily by mortgaging two lots in Evansville. The mortgage was drawn up and delivered, and Parker took the money agreed upon, and then Thompson first began to investigate the transaction. He was very much surprised and disgusted with the whole African race when he discovered that instead of holding a mortgage on property belonging to Parker, he simply held a mortgage on his own two lots executed by Parker. Thompson knows the lots are good for the money, but he has had Parker put in jail until he gets it through his wool how the whole business was done.

Ireland is profiting by the large increase in the price of coal in England. The island is known to contain many rich coal fields, which have been hitherto worked on a very small scale. Capitalists are now beginning to look to these as profitable investments, and preparations are being made to work the coal on a large scale.

Nearly all the railroads in New Hampshire give notice that owing to the unreasonable detention of freight cars at stations, by reason of consignees not unloading promptly, a charge of $2 per day will be made on all cars remaining unloaded forty-eight hours after their arrival at the station to which they are destined, and station agents are directed to collect the amount for detention from consignees.

Justice Miller of the U. S. Supreme Court has delivered the opinion of the Court in the appeal of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Co. from the decision of the Court of Claims. In this case the company contracted to deliver carbines, not exceeding 6000, within a certain date. It did not tender them until nearly a year after, and the question was whether the delay was occasioned by fault of the company or by changes in the make of the carbine ordered by the department. The court below found for the government and dismissed the bill. This court find that the delay was so far owing to the action of the department as to entitle the company to such damages as it sustained by reason of the refusal to accept the 6000 carbines, and the judgment is reversed and the cases remanded to the court of claims with direction to enter judgment for the company for such damages. Justice Miller delivered the opinion.

N. H. Historical Society.

At the recent meeting of the Society in Concord, the following resolutions were passed:

Resolved, That Messrs. W. H. Y. Hackett, John H. Elliott, Joseph B. Walker, John J. Bell, and Charles H. Bell, be a committee to confer with Mr. Thomas C. Amory, of Boston, to ascertain if he would be disposed to commit to the custody of the Society, at the present or some future time, the valuable collection of letters and manuscripts of Gen. John Sullivan, of New Hampshire, when Mr. Amory has.

Resolved, That the same committee be requested to solicit for the Society, from Mr. R. M. Mason, of Boston, any correspondence between his late father, Hon. Jeremiah Mason, and Hon. Daniel Webster, in relation to the Dartmouth College case; and of Mr. Arthur Livermore, Consul of the United States, at Londonderry, Ireland, any letters of Maj. Robert Rogers; and of Mr. Christopher G. Toppan, of Hampton, the manuscript annals of Hampton, compiled by his late father, Mr. Willoughby Toppan; and any other papers or documents of a historical character, which they may think desirable; and that they be authorized to accept any of the same on such terms as they think expedient, and that the Society will ratify their doings in the premises.

Resolved, That said Committee be also empowered to procure, at the expense of the Society, any needed repairs or modifications of the fire-proof chambers, for the reception of such papers.

N. H. State Temperance Union Convention.

The annual convention, under the auspices of the N. H. State Temperance Union, was called to order in Eagle Hall, Thursday morning at half-past ten o'clock, by Rev. A. D. Smith, D. D., President of Dartmouth College. The Convention was opened by prayer by Rev. S. Leroy Blake of Concord. Recording Secretary, F. S. Crawford of Concord, and T. L. Flood of Keene were chosen Assistant Secretaries. A committee of five, on resolutions, to whom all resolutions offered during the sessions of the convention should be referred without debate, was appointed by the chair as follows: J. H. Gallinger, Concord, R. Philbrick, Nashua, Rev. K. S. Hall, Lake Village, Hon. O. F. Fowler, Bristol, Rev. D. W. Faunce, Concord.

A Committee on Nominations was announced by the chair as follows: B. Perkins, Hollis, Hon. D. A. Wade, Concord, W. H. Alden, Portsmouth, O. F. Fowler, Bristol, and P. K. Chandler, Manchester. Also the Committee on Finance: Col. Peter Sanborn, Concord, N. White, Concord, Wm. B. Blake, Raymond, J. D. Page, Concord, and Rev. K. S. Hall, Lake Village.

The Recording Secretary then read his report for the past year, in which it appeared that Mr. Francis Murphy has delivered 126 lectures and obtained 5225 signs to the pledge. He has collected $1000 in money and has about $200 more pledged. Col. Peter Sanborn, Treasurer of the Union, then made his report, which was discussed at some length.

President Smith then addressed the convention briefly but effectively on the subject of temperance, and congratulated the Union on the work it has already accomplished and expressed the belief that it had but made a beginning in the great and noble work it is to perform in the State.

Joseph Smith of East Concord followed with a prohibition speech.

The committee on resolutions reported the following, which were accepted:

Whereas, The evil of intemperance still exists in our land, desolating homes, crushing hearts, creating pauperism, engendering crime, ruining health and blighting the intellectual and moral natures of all who yield to its baneful influence; and whereas, the State Temperance Union was organized to oppose by moral and intellectual means, this great and alarming evil, therefore be it

Resolved, That the first year's work of our organization has been quite as successful as could reasonably be expected, and fully convinces us that we are laboring in the right way, and strengthens the conviction that success in our work largely depends upons (1) the organization of Reform Clubs whenever practicable: (2) the formation of county and town temperance Unions, auxiliary to the State Union; (3) the organization of churches and Sabbath-schools into temperance societies; (4) cordial co-operation with all other temperance organizations in the work of reform; (5) the circulation of the pledge among all classes of the people; and (6) special efforts to interest the young in the principles and practices of total abstinence. We base our hopes of ultimate success largely upon the education of the masses in the direction in which we are working, being fully persuaded that a deep and earnest popular sentiment in behalf of temperance principles is absolutely essential to the successful prosecution of our work, and that without this enlightened sentiment we cannot reasonably hope for the triumph of the temperance cause.

Resolved, That temperance is a cardinal virtue, the rigid practice of which is enjoined upon all who aim to reach the highest self-culture and to confer the greatest amount of good upon society.

Resolved, That inasmuch as total abstinence alone insures safety to the moderate drinker no less than to the reformed inebriate, we urge its practice upon every one, both as a safeguard to themselves and as an example to others; and we enjoin upon temperance men everywhere the paramount importance of teaching and practicing this principle, by circulating the pledge and exhorting to its faithful maintenance.

Resolved, That the formation of temperance leagues in various parts of our State by earnest and devoted women, is one of the hopeful signs of the times, and we welcome them to the ranks of organized temperance workers, assuring them of our sympathy and hearty good-will.

Resolved, That when the temperance cause is lifted out of the arena of party politics, on a distinctive work, and taken up by the churches as a moral and religious duty we will see greater results than can reasonably be hoped for under existing circumstances. We regard it as a duty every temperance man owes himself and society to vote only for such men as most nearly represent his principles and the welfare of the country. In view of the fact we call upon the political parties to place in nomination only such men as we can consistently and honestly support; men who, both by precept and practice are true to the principles that underlie the temperance reform.

Resolved, That we again pledge ourselves to labor for obtaining from every person his or her signature to the pledge; that we, as citizens, will give our sympathy and aid to the Mayors and Aldermen of our cities and to the Selectmen of our towns, as they fulfill the oaths of their office in the legal suppression of the traffic, which is one great hinderance to morality and religion in our State.

Resolved, That we are unqualifiedly opposed to all schemes looking to the repeal of the prohibitory law; while believing that men are amenable to moral suasion in a greater degree than to any other reformatory principle, yet we recognize the fact that legal as well as moral means are essential in carrying on our work. Let our motto be, "Moral suasion for the tempted, moral and legal suasion for the tempter; moral suasion for the drunkard, and moral and legal suasion for the drunkard-maker."

Resolved, That while we point with much satisfaction to the work we have already accomplished in the cause of moral reform, we ask our brethren abroad to consider it merely an earnest of what we hope to accomplish in the future; and that we confidently look forward to the time when the benign cause of temperance will be held as high above all mere partizanships as are the truths of Christian churches, believing that when that exalted position is reached and held we shall have every assurance of final victory over intemperance.

Resolved, That the labors of our State Agent, Mr. Francis Murphy, have been so greatly prospered as to occasion in our hearts deep feeling of gratitude to God for the blessings vouchsafed to our cause through his instrumentality, and whether he longer continues with us, or removes to other fields of labor, we most cordially endorse him as a true, earnest and consistent temperance man, a friend to all who need sympathy and help in their efforts to free themselves from the terrible thraldom of intemperance.

On a motion to adopt the resolutions, Rev. Mr. Cooper of Nashua arose and expressed the sentiment that the Prohibition party and Prohibition Herald shall be recognized in the resolutions.

Dr. Gallinger replied in a very caustic speech, in which he took occasion to explain his position and that of the Temperance Union on the question of temperance, saying that they considered that the cause of temperance can be as well subserved inside the old parties as in the formation of new ones.

J. Horace Kent followed, indorsing the remarks of Dr. Gallinger, and Mr. Cooper replied, when a general discussion ensued, in which several gentlemen participated. It was of a somewhat bitter character, in which epithets applied to members of the Temperance Union by the prohibition party were raked up and discussed. Finally, Mr. Adams offered the following resolution, intended to restore peace and harmony, which after being tabled, taken up, and filibustered over, was finally passed:

Resolved, That we most cordially and heartily endorse all newspapers in the State, so far as they advocate the cause of temperance, whether in its moral or legal aspect.

The afternoon session was opened by reading a letter from Rev. Silas Ketchum of Bristol, indorsing the work of the union, and also one from Hon. E. H. Rollins of Boston, enclosing a draft for $25 to be added to the funds of the organization. The committee on nomination next made a report, recommending the following names for officers, Rev. Dr. Smith declining a re-election to the presidency:

President—J. Horace Kent of Portsmouth.

Vice-presidents—Two from each county.

Secretary—Rev. Elisha Adams of Concord.

Treasurer—Hon. Peter Sanborn of Concord.

Executive Committee—Hon. David A. Warde, F. S. Crawford, Dr. J. H. Gallinger of Concord, Hon. Daniel Hall of Dover, Rev. V. A. Cooper of Nashua, and Rev. S. L. Gerould of Goffstown.

The report was accepted and adopted. The constitution was amended by leaving it optional with the executive committee to call the annual meetings either in December, January and February. Addresses were made by Captain Cyrus Sturtevant of Portland, M. V. B. Richardson of Worcester, Colonel J. B. Perkins of Hollis, Francis Murphy of Concord, S. C. Knights of Cambridgeport, and J. Horace Kent of Portsmouth. After passing the usual resolutions of thanks the convention adjourned.

It's An Ill Wind, etc.

[New York Graphic.]

The Virginius has been duly surrendered, and the war cloud has finally vanished completely. The affair, however, has not been without its uses. The seizure of the Virginius followed close upon the panic, and made financial forebodings, give way to patriotic anger and enthusiasm for redress. It was thus a counter-irritant applied just at the right moment to assist the country to recover from the results of the panic. It may be true that the fitting-out of war-steamers cost the nation over $4,000,000, but the money cannot be said to have been wasted though no war has followed. Many hundreds of workmen were employed in the navy yards just at the time when they most needed work, and the country has been taught the lesson that its navy must not again be permitted to fall into decay and decrepitude.

New Publications.

The January number of LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE commences a new volume of that popular monthly, and is replete with interesting and instructive articles. It contains the continuation of "A New Hyperion," the interest of which is unabated, and which is universally admitted by the press to be one of the most delightful and eccentric descriptions of European travel that has lately been submitted to the public. It is handsomely illustrated by Dore. An illustrated and highly entertaining article is presented, describing the "Trianon Palaces of Versailles," which are noted for being the residence of Marie Antoinette, who figures in history as the presiding genius of this Eden in the Garden of Versailles. "The Necklace of Pearls," by R. H. Stoddard, and "The White Doe," a Florida legend, by Will Wallace Harney, are two charming poems. "Japanese Fox-Myths" is an interesting and amusing article on Japanese mythology. An interesting sketch of Chester Harding, the self-made artist, is also furnished. There is an entertaining article on "Monte Carlo," which, since the closing by the government of the gambling establishments at Baden-Baden, has become the dernier resort of the dissipated fashionables who formerly flocked to that latter city every season. "My Christmas Ball," "A Statue of Shakespeare," and a beautiful sketch entitled "The Three French Marriages," together with the usual array of timely "Gossip" and "Reviews of New Books," go to make up an unusually brilliant number of LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE, which is now winning its way to public favor as one of the most attractive of the periodicals. A powerful new serial, "Malcolm," by George MacDonald, will be begun in the February number.

Treasurer Spinner's Report.

We have received by the politeness of Mr. Spinner his annual report. It is a concise, clearly written report, with his views stated distinctly and intelligibly. He favors the issue of bonds bearing interest at 3.65 per cent., or one cent a day interest, to be used when money is abundant and to be redeemed when money is in demand, at all times supplied.

Mr. Spinner also favors Mr. Creswell's plan to have post-offices offices of deposits. This would require heavy bonds of these officers, and more calibre than many of them are supposed to possess. This might be advantageous.

—A little bit of a woman was on the platform of a New York depot, recently, and wanted her trunk carried down to the baggage-master's office. She appealed to a burly, big fellow to carry it, when he replied: "Bless me! but I'll take both of you!" He picked up the trunk in one hand, seized the woman under the other, and, despite her screams and kicks, carried her the whole length of the depot.

All Doctors approve it.—Sold by Druggists everywhere. Depot, Walker st., New York.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

"Used up."

What is the precise meaning of this familiar phrase when employed to signify an unnatural condition of body and mind? It means exhaustion, languor, want of vital energy, mental apathy—a pitiable state of physical and mental helplessness. The best, and in fact the only perfectly reliable panacea for a "used up" system is that most popular and potent of medicinal stimulants, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. No matter whether the health has been broken down by excessive labor, over-study, an insalubrious atmosphere, anxiety, irregularities in diet, dissipation, or any other cause, this powerful and pleasant vegetable restorative will soon recruit the drooping energies of nature, restoring the integrity of the nerves, and re-establishing that functional regularity which is essential to animal vigor and a hopeful frame of mind. As a cure for debility, in all its varied manifestations, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is unapproached by any tonic in the materia medica.

Local Matters.

Attention, Thieves.

Our subscribers have been complaining of losing their papers from their doors, of late, and the thefts must be abated. We have obtained the names of three persons who have stolen papers from door-steps, two being navy yard workmen. We now give warning that with a repetition of the offence we shall publish their names.

Mistaken Information.

Editors Chronicle: Your informant with regard to the Huneyfield and Clark families was a little too anxious to make a sensational paragraph to be very particular about the truth. The cases are bad enough and sad enough, but the statements there made of destitution and desertion would convey a very wrong impression to one not conversant with the facts of the case. There is no crippled child in the Huneyfield family, and things never were in the state described by your informant. The poor woman who is said to have "deserted her charge" may be excused for her alarm when it is known that she has since lost her only little girl of the same fearful disease. Friends and neighbors, including many who had never heard of either family before, have been very kind and attentive, both with personal services, money, and whatever money can procure; but with such a fearful disease, and the necessarily scant accommodations which poverty can afford, suffering and death are inevitable.

Our Howard Benevolent and Humane Societies, as well as various parish organizations, are always ready and anxious to respond to such appeals; not to mention the private charity which I know is never lacking in Portsmouth when the cry of real distress is heard, or the existence of real distress is suspected. But there is one thing which our city sadly needs. I mean a hospital. It need not be large—a few beds are probably all that would be required. But those few are sometimes very much wanted, and we have nothing whatever of the kind. Will not some of our rich men take this matter into consideration? M.

The High School.

Messrs. Editors; Allow me through your columns to correct the impression which seems to prevail in relation to the resignation of Miss Morgan, Asst. teacher in our high school. The report is current that the general school committee are responsible for the act, inasmuch as they neglected to do justice to Miss Morgan in the matter of increase of salary, when the change was made in the management of said school, and I can most readily correct such impression by quoting the words of the statute, which reads as follows: "The sub-committee on the high school shall consist of three members, one of whom shall be from each ward, and selected by the members from their respective wards. Said sub-committee shall have the whole control of the high school, including the appointment and salaries of the teachers." So the general committee are not responsible unless they may have been unfortunate in their selections. I have no doubt the general committee very much regret the conclusion to which Miss Morgan has arrived and would most heartily endorse any effort to have her withdraw her resignation. Hoping this explanation will be sufficient,

I remain yours, QUILL.

The Truth.

[Portsmouth Journal.]

"We do not know of a single republican —or democrat either, as to that, — who does not desire the continuance of Major Vaughan in the Pension Office in this city. As a man, a citizen, a soldier, and an officer, he is deservedly popular; and it is difficult to believe that there is really any liability of his removal."

To which we have to add, that Major Vaughan's displacement would cause a serious loss of votes to the republican party. When men like Major Vaughan are to make way for others who have seen no service except holiday soldiering, it is high time the party in power was smashed. We speak the unanimous sentiment of all acquainted with the circumstances. We only regret that such a deplorable state of affairs exists which renders a change in the Pension Agency possible.

Aldermanic Board.

On Thursday evening, the petition of Moses H. Curtis and others for a new highway from Newcastle across Little Harbor river to Rye, and thence to the gateway of the Davis farm on Sagamore road in this city, was presented. The Board voted not to grant the petition.

A joint resolution was passed by a vote of six to two, amending joint resolution passed Dec. 8th, amending Ordinance No. 113.

Broke Jail.

Barney Sullivan, the young man imprisoned for forging an order on Mr. John H. Wells, broke jail Thursday night. He broke through the plastering of his cell and by means of a beam raised himself to the attic. By means of blankets torn and knotted together, he lowered himself to the ground. David Marshall, who is confined in the same cell, did not leave.

A Portsmouth Man Abroad.

A friend has sent us a paper, published in Santa Clara, California, called the Santa Clara Echo. It is published by J. W. E. Townsend, formerly of Portsmouth. It is well filled with reading matter, general and local news. Under this last is an account of a debate in the town lyceum. The subject was; "Resolved, that licensing the sale of spirituous liquors is detrimental to the interests of the town." A gentleman led in the affirmative and a lady the negative. Astonishing we thought to have a lady arguing that side. But her argument is reported in the paper, and when we found as our example of her biting sarcasm, her saying that without licensing, men could not so well get tipsy and go home and abuse their families, she did honor to her womanhood, and reproved the customs of the times. J. F.

Kittery Affairs.

It is reported that the Selectmen of Kittery, or some of them, have taken active measures to discover the party or parties who caused to be posted up the famous burlesque handbills concerning Mr. Fentress' lecture, and that the author has been found. However this may be, the general impression here is that the burlesque was not in any way due to malice or ill will, but was simply a practical joke, albeit a rather rough and ill-judged one.

The "New England Jubilee Singers" (colored), of Portsmouth, gave a concert (their first one, I believe,) in aid of Mount Olivet Baptist Church, on Thursday evening in Trefethen's Hall. The hall was filled, and the large audience was delighted with the concert, cheering the singers with liberal applause, and every one going away pleased. The concert was one of the best ever given here, and the troupe should receive a bumper house when they appear at the Temple. So many powerful, richly-musical voices were never gathered into any one "burnt-cork" gang that I ever heard, and the old slave songs of the South should not be defamed by a comparison with the trash generally presented by "minstrel" troupes.

The U. S. S. "Marion" will be launched on Monday, at about 1 o'clock, P. M. She could have been launched several days earlier, but was kept on the stocks to await the arrival of the Chief of the Bureau of Construction.

Laconics.

Assistant Surgeon J. E. Miller is ordered to the Receiving Ship Sabine.

By a reference to our advertising columns it will be seen that the Jubilee Singers are to appear at the Temple on the evening of the 25th,—Christmas evening.

The cable which is to connect the coasts of Ireland and New Hampshire is about half completed. Messrs. Simmons Brothers, of London and Berlin are to receive $6,000,000, for making it.

Joseph P. Morse, Esq., has been appointed auctioneer at the navy yard. His predecessor, Mr. C. Dwight Hanscom, has saved thousands of dollars to the government during his incumbency.

The City Marshal denies that he "killed John Brown's horse and then shot him afterward," but as for the "ears and teeth" his friends can satisfy themselves by calling at the police station.

Congressman Small voted for the $6000 salary, and Congressman Pike and Parker against it. Nothing but an absolute repeal of the "grab" and a return to the old salary will satisfy the people, and Congressman Small was profuse in his promises, last March, to advocate repeal.

That was a pitiful story related to us in the presence of a half dozen witnesses by a Portsmouth homeopathist in our sanctum, Thursday, regarding the sufferings of the Huneyfield and Clark families by scarlet fever. An investigation proves that the facts of the cases were overstated, and rumor was given for supposed facts. As we deemed our information correct, we have no apology to offer our readers for the sensational item.

Abbie Jane Hill (or Peavey) has been missing from Greenland since Nov. 11th and no traces of her whereabouts can be found. She is thirteen years old and wore when she left Greenland, a light brown alpaca dress, a dark gray sack, a white straw hat trimmed with black velvet and black lace, with a peacock feather on one side. She purchased a ticket for Portsmouth and was last seen on board the train. Any person who can give information as to her present place of residence is requested to notify City Marshal Johnson, or to send her to the residence of her aunt, Mrs. Martha McCoy, at Greenland.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!

Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,

Woman in Sacred History,

is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, Legendary, Legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the

make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth that amount. CATARRH!

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I trade at Manchester, N. H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Wearc, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; I had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough; I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has reduced me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I round immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Unlucky Boy.

Max Adeler, the Philadelphia humorist, relates the following sad story: Young Archibald Singerly, of Germantown, has been unfortunate. He read in one of the papers that "when the boys of Virginia City wish to raise their kites they tie the string to a dog's tail, and make the animal run." It occurred to young Mr. Singerly that as this proceeding was conducted upon a sound national basis, he would experiment in the same direction. The difficulty encountered by Mr. Singerly at the outset was that he had an extremely large kite and a mourofully small dog; and the conclusion of the undertaking therefore may be anticipated especially when we intimate that the wind was high. The residents of the neighborhood were surprised to see a dog rushing backward down the street, with considerable velocity, clawing and clawing and scratching at the earth for a hole, and emitting ejaculatory howls, as if he cherished a secret preference for going in another direction. And they were even more amazed to perceive that he seemed to be anchored to something in the heavens. But there was not time for investigation. In a moment a cyclone or something of the kind struck the kite, and before Archibald Singerly could utter a scream, his dog had performed about one-third of the journey to the milky way. It is supposed that the bird's-eye-view enjoyed by that animal was magnificent, embracing as it did Mount Airy, Conshohocken, Savannah, St. Petersburg and Pekin, with numerous smaller villages. But the precise amount of felicity obtained by Singerly's dog while dangling amid the planentary system will perhaps never be ascertained, unless Singerly meets his victim in another world. For, as the kite came sailing down, the string caught a vane of a church steeple, became tangled, and held Singerly's dog in permanent suspense. They tried to blow him loose with a shot-gun, and they succeeded in producing a shower of sausage meat after each discharge, but when the dog had all been shot away, his tail remained pointing due north, and refused to come down. Any one who has a good dog can hear of something to his advantage by applying at Singerly's. Old Mr. Singerly would prefer a bob-tailed dog.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Bad, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot hesitate to give it a fair trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the hebdomadal or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of fine art, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—has lately without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding; a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign counters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. This feature will be a leading one in THE ALDINE, and, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasure and refining influences of true art.

The Chromos issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view of the White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives the Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 22x28 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; each for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. Thus the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, as shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.
The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured a wide a reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most efficacious cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their chest for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, the best system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will be at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.
MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from the out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.
As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders. D. H. MONTGOMERY.

France and Germany.

The special correspondent of the Chicago Tribune in Paris, writes as follows respecting the preparations now making in France for another war with Germany:

There are on the pay-rolls of the army to-day more than 500,000 armed men, stationed in garrisons all over France and Algeria, of whom 30,000 garrison Paris, and 65,000 are kept in Algeria. The cost of the war Department for 1873 will be $90,000,000, and of the Navy Department $31,000,000—making together $121,000,000 as the cost of the standing army and navy in time of profound peace.

THE PRUSSIAN MILITARY SYSTEM has been adopted, to make every man over 20 years of age serve four years in the active army; then they are sent to the reserve of the active army for five years; then into the territorial army for five years; then into the reserve of the territorial army for six years longer,—making twenty years active or passive service. No substitutes are now accepted, and no bounty is paid. The object is to have all men in France over 5 feet high, and fit for service, between the ages of 20 and 40, on the army-rolls as disciplined soldiers, ready for offensive or defensive operations. The French calculate that, in a few years, they will be able to place in the field 1,500,000 men for offensive action, and have another 1,500,000 as reserves, doing garrison-duty, and standing ready to fill up the gaps made in the ranks of the army operating in the field. One thought seems to animate the entire population—to the next time they go to war with Germany, and peradventure to recover the idemnity extorted from them, with interest thereon. It is doubtful if there is a French man or woman, boy or girl, now living in France, but expects and believes that the lost provinces will eventfully be recovered,—must be recovered at all hazards. They calculate on the continued love and affection of the people of those provinces for France; and they count on their active assistance to throw off "the German yoke" when the proper time comes. This is the main reason for France enduring the heavy cost of supporting 500,000 men in arms, and submitting without a murmur to the inexorable military conscription system. The army has been since the conclusion of the war. The worthless officers have been weeded out; a stricter disipline has been introduced; and the muster rolls no longer bear the names of fictitious soldiers, with official hummers drawing pay and rations for those imaginary warriors, as was the case under the late Empire. The German system of tactics and combinations is being carefully studied by the light of their late disastrous experience. The National Guard of Paris is disbanded so that there may be no future fire-in-the-rear from the unshot members of the late Commune organization, which pillaged Paris, and burnt part of it. In short, everything is being done which seems possible to arm, discipline, and prepare the nation for the

CONQUER BACK ALSACE AND LORRAINE,

NEXT STRUGGLE WITH THE GERMANS,

for the recovery of the dismembered provinces. The French say that Bismarck and Moltke, and other great leaders, will die before long, as they are old men; and that Germany will enter upon the next war inflated with vanity and pride, half prepared and half-marshalled, as France was in 1870, which will result in a series of defeats and humiliations. This may or may not be the case; but one thing is certain, that the fighting witnessed during the late war was compared with the fighting that will be done in the next war with France, who will enter upon it with the fires of a volcano burning in her breast. All that rage and hatred, added to valor and discipline, can accomplish, will be achieved. If France is beaten next time, it will be despite of the most careful and perfect preparation, and after her mightiest efforts have been exhausted.

Horse-Car Manners.

Miss Elizabeth Stuart Phelps communicates to the Independent the following observations of a winter's travel in Boston street cars, more particularly in regard to the consideration shown to women passengers therein:

Pretty, healthy school-girls well ruffled and humped, perkily able to stand, and perfectly expecting a seat, receive it.

I have thought that, after all, there may be a subtle relic of tenderness for genuine need in this selection, when one pauses to consider the amount of weight carried by these suffering creatures in their paniers, chignons, and kilt-plaiting. I throw this out as a well-intentioned attempt to be as candid as the circumstances require.

Washwomen with bundles stand. Old women, so frequently as to lead one to say, at a venture, generally, are seated by the courtesy of their own sex.

A young mother, who always goes down town with three children and a bag, usually obtains a seat, and usually by the prompt pushing and plotting of another mother, who espies her a half dozen car-lengths ahead.

A woman with a very little baby in her arms is never allowed to stand by either sex.

An old and feeble gentleman is more likely to yield his rights to a seat than a young and energetic one.

Little Irish boys will not allow a little lady to stand; but do not offer the courtesy to her expressed gratitude, slipping outside shyly in the dignity and delicacy of unthanked service.

A deformed dwarf, whom I wot of on "our road," is fond of assisting cripples up the steps, and apt to be upon the platform if the car is full.

The regular number of passengers upon a side being nine, ten gentlemen will crowd one lady (she being among the earlier arrivals, and there being no more agreeable seat for her elsewhere), till, for very decency's sake, she is driven to stand and leave the field to them.

The passengers being divided on the true Boston principle of separate education of the sexes, nine men will sit and expectorate upon the dress of nine women, (for the use of the straw as a spittoon amounts to that), the whole way into town; and neither the arm of law nor the soul of the corporation will grant the clean-mouthed side of the car redress. I intend no gloomy pun, gentlemen. I have had too many dresses spoiled.

"I wonder what you would think," said a young lady to me, the other day, "of what I see every day of my life. My sister and I go into town on the business train. (They are school teachers.) Where we get upon it there is no platform. We take 'the long step' from the ground to the car. Every morning the gentlemen of Ginger Hill stand in file and push their way before us. When the last man is upon the car and seated, we can get on; not before."

"Why don't you take your turn with the rest? You are not so physically weak as to be driven to submit to such treatment"

"I wouldn't touch such men. I wouldn't push my way through such a crowd. I'd rather wait till I can get on without brushing so much of my dress hem against them."

This happens every morning at a station not many minutes out from Boston, on the Providence Road. I refrain from giving the real name of the place only out of consideration for the ladies, who object. These are not "Woman's Rights Women," it will be understood. They do not go into town to attend suffrage conventions. They have no desire for the ballot. They left no neglected homes behind them. They pursue their professions as quietly, as modestly (and at such a disadvantage) as a woman may. They have never petitioned in the green-room on a hearing for the consideration of the fact that one-eighth of the teachers of Massachusetts, being men, average half as much again in salary as seven-eighths, being women. They do not ask for the nomination of female school committees, to avenge them in their wrongs. They do not strive nor cry, neither is their voice heard in the streets. They do not infringe upon those conditions on which the gallantry of men is supposed to rest.

Daily Chronicle.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1873.

Congressman Small's Vote.

Congressman Wm. B. Small was, after all, right on the salary question. We were led into error by the report of the New York Tribune, which credited him with voting for the $6,000 salary. Mr. Small, however, voted in favor of the lesser amount, $5,500, voting against amending it by the substitution of $6,000, and afterward voted against the bill as amended. He did vote to order the main question put, giving as a reason that the bill had been sufficiently debated.

The Average Congressman.

We have looked over Congress, and we are satisfied; satisfied that nothing calculated to enhance the reputation of the highest deliberative assembly in the United States may be expected from such a set of men; satisfied that the best class of citizens is not faithfully represented by the average Congressman; satisfied that evil communications must naturally corrupt good manners there, in spite of the heaven, we might say sprinkling, of honorable men who chance to be chosen representatives. The best government on the face of the globe should be represented by its best men, but the best men of this country seem too respectable to go to Congress, too honorable to dabble in politics, too conscientious to "fix" the primaries, too high minded to go side by side to the polls with the repeaters. If dignity should be acquired by our national legislature, the dignified men of the nation should send for their representatives of their class.

The Senate is far in advance of the House and is really a creditable appearing body. But few of that body show themselves out of place, while few members of the lower house would be otherwise than out of place if promoted. New England sends a delegation to both houses of Congress marked in appearance, intelligent and able. Of course there are exceptions as in all rules. If the reader is surprised that in the lower house coarse badinage is allowed between members, one look at its "assembled wisdom" will reveal the cause. No wonder that salary grabbing is popular, legal thieving thrives, and love of country, honesty and fair dealing are at a discount. We do not envy the average Congressman his laurels, and had we Congressional aspirations, one glimpse at the House in session would be a speedy cure. We can see no remedy for this by a change of party. The democracy show no improvement over their political opponents. No improvement may be expected as long as the better classes of men hold aloof from politics. Politicians will always have axes to grind and are ever vigilant at election time. When business men find their business ruined, defalcations increasing and the productions of industry decreasing, it is high time that they come to the front and help push away the axe grinders from the revolving stone.

The Franking Privilege.

Congressman Small has introduced the following bill in the national House of Representatives:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that authority to frank mail-matter, is conferred upon and limited to the following persons: First. The chiefs of the several executive departments, and such principal officers of the executive departments, being heads of bureaus, as the Postmaster-General may by regulation prescribe—to cover only official communications, and such packages, not exceeding in weight four pounds, of seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, and scions, by the commissioner of agriculture, and other officers by him authorized, as are now allowed by law to be sent by mail. Secondly. Senators, Representatives, and Delegates in Congress, the Secretary of the Senate, and clerk of the House of Representatives—to cover all books and publications which may be procured or published by order of Congress, and packages, not exceeding four pounds in weight, of such seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, and scions from the agricultural department as now are or may be authorized by law to be sent by mail, and to cover nothing else. Thirdly. Postmasters—to cover official communications to other postmasters only. Fourthly. Collectors and their assistants—for the interchange of official communications only. And no person entitled by law to the franking privilege shall exercise the same otherwise than by his written autograph signature on the matter franked.

Sec. 2. That the following mail-matter shall be allowed to pass free in the mails: first, official communications addressed to chiefs or heads of bureaus, or the chief clerk or franking officer of either of the executive departments; secondly, weekly newspapers, one copy to each actual subscriber within the county where the same is printed or published, but carriers shall not be required to distribute such papers unless postage is paid on the same at the usual rates; thirdly, newspapers, periodicals, and magazines reciprocally interchanged between publishers, and not exceeding twelve ounces in weight, to be confined to a single copy of each publication.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Readables.

Congress has adjourned until Jan. 5th, 1874.

Judge Aldrich of Boston thinks that in the case of a milkman having adulterated milk for sale, justice cannot be satisfied with less than $150 fine.

Cuban advices state that a filibustering expedition has landed on the southern coast; also that a Spanish column 500 strong fell into an ambuscade, and only 100 escaped.

It is reported that the revolutionists in San Domingo have lately gained formidable strength, and that it is probable that by this time the Baez government is overthrown.

A farmer was murdered and robbed by a gang of desperadoes near Sedalia, Missouri, on Wednesday. Soon afterward three of the murderers were captured and hanged by the citizens of the neighborhood.

H. W. Genet, another of the Tammany ring thieves, is found guilty.

The Senate committee has reported a salary bill which gives, even in the house, better satisfaction than the bill which passed the house. It repeals the entire law, except for the President and judges, and re-enacts the former ratio for congressmen, cabinet officers and employes.

It is now regarded as certain that if the President fails to withdraw the nomination of Mr. Williams that it will be rejected. If this takes place the reason for the rejection will be published. The expectation is that in case of rejection Mr. Williams will resign as Attorney-General.

The following promotions have been made and confirmed: Commodore William Reynolds, to be rear-admiral in the navy, vice Jenkins retired; Commodore James H. Strong, to be rear-admiral, vice Charles Steedman, retired; Commodore Enoch G. Parrott, to be rear-admiral, vice William Rogers Taylor, retired; Commodore J. J. Almy, to be rear-admiral, vice G. F. Emmons, retired; Captains Donald McN. Fairfax, James H. Sprotts and James A. W. Nicholson, to be commodores.

The passengers on an eastern bound car were much amused one afternoon lately at the ejaculations of the good natured conductor Mitchell when told by a dead-beat that he had nothing wherewithal to pay his fare. "No ticket! No money! You just bounce right out at the next station; poorhouses all full down east."

The Lawrence American thus pithily expresses what all the fuss was about one hundred years ago: Boston Harbor—A little tea upset in Boston harbor.

State News.

Why not have a portrait of the late John P. Hale in the State House?

Hon. John J. Morrill, of Gilford, who has been very frequently mentioned in connection with the republican nomination for Governor, has withdrawn from the contest.

Matters at Gloucester.

The harbor of Gloucester presents a forest of masts. Some three or four hundred schooners are now hauled up and stripped after their nine months' battling with the elements and encountering the storms of the Banks and Gulf of St. Lawrence. Alas! More than thirty fine schooners that were safely moored there last winter, are not there now; many of them went down with all their crews, and more than two hundred stalwart men, in the prime of life, who walked the streets last spring, are seen on earth no more. Not a place in the United States has such a sad record as this. If Gloucester had not boundless energy, pluck and perseverance, its terrible calamities would have crushed it beyond power to rise again. But she is undaunted; the fisheries for 1874 will be prosecuted with a zeal and spirit that know no such word as fail. All of the vessels lost will be replaced, and the business carried on a larger scale than ever. The products of the fisheries of 1873 were between three and four millions of dollars, and no port, either in Europe or America, in the world, can be named with this in the extent of the fisheries. The salt trade is so great here that some thirty shiploads are annually landed here from Liverpool and Cadiz. Its trade with Newfoundland and other British provinces is also very large.

Business Notices.

Calamities will come upon us in spite of all precaution; but it is gratifying to learn that HELMBOLD'S CELEBRATED BUCHU can still be obtained at all the drug stores, and that it can be relied on to cure all diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Look out for counterfeits! The genuine bears the private proprietary stamp of H. T. Helmbold. For sale by alldruggists.

"Happiness is the absence of pain" says Jean Paul Richter, and 20,000 grateful patients bless the ANAKESIS of DR. SILSBEE as the only infallible cure for Piles ever discovered. It is purely scientific, combining the best methods of the French, English and American surgeons, acting as an instrument, poultice and medicine, and not only affording instant relief from excruciating pain, but performing an absolute and permanent cure. All Doctors approve it.—Sold by Druggists everywhere. Depot, Walker st., New York.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being compounded of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

Old Probabilities. Our learned friend, who sits at Washington, and receives, from the signal stations of a continent, reports on the vicissitudes of the weather, sorts, compares and infers from them the daily bulletins which everybody reads, might reasonably add, in view of our late sudden changes, "Colds, Coughs and affections of the throat and lungs will prevail in the East and North. Warning signals continue in the West and South." In view of the truth of these probabilities, we commend to all sufferers that excellent and potent specific, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has, in countless instances, saved life, and has, within the knowledge of every one, alleviated most alarming symptoms and effected cures almost surpassing belief. So excellent is it that the medical faculty largely use it in their practice. In cases of seated consumption, it prolongs life and softens the stay of the afflicted sufferer. Almost these only it will to have it in the house. By its timely use, serious disease may be checked and turned aside.—Nashua (Iowa) Post.

"Used up."

What is the precise meaning of this familiar phrase when employed to signify an unnatural condition of body and mind? It means exhaustion, languor, want of vital energy, mental apathy—a pitiable state of physical and mental helplessness. The best, and in fact the only perfectly reliable remedy for a "used up" system is that most popular and potent of medicinal stimulants, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. No matter whether the health has been broken down by excessive labor, over-study, an insalubrious atmosphere, anxiety, irregularities in diet, dissipation, or any cause, this potent and pleasant vegetable restorative will soon recruit the drooping energies of nature, restoring the integrity of the nerves, and re-establishing that functional regularity which is essential to animal vigor and a hopeful frame of mind. As a cure for debility, in all its varied manifestations, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is unapproached by any tonic in the materia medica.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choakings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL

CATARRH REMEDY.

To Messrs. Littlefield & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Hooksett, not far from the falls of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 18 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all the time, so that I would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, choakings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

The High School.

Editors Chronicle: I take from two recent issues of your paper, two paragraphs which I propose to employ as texts whereon to preach a sermon on "fair play." The first is this:

"The school committee voted to pay a salary of $800 per year to Miss Franklin, the efficient teacher of music in the schools, at their meeting on Monday evening."

The second is as follows:

"We understand that Miss A. C. Morgan has resigned her situation as Assistant in the High School. Miss Morgan has been a successful teacher for eighteen years and has many friends among pupils and parents. Had the school committee accorded Miss Miss Morgan justice, her valuable services might have been retained, perhaps. Is it too late?"

The above borrowed paragraphs may not seem to have any direct bearing upon each other, but to my vision they have; for the first one points at one of the most glaring pieces of favoritism that has ever been committed by a board of public officers in this city, and the latter refers to as glaring a neglect of meritorious and faithful service, by the same board of public officers and their predecessors. Let us see how nearly parallel the cases of Miss Franklin and Miss Morgan will appear, when held up to public view.

Miss Morgan has served as assistant teacher in the High School for eighteen years, and has proved herself invaluable as an instructor; yet notwithstanding the great natural abilities and finished education required by the position and brought to it by Miss Morgan, her salary until quite recently never exceeded $650 per year, and now is but a hundred dollars more!

And further, when she wished to leave her school a few weeks before vacation, to take advantage of a favorable opportunity for visiting Europe, not only was her request to the committee to hasten the vacation by so long a time refused, (as I am informed,) but she was magnanimously allowed to pay for a young lady to take her place, out of her overpowering stipend.

If Miss Morgan is qualified for the important position she has so long filled—and I have never heard her abilities or faithfulness questioned—her services as second teacher of the High School would have been cheap at $1000 per annum, as prices have ruled of late years; but even after the consolidation of the High Schools had increased her labors, a paltry hundred dollars a year was all that was added to her previous pittance. Now for the other picture.

Miss Franklin has taught music in a portion of the public schools for a few months past, her salary at first having been fixed at $600 per year, (according to common report,) and now has had it raised to $800 a year. This may not be too much; but if $800 a year is not too much to pay for the service rendered by Miss Franklin, then $1000 per year is far too little to pay for such services as Miss Morgan's.

It is idle to pretend that great musical ability or proficiency are necessary to enable any one to do the duty required of Miss Franklin, for it is but the most superficial smattering of music that can be taught in a public school—the merest rudiment, the A B C of vocal music only; and it is just as idle to pretend that great ability and thorough education are not necessary to one in Miss Morgan's position. Yet the one receives for spending a small portion of her time in teaching a subordinate and non-essential branch of study, more than the other does for devoting all her time to teaching the more important branches. Does this look like fair play? Or is there favoritism somewhere?

If the committee wish to signalize their generosity, let them make a fair division: don't give everything to one individual, gentlemen, and leave the rest of us to starve. How would you feel, gentlemen, to have to spend thirty hours each week in a room with seventy children, with no one to help you; to receive the commendatory notices of the committee and $350 per year beside, for your services; and then to see another, for spending less than ten hours each week in service less arduous than yours, and requiring no more ability receive more than double your salary? Don't you think you would feel sore, and ask embarrassing conundrums about what is, and what is not, "fair play?" Once again, gentlemen, if you wish to give a fancy price for any one's services, do so; but try and let a few crumbs fall to the lot of the not overpaid workers who spend all their time teaching in your schools at less than half the salary you so freely bestow on the music teacher. FAIR PLAY.

Kittery Affairs.

The Athlete Base Ball Club are to give a grand Ball in Trefethen's Hall on Christmas night. The first Ball given by the Club, in honor of the Minnie Club of South Berwick, was largely attended and passed off finely; and no doubt the coming one will be equally successful, if the people don't eat too much dinner that day.

The papers announce that Congressman Burleigh has caused the removal of Mr. George D. Shanuon from the position of foreman teamster at the navy yard, and had an Eliot man put in his place. Mr. Shannon is a capital foreman teamster, but he is also a very obstinate man, in proof of which last statement I may mention that in spite of Congressman Burleigh's having had him removed he keeps right on bossing things "as one having authority," and treats his removal by the papers with almost as much contempt as Ben Butler does their criticisms. George and Ben will have to be seen to regarding these things.

I hear (I know not how much truth there is in the story) that Maj. Dan'l. J. Vaughan of Portsmouth has been or is to be ousted from the Pension Agency in your district, to make room for Col. George Marston of Sandown. After long rumination of the matter I have concluded that if the exigencies of party in your State are such as to render it necessary to turn such a man as Dan'l J. Vaughan out, in order to let Geo. Marston step in, that there must be a screw very loose somewhere. I can't tell whether or no there's a crash coming, but if there is I mean to be prepared for it, so I am now in training for a granger, and beg leave to subscribe myself,

Yours truly, HAYSEED.

Accident on the P. S. & P. R. R.

Shortly after midnight of Friday, the residents of the West End were startled from their sleep by the shrill whistle of a locomotive near Dover street. Most persons thought the ear-piercing blast was for an alarm of fire, but as no alarm followed, subsided into somnolence again. The whistling, however, had a serious cause, the intention being to raise a force of railroad men to go to Kennebunk on a wrecking train, one having been sent out also from Portland. It seems that two freight trains had collided between Kennebunk and Day's siding. Freight W left Portland for Boston at 7.40, which was three hours later than the usual time. Near the place above mentioned the train broke apart, and the engineer ran ahead to avoid being struck by the rear part, it being a down grade. He got on to a siding, and then, finding the balance of the train did not overtake him, ran back to get it. While doing so, freight F from Boston ran into him. The up train had two engines and was going down grade. The night was dark and misty. Both trains were running by the time book. The down train was on time. By the collision, Conductor Albert Bisbee who belonged in Saco, Sherburne, the fireman, and brakeman Milan Fetch, of Seabrook, were killed. Mr. Theodore Deverson of this city, engineer, had a shoulder dislocated and an ancle sprained. Conductor Bisbee was engaged to a young lady named Scammon, of Saco, and was to be married Christmas day. The up train had 44 cars and the down train had 22.

We hear that Conductor Bisbee, before leaving the siding to go back after the disconnected portion of his train, told the operator at Kennebunk to telegraph to Portsmouth the condition of affairs. The operator at Kennebunk raised the danger signal, a red lantern, but afterward took it in. When the down freight arrived it stopped for water, but as the lantern was not up did not go to the telegraph office for instructions. The engineer of the down train, Mr. Joseph Morrison, of this city, says he saw a light through the mist, which seemed like that of a lantern on the track. Thinking it might be a signal to stop him he whistled down brakes to slow down, but was astonished an instant afterward to see it was a locomotive light. He reversed the engine, jumped to the tender and told his fireman to jump off. Both did so and the fireman was killed and the engineer saved. The three engines were crushed beyond repair, and but one of the 22 cars of his train was left in running order. Many of the cars of the up train were wrecked. The first passenger train from the scene of the disaster passed through Portsmouth at 11 o'clock, without stopping. The first through train arrived here at 5.30 P. M.

Engineer Deverson was standing at his post, with his hand on the throttle lever, running the second engine of the up train, when he heard the short whistle for brakes from the engineer of the forward engine, and the next moment he found himself beneath a mass of debris of broken cars and engines. He was perfectly conscious, however, and crawled a short distance until he was able to get upon his feet, and feeling faint he called to some one standing near, who assisted him to the brake car, where he lay with his shoulder out of joint for five hours before a surgeon could be procured. Mr. D. arrived at his home on Saturday evening, and is as comfortable as could be expected, though suffering much pain. His fireman found himself lying across the safety valve of the engine, badly hurt, but with no bones broken.

The following have been elected officers of Mt. Sinai Encampment, No. 19, I. O. of O. F.: C. P., Willis S. Hidden; H. P., George H. Gilman; Scribe, Joseph. H. Gardiner; Treas., Benjamin Plumer; S. W., Thomas R. Moore; J. W., John S. Perry.

Chief Patriarch Davis and Brothers of Merrimac Encampment, of Newburyport, made a flying visit to Mt. Sinai and Strawberry Bank Encampments, at the regular meeting of Mt. Sinai Encampment, Friday evening. Past Chief Patriarch E. P. Cummings presented the Encampments, for the kind manner they were entertained three months ago, with pictures of the Chief Patriarch, High Priest, Senior Warden and Junior Warden. The testimonial was received by Chief Patriarch Mudge of Mt. Sinai Encampment and Senior Warden Sides of Strawberry Bank Encampment, with appropriate speeches from past officers of the Encampments. Owing to the lateness of the trains, the three Encampments adjourned to Freeman's oyster house and had supper. Then Merrimac Encampment were invited to the Kearsarge House by Patriarch Dennett, to make that their depot until the arrival of the train. The Patriarchs of our sister city were pleased with their visit as they saw the working of the R. P. Degrees.

The Weather.

For $2.40 we publish the following:

I'm tired of this infernal weather, I wish it would clear off; I've done nothing for the past ten days but ache and wheeze and cough. My back has ached as tho' 'twould break; my nose has run so fast that I can't keep up with it. How long will this thing last? What is this weather owing to? Is government to blame? Or is Old Prob. the guilty one? It really is a shame. Now as reform is all the rage and change is all the go, why can't we have some sunshine clear? Dear Probs.' do pray let's know. My bones do ache, my joints are stiff; I groan from rheumatic; I can't keep warm, in vain I try; I'm in an awful fix. Now won't some interested friend take pity on me, do! and have old M'. Probs.' removed, and some one else put through.

The stations on the Eastern Railroad and connections under its control have lately been provided with blue lanterns as train signals. Such signals are displayed for three minutes after the departure of each train.

At the Boys' High School on Saturday the pupils presented Mr. Clark with one of Rogers' beautiful groups of statuary, entitled "Rip Van Winkle at Home." It was an elegant present and shows the high regard in which the boys hold the recipient. It was a happy occasion, the boys and their teacher exchanging Christmas and New Years' greetings before taking their two weeks' vacation.

The portraits of the Governors Wentworth, three copies, recently finished by Mr. Ulysses D. Tenney, the celebrated artist, from New Haven, Conn., to be placed in the State House, we hope will be placed on exhibition before they are taken to Concord. We learn that Mr. Tenney is to remain in this city a few weeks longer to complete portraits for some of our citizens who have been favored with a view of specimens of his work.

In the discussion of the High School question, those unacquainted with the law have had the impression that the High School committee is alone responsible for the trouble. The facts seem to be that the general school committee raised the salary of Miss Franklin and the High School committee neglected to do the same for Miss Morgan. Endeavors were made last June to place the control of the High School in the hands of the general committee, but Albert R. Hatch, Esq., prevented the necessary reform by urging his pet plan of a sub-committee for the High School. As he is one of the three members of the High School committee it is not difficult to account for his action in the matter.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!

Never before was such an idea attempted for book-illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,

Woman in Sacred History,

is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the

make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous Highway Robbery.

[Dover Democrat.]

Mr. Joseph Drew of Strafford is a dealer in poultry, eggs, butter, &c., &c. He goes about amongst the farmers and makes his purchases, and sends the same to market on speculation, and it is said that he has made considerable of money in the business. Day before yesterday (Monday), he went to Rochester to collect of his commission agent and near night started for home with five hundred dollars in his pocket. On getting back into Strafford, and while ascending one of the "Blue Hills," so called, a man came suddenly out from the road-side, and seizing Mr. Drew's horse by the bit, pulled a revolver from his pocket and demanded Drew's money. He not not only demanded it but knowing that Drew was unarmed and defenceless, he went along by the side of the sleigh and commanded him to sit perfectly still and hold his tongue or he would kill him on the spot. Drew was obliged to obey and in that predicament the robber went through his pockets and secured all the money which Drew had, and then told him to drive on for he wanted nothing more. Drew says he has no idea as to who the rascal was, but an examination of the road, where the robbery took place, and the tracks in the snow, confirm Mr. Drew's statement.

A poor apprentice in Berlin was lucky enough, at the last drawing of the State lottery, to win one-fourth of the great prize. His principal, who knew that the lad had no money of his own, or at least nothing like the amount equired to go in for one-fourth (forty thalers would be about the price of a ticket), pressed his apprentice to confess where he obtained the money for this purpose. The winner penitently acknowledged that it was the produce of the sale of goods stolen from his employer. The principal now claims the lottery prize as his property. The boy's relations, on the other hand, object to its surrendar, and the legal profession will be called upon to decide a point which has probably never been raised before.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood, as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damage and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the great success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron foundation.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN STREET blown in the glass.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, but none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature, and a collection of pic ures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding num ber affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—also lately without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding t a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The woodc ts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign ma ters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painte in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture wa purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash by subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except, in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &C.,

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proven by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1873. These annual sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,
For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.
The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured a wide a reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long-continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and gives a feeling of security against their fatal effects, that is well-founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no mines will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. All coal will first be put down on Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.
MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of musicians and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by dancers desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jackknife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which, I hope, the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.
As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would respectfully recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders. D. H. MONTGOMERY.

Oysters and Insanity.
[Chicago Tribune.]

There is danger in store for the lover of the oyster. There is a blight upon the bivalve which has hitherto enjoyed a reputation for harmlessness. Hereafter, the savory stew, the fancy roast, the dozen fried, the steamed oyster, the scalloped oyster, the broiled in crumbs, the pate, and even the oyster reposing on his pearly half-shell, in his native and naked purity, are messengers of misery, solicitors for insane asylums, and dethroners of reason. A German professor, who was recently requested by his government to examine into the subject of oyster-planting on the Prussian coast, after extending his researches along the English coast and this side of the Atlantic, comes to the conclusion that Germany has 700 square miles of oyster ground, capable of producing over 100,000,000 gallons of the bivalves annually.

After having filled the German mind with these glowing bivalvular expectations, however, he upsets the whole prospect in the most ruthless manner, by declaring in his report that, "In the case of all those who do more bodily than mental labor, and in proportion as the physical exceeds the mental exercise, I have observed a distinct and positive tendency in the oyster, when eaten, to produce emotional insanity, or that sudden, transitory, unheralded, yet terrible, phrenesis which so fatally disturbs the peace of society," He cities, as an indirect proof of this, the irascibility of the fish-women of Ostend and Billingsgate. Having charged the placid clam with the same dreadful tendency, he emphasizes it with the following remarkable assertion; They have in America a sort of political assemblage called a clam-bake, where speeches and music and songs are interspersed with profuse feasts upon a species of oyster called the clam. Vast crowds attend these celebrations, and no sooner are they gorged with the insidious comestible than they become full of excitement and furores; swear themselves away in fealty to the most worthless of demagogues; sing, fight, dance, gouge one another's eyes out, and conduct themselves like madmen in a conflagration."

This is hard. It is hard enough to go without the oyster, but it is still harder to have our faith in the innocence and long suffering of that patient and silent animal disturbed. It is hard to give up clams, but it is harder still to believe that the clam is not happy at low tide, as has been said, but is a miserable, morose creature, plotting mischief in his mud-hole against the intellect of the man who is digging for him. It is hard to believe that the oyster, who only wags his beard and looks grave as he sees the fatal oyster-rake approaching him, is meditating a phosphoric-stack upon the brain of the raker, which will lead him into a frenzy and induce him to kill his mother, or brain the first person he meets, in a fit of emotional insanity. It is sad to think that the piles of oyster shells, symmetrically arranged in front of the saloons, heaped up to entice the hungry traveller, will only blast his noble and most sovereign reason, "like sweet bells jangled out of tune and harsh," and that the handsome collections of oyster cans which ornament every metropolitan back yard have contained "turbulent and dangerous lunacy."

The German Professor kindly allows those who are engaged in mental labor to eat the oyster, whose phosphorous is not dangerous to them. It is the man who toils with his hands who must beware the seductive creature, which, while it tickles his palate, is insidiously dethroning his intellect by filling him full of phosphorus, so that he is at any time liable to ignite like a match, and go off in a frenzy of passion. Toilers with the hands and naturally irascible people should therefore beware the oyster and the clam; and if these, why not the soft shell crab and lobster? There is danger lurking on the mud flats of Long Island and the Chesapeake. The pearl which sparkles in the oyster's bosom reflects only the wild gleam of insanity.

The New York Fog.
[World.]

Those who have laughed at the stories about the English cockney feeling his way through a London fog had an opportunity to see how it was themselves yesterday morning. Old river men say that the fog which hung over New York and neighborhood during Tuesday night and Wednesday morning was the densest they have ever seen. It was dense enough to cause them to desist from futile attempts to navigate long before it was thickest.

But what was so serious a matter for water men in general was regarded as a good joke on land. The very novelty of the thing sufficed to make it interesting. On rising yesterday morning and drawing up the window shade, one was astonished at the out-door prospect, or more correctly speaking, the want of an out-door prospect.

But, what was so serious a matter for water men in general was regarded as a good joke on land. The very novelty of the thing sufficed to make it interesting. On rising yesterday morning and drawing up the window shade, one was astonished at the out-door prospect, or more correctly speaking, the want of an out-door prospect.

First, one tried to discern from the thick mist the outlines of that familiar church spire, or that customary tall chimney from which smoke should have been issuing.

Neither the church spire nor the chimney was there. On trying to look across to the rear of the house in the next street to see if Jones was up, Smith found that he could not so much as see the houses in the next street much less tell whether Jones was sitting in his window. Then Smith looked to see if that same old cat was sitting on his garden fence, but was surprised to find that there was no fence. The first emotion on making these strange discoveries was one of fear lest something dreadful was going to happen in nature; but on getting out and feeling that it was nothing but a vain east wind courage returned.

At half-past nine A. M. the fog in the streets was so dense that a person could not recognize an intimate acquaintance at a distance of more than twenty feet. People standing on the street corners wishing to a car, heard the cars rolling by and the bells jingling but saw nothing. It was necessary to go out into the street and stand close to the track, and then risk hailing the wrong car.

What was very remarkable during all this time that the fog lingered was that in the houses it was almost as light as if the sun were shining brightly. This probably was owing to the fog extending only a short way up from the surface of the earth. Toward noon the dense surface clouds began to disappear and almost immediately the sun began to shine. At that moment the scene was also interesting. Although near midday it looked like early sunrise. Windows, lamp-posts, telegraph poles, as well as the paving-stones were covered with vapor, which soon began to steam and disappear beneath the effect of the sun's rays. It was a great relief to be able once more to see for a distance of a whole block or two.

Readables.

The Emperor William of Germany has had a slight attack of apoplexy.

Thirteen persons were drowned by the capsizing of a ferry-boat on the Thames, near Molesley, Eng., Sunday.

Attorney General Williams has decided that the Virginius was improperly flying an American flag when captured, and that her owner, Patterson, took a false oath when her register was obtained.

Genet, the convicted New York "ring" thief, escaped on Monday from the sheriff's office.

Gov. Booth is elected U. S. Senator from California.

Two Boston swindlers have come to grief. Phillip Goldstein, who set his fancy goods store on Washington street on fire about a year ago, with a view to defraud an insurance company, is sentenced to ten years in the State prison. Rev. John Hutchinson, who formerly supplied a pulpit at the Highlands, was also sentenced to a year and a half in the house of correction for swindling. He has already spent eleven months in jail.

As the morning train east on the lately-opened Wells River and Montpelier Railroad was passing through Groton on Thursday, the engineer saw a man near the track frantically waving his hat and shouting something inaudible. As it was upon a down grade the engineer could not stop for some little time, and upon running back to learn the cause of the detention, the man coolly handed a letter to the conductor with the reasonable request that he should "mail that down to Wells River as he was very partickler it should go that day."

A swindler is going around New Haven soldering tinware. If he can get hold of a piece of tinware, he will punch two holes in it, one large and the other small. He will then mend the small hole, and if the owner refuses to buy his solder, he will leave the large one unmended.

The Temperance Convention.

[Concord Monitor.]

The convention held in this city on Thursday, by the State Temperance Union did a good work in the main, and was characterized by much enthusiasm. Together with the mass meeting of the previous evening, which was one of the most interesting temperance gatherings we ever attended, it must exert a wide and beneficent influence, even if it does not give a new impetus to the greatest and most vital of all reforms. There was a freshness, an originality, an earnestness exhibited by the reformed men who spoke, which quite took all hearts by storm. In contrast with the stale and spiritless harangues of men who have seized hold of this reform as a mere hobby, or simply as a means for their own aggrandizement and political advancement, these speeches were indeed as "apples of gold in pictures of silver."

The resolutions are characterized by earnestness, high purpose, and unswerving devotion to the cause. They are broad and catholic, and a great improvement over the usual stereotyped platitudes of many similar conventions. They eschew no means calculated to enhance sobriety and upright living. They deprecate—at least indirectly—the purpose of a few impracticables to play into the hands of anti-prohibitionists by establishing a third party. Indeed, almost every line conveys a rebuke for all such schemers.

We are glad to note the interest prominent men are taking in the Temperance Union, an interest not confined to words, but expressed in generous contributions, for it affords a common centre around which all true friends of temperance may rally, and from whence it is not too much to hope there will flow an influence productive of lasting benefit to our people.

—The Buffalo Express pertinently exclaims:—"What a wonderful, vigorous, manly, intellectual party it must be, one of whose greatest men is Sunset Dew-Drop Shoo-Fly Cox!"

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

A LADY PROPOSING OR OFFERING HERSELF IN MARRIAGE.—Horrid, outrageous, vulgar, some exclaim. Why? Has she no rights? Is she not allowed any choice in matrimony? Must she accept such an offer as she happens to have, or remain unmarried? We cannot so understand it.

We confess however, that there is not an equality in the sexes. Man is superior to woman in size, strength and in constituted power to direct, plan, manage affairs in the domestic economy and the world. In Bible times Isaac proposed marriage through the agency of another. Jacob solicited and proposed. So did Samson after finding one in Timnath that pleased him, and with whom he fell in love. So it has been largely in all ages among civilized nations. There may be some fitness in it. It may be the rule, but it has some important exceptions. A case as a good illustration will be given.

The Pilgrims commenced the settlement of New England at Plymouth, Mass., in 1620. In regulating their affairs and providing for defence, Myles Standish was chosen Captain. In the course of a few months a great mortality took place. Among those who died was Rose Standish, wife of the Captain. Her death took place Jan. 29, 1621. In a very short time he thought to marry again. So he sent an intimate friend, John Alden, to Mr. William Mullins, proposing to him to visit his daughter, Priscilla. Mr. Alden, young and goodly in appearance, went on the important errand. He communicated the wishes of the Captain. The father had no objection, but said Priscilla must speak for herself. She was called, and young Alden in good faith communicated the message to her. She listened attentively, paused and then said, "John, why do you not speak for yourself?" He was surprised, blushed, bowed, took his departure, but with a look that showed how he felt. He soon made other visits and in time they were joined in wedlock; the union was a happy, prosperous one. He became a man of note and the blood of the Alden family has run in the veins of many respectable people in New England ever since.

State News.

On Monday, George Noyes was thrown from a sleigh at Manchester. His head struck a stone post and he was killed.

The ninth annual reunion of the veteran soldiers of New Hampshire will take place at Concord on the 8th of January. An oration will be delivered by Colonel Carroll D. Wright.

Levi Bartlett of Warner, the venerable agricultural writer, is preparing a historical and geological paper on the Bartlett family. He is in possession of valuable family records, from which it appears that the Bartletts in the United States are descended in a traceable and direct line from an officer by the name of Adam Bartlot, who served in the Norman army, which, in A. D., 1066, under William the Conqueror, overran and conquered the island. The article will be read before the Historical Society. Mr. Bartlett is in possession of highly valuable family records which he has recently received from a cousin of his in England—Sir John Bartlot, lord of the ancient manor of Tapson, and a member of the present House of Lords.

One of the landlords of a celebrated White Mountain hotel has gone to Jacksonville, Florida, to act as manager of a large hotel in that place during the winter season.

The Lacona Democrat advocates the claim of Judge Roberts, of Rollinsford, as the democratic candidate for governor. The judge is not a lawyer, having been side judge in the days of the courts of common pleas, abolished some time since. Of course he is a farmer. He is a member of the Baptist church, and has for fifty years been an attendant upon Sabbath schools, superintendent of one of these schools for seventeen years. The experience obtained in these pursuits has not already been regarded as a requisite for a successful candidate with the democracy, but the State is close, and the party will incline to overlook some things if the candidate is sound on the license question.

Death of a Printer.

[Boston Globe.]

"Mr. George W. Bazin, the veteran printer, known in this city for over half a century, and commanding the highest respect not alone in matters pertaining to his own business, but also in many outside circles where his influence was felt, died at his residence on Milford street, Sunday evening, at eight o'clock, having reached the age of seventy-nine years and eight months. Mr. Bazin was born in Portsmouth N. H., April 20, 1794, and lived there for the first twenty-five years of his life, learning his trade there in the office of the Oracle, Mr. Charles Green of the Boston Post serving his apprenticeship in the same office at the same time. In 1820, Mr. Bazin came to Boston and readily found employment in the office of the Trumpet, now the Universalist Weekly, where he continued for about forty years, excepting six years which he spent in Portland in the office of the Eastern Argus. Mr. Bazin's management of this journal was marked with great success. His position on the principal Universalist organ of New England brought him into communication with the leading spirits of the denomination, and his lively interest in all matters pertaining to his church made Mr. Bazin himself a leading spirit, and owing their origin to him, among many enterprises of successful issues, the establishment of the Boylston Hall and Chardon street societies, should be named. Mr. Bazin was a member of the Common Council of Boston in 1834, and again in 1837. He was one of the oldest members of the Massachusetts Mechanics Charitable Association. For the last nine years of his life, Mr. Bazin has worked at the case in the employ of Messrs. Rand & Avery, rarely missing a day until he was taken ill, about a fortnight ago. On the last election day, Mr. Bazin went to the polls and voted, and then returned to his house never to leave it alive. His death was caused by general debility attending old age and was comparatively easy, though by no means free from pain. Mr. Bazin was married shortly after coming to Boston. The fruits of the marriage was a family of eleven children, four of whom only survive their father to share in their mother's grief."

The late Rev. T. H. Miller was taught to set type by Mr. Bazin, Mr. Charles Turell being publisher of the Oracle at the time.

Railroad Matters.

A stockholder of the Boston and Maine Railroad writes to the Portland Press as follows:

As a stockholder in the Boston and Maine Railroad, I have observed the recent action of its managers with deep, and I may say painful interest.

The heavy fall of the stock, indicating in the apprehension of many a real depreciation of the value of the road, really demands the serious attention of the stockholders. I was perplexed by the adoption of the resolutions of Mr. William G. Means at the recent annual meeting, but am somewhat relieved by the action of the new board of directors reported in the Advertiser last Monday. I have no great affection for the Eastern Railroad, which is largely our rival, but I do think it the duty of our directors to manage our road so that we are not to be ruined by our attempts to put down a rival.

Before the recent extension of the Boston and Maine Railroad to Portland, we had a business which would pay ten per cent. dividends upon our stock of five million, in defiance of all possible competition, and without regard to freight and travel coming from Maine. How are we to get dividends upon the four millions more that we expended in the State of Maine, and the additional million it will take to complete the schemes already undertaken there?

I have been informed that before the "extension," the Boston & Maine Railroad received from the Grand Trunk and Maine Central roads, $14 50 per car-load of freight from South Berwick to Boston, while under the present contract with the Grand Trunk the Boston and Maine Railroad hauls freight the whole distance from Portland to Boston for $15 per car, or the whole length of the extension for fifty cents! Also that before the "extension" was made, the Boston and Maine Railroad received for carrying from South Berwick to Boston passengers from the Grand Trunk and Maine Central roads $1 16 each, and that our road now receives for transporting the same class of passengers the whole distance from Portland to Boston not more than $1 25 to $1 50 each, taking into consideration the cost of agencies and similar expenses, and that the local travel from Portland to Boston, for which we formerly received $1 74 per head, now nets not more than $1 25 to $1 50 by reason of the same expenses.

Good judges estimate the whole local transportation upon both lines of railroad from Portland to the New Hampshire line to be not more than sufficient to pay a dividend say of twelve per cent. per annum upon a capital of $2,500,000, the cost of the Portland, Saco and Portsmouth Railroad. The through business as stated above adds nothing to our income. How can we earn any dividend upon the four or five millions expended upon the "extension" in Maine? It seems to me that we have loaded this end of our very valuable road with an unprofitable and burdensome "extension," the effect of which may be felt severely in our future dividends.

I think I can understand the motion of Mr. Means, who I am told has little or no stock in our railroad (I have been informed one share), but is agent of a large manufactory near South Berwick and interested much more in the price of freight to his mills than in railroad dividends; and I cannot see any cause for hesitation on the part of the directors of the Boston & Maine Railroad to take any step that may tend to relieve us from the consequences of a rivalry which seems to have led both parties in the direction of mutual destruction. It is to be hoped that common sense rather than passion will guide the future management of the Boston and Maine Railroad, and that our directors will be wise enough to retrench all expenditures and avoid all measures which tend to waste our money for no better object than to injure our adversary.

Business Notices.

Calamities will come upon us in spite of all precaution; but it is gratifying to learn that HELMBOLD'S CELEBRATED BUCHU can still be obtained at all the drug stores, and that it can be relied on to cure all diseases of the Kidneys and Urinary Organs. Look out for counterfeits! The genuine bears the private proprietary stamp of H. T. Helmbold. For sale by all druggists.

"Happiness is the absence of pain" says Jean Paul Richter, and 30,000 grateful patients bless the ANAKESIS of DR. SILSBEE as the only infallible cure for Piles ever discovered. It is purely scientific, combining the best methods of the French, English and American surgeons, acting as an instrument, poultice and medicine, and not only affording instant relief from excruciating pain, but performing an absolute and permanent cure. All Doctors approve it.—Sold by Druggists everywhere. Depot, Walker st., New York.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood, or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." Hyomei would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

Old Probabilities. Our learned friend, who sits at Washington, and receives, from the signal stations of a continent, reports on the vicissitudes of the weather, sorts, compares and infers from them the daily bulletins which everybody reads, might reasonably add, in view of our late sudden changes, "Colds, Coughs and affections of the throat and lungs will prevail in the East, and North. Warning signals continue in the West and South." In view of the truth of these probabilities, we commend to all sufferers that excellent and potent specific, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has, in countless instances, saved life, and has, within the knowledge of every one, alleviated most alarming symptoms and effected cures almost surpassing belief. So excellent is it that the medical faculty largely use it in their practice. In cases of seated consumption, it prolongs life and softens the stay of the afflicted sufferer. About these days it is well to have it in the house. By its timely use, serious disease may be checked and turned aside.—Nashua (Iowa) Post.

"Used up."

What is the precise meaning of this familiar phrase when employed to signify an unnatural condition of body and mind? It means exhaustion, languor, want of vital energy, mental apathy—a pitiable state of physical and mental helplessness. The best, and in fact the only perfectly reliable panacea for a "used up" system is that most popular and potent of medicinal stimulants, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. No matter whether the health has been broken down by excessive labor, over-study, an insalubrious atmosphere, anxiety, irregularities in diet, dissipation, or any other cause, this powerful and pleasant vegetable restorative will soon recruit the drooping energies of nature, restoring the integrity of the nerves, and re-establishing that functional regularity which is essential to animal vigor and a hopeful frame of mind. As a cure for debility, in all its varied manifestations, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is unapproached by any tonic in the materia medica.

Local Matters.

The Accident at Kennebunk.

The engineers of the up train seem to have done their duty in notifying the watchman and operator at Kennebunk to stop the down freight, as their train blocked the track. When they left, the danger signal was up and they had every reason to expect it would remain so. After the down train had stopped for wood and water, at Kennebunk, the telegraph operator there, a boy of sixteen years, thought it might be wrong to keep them and telegraphed the night operator at Portsmouth, asking if he should detain them longer. Why he did not state any reason for the query is beyond conjecture, knowing as he must that if the down train went on, a collision was inevitable. The operator here, Mr. Harry Wing, did not inquire the reason the telegram was sent him.

The Portland Press condemns the railroad officials in that city, for endeavoring to keep particulars of the accident from the people, who were anxious about friends. The wildest rumors obtained credence.

Engineer Morrison says he was running the down train slowly and could have stopped before striking the up train, which was going twelve miles an hour, had the rails not been slippery with sleet. He thought the up train was on a side track. The trains met at the foot of two grades. Felch, who was killed, had an arm and leg taken off. Bisbee, the conductor, had his head split open. He was 23 years and four months old. Abraham Sherman, fireman, who was killed, had an arm torn off. Frank Knights, a fireman, had his hand torn off and experienced other injuries on the leg.

The "Mattawamkeag" was the foremost of the two engines of the up train, and when engineer Gowen first sighted the head-light of the locomotive of the down train it was only two rods distant. He leaped through the cab window, down an embankment of ten feet, and ran forward to get out of the way of the coming cars, which were principally filled with pressed hay.

The damage to the three locomotives is estimated at $25,000, probably an underestimate. The coal burner cost $27,000; the others about $15,000 each. The loss in cars was also serious.

The Biddeford Democrat says:

We know that the Eastern Railroad managers have resorted to every expedient or precaution to ensure the safety of passenger trains on this road; and the Railroad Commissioners of Massachusetts say that on no road in the United States has so much been done in construction of cars and in the disposition of the best appliances to guard against accident. Nearly every accident on this road for the past year until now has been of a slight character and always to freight trains, on account of some carelessness of employees. We do hope that the managers will soon obtain employees that are reliable. It has sometimes seemed as though somebody was deliberately planning to injure the road by accidents to freight trains, which seldom results in the loss of life.

How He Escaped.

Ramsey Sullivan, who escaped from Portmouth jail Thursday night, has perseverance enough to make a man of himself. His jail breaking feat shows that he is a daring fellow and fertile in expedients. He was confined in a cell with David Marshall, who did not attempt to escape. Sullivan's labors were of two weeks' duration (Marshall says). There were two iron bedsteads in the cell, and as one only was used, the other served, when laid up against one corner with a case of books placed on it, to conceal his operations. Taking a slat from his iron bedstead, Sullivan heated one end red hot and then drew it to a point by beating it on the stove. When he had succeeded in doing so, he used it to dig the timber which lay between him and liberty to pieces, splitting off splinters until the beam, which was iron-bound and well spiked, being more than a foot square, was but a skeleton and the spikes could be drawn. When it was broken, Sullivan found it impossible to break two iron bars running across it and actually hauled himself up between them, the aperture being but 11 by 13 inches. Reaching the attic, escape was within his reach with the help of the bed-clothing. Workmen have been engaged for a day or two repairing the breach. When Sullivan's escape was discovered and the spare bedstead removed, a bushel or more of debris was found behind it.

Those Hard Cases.

Editors Chronicle: The Times of Friday and the CHRONICLE of Friday and Saturday have items respecting the Huneyfield and Clark families. The Times states that it got its information of the sad condition of the families from the City Physician. I will say that a young man from the Times office called at my office and asked for information about the Huneyfield family. I told him that I had not tended them and only knew what had been told me by persons who had reported the case to me as one that should be seen to, but as I do not attend to such cases without an order from the Mayor or the overseers of poor, I did not call. I gave the report to him as it came to me, hoping that if the case was as represented, it would be relieved.

In regard to the Clark family, I will say that the Mayor gave me orders to call on them. I called and found another physician treating them. I found them in the condition represented by your informant. I did not send the coal and provisions, but told Mrs. Clark that the city would do so if she asked for it. I did, however, carry her a large bundle of clothing given to me by Dr. Kimball for that purpose.

At the time you wrote that "sensational item," the substance of which you got from me, I (the homeopathic physician referred to) was looking for an officer to send coal and wood to another distressed family on Water street. I was detailing the three cases to a city officer, and in the general conversation the cases got mixed up.

C. A. NORTON, M. D., City Physician.

The High School.

We hardly think that Portsmouth could sustain a greater loss than the loss of Miss Morgan from our High School. She is not only a fine instructor, but she has the rare power of awakening the intellects of her scholars and inspiring them with an interest and a love for study. No girl can long remain listless or mechanical in her work while under her influence; for that influence tells not only on the mind of the young, but on the conscience and heart, arousing all the best sides of character and moulding character by high aims and true motives.

Her power for good on a generation of young people educated under her discriminating and judicious care, who can estimate? Nor can we afford to lose it. Such teachers are rare, uniting all that is noble in womanhood with great fidelity in every detail of a hard and irritating profession. The committee on "ways and means" should be guided by generous economy. The best is always the cheapest. K.

Laconics.

Rev. James De Normandie delivered an able discourse on Agassiz, Sunday, at the Unitarian church.

The wife of Mr. J. H. Thompson fell and broke her left arm, Monday morning, at 54 Pleasant street.

A window in the store of Miss Tuckerman on Congress street was broken on Sunday night and $20 worth of goods stolen.

The drawing for the chamber set, fairy pond, dressed doll, and tea party on exhibition at Henderson's will take place Christmas eve. Tickets 10 cents.

Harry Holmes, an employe of C. E. Myers & Co., fell on the ice while skating on the South pond, Monday, and injured his head so badly that a physician was called.

Chief Engineer W. W. W. Wood, chief of the Bureau of Steam Engineering, and Isaiah Hanscom, Esq., Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repairs, were in town, Monday, and attended the launch of the U. S. S. Marion.

U. S. S. Marion was handsomely launched from the easterly ship-house at twenty minutes past one o'clock, Monday. There was a large attendance of spectators. As the vessel commenced moving, the U. S. Naval Band, which was on board, commenced playing a popular tune. Several ladies took passage from the ship-house to the Piscataqua river, and the usual christening ceremonies were observed. A salute was fired from the receiving ship Sabine.

A member of the police force was considerably excited on Monday morning over the supposed loss of his horse. He left him standing on the street for a short time to attend to some business, and on returning the horse could not be found. After spending an hour in fruitless search and reporting his loss to the other members of the force who sympathized with him, Dobbin was found quietly standing in Mr. Balch's stable, where he had gone to keep warm, not enjoying the cool December air. No reward was offered.

British ship America, Capt. Bartlett, from Barrow, Eng., for St. John, N. B., has foundered off the Banks of Newfoundland, and the master and three men were drowned. The remainder of the crew took to the boats, and after being out six days, exposed to the winds and waves, were picked up by the barque Louisa Wichards, from Wilmington, N. C., and were landed at Dartmouth, Eng. The America was 1087 tons register, built here in 1846, but was sold several years ago to parties in St. John, N. B.

The feeling of indignation caused by the proposed change in the pension agency grows in intensity. The Boston Advertiser of Monday says; "Considerable interest is manifested in regard to the pension agency at Portsmouth. Major D. J. Vaughan, the present incumbent, is a practical printer, a battle-scarred hero, and is satisfactory to the people of the State, and half the New Hampshire delegation favor his retention. Major George Marston, of Sandown, a former army paymaster, wants the place and has the support of the other half of the delegation. Marston voted for Cragin for Senator in the general court, and advocates Mr. Small's interest, and these gentlemen gratefully go for him. It is understood that the contest ceases until after the holidays."

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choking, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

To MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & Co., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Hennikerr, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 12 years old; had it bad all the time; it run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1872.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, choking and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!

Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; everyone who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,

Woman in Sacred History,

is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHARCOAL OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, as her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but its

make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous binding of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous and salesmen, because it is absolutely new and "has money in it." To get pleasant work and good pay, send for terms, circulars, &c., to J. B. FORD & CO., New York, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, or Cincinnati. d12

SENSATION AMONG AGENTS

A Colorado Phenomenon.

The Central City (Colorado) Register of Dec. 7th contains the following story: "A gentleman was walking down Virginia Canon the other day. There was no perceptible breeze at the time. Suddenly he was surprised by a roaring noise behind him—a noise that of an express train when crossing a bridge, or passing a rocky wall. Stopping a moment to listen, a whirlwind, apparently not more than a yard in diameter, and traveling no faster than a spirited walk, picked him up, as it were, and waltzed down the road with him. Its vertical force was sufficient to raise his coat-tails above his head, notwithstanding the pockets were loaded with specimens of silver ore, and at the same time he was carried along for a hundred feet or more, like a feather, with both feet occasionally off the ground, while under him was a noise like that of an empty cart bouncing over a stony street."

A Warning to Editors.

The people of Waukesha, Wis., got a good deal of amusement, recently, out of a trial in which Messrs. Fay, proprietors of a hotel, tried to recover about $97 from Ashley D. Harger, editor of the Oconomowoc Times for meals and cigars. Harger admitted he had the meals and cigars; but he says in his defence that he paid for them in local items. "We had a general understanding,' says Harger. "He was to go for me and I for him; he was to tickle me, and I was to tickle him. I gave him local notices—favorable ones. I have told a great many lies—editorially—worth more than $1000. My bill for puffing, at the regular rates, amounts to $138 and my bill for job work, cards, etc., $30." Harger then harangued the jury and got his case.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Skin Diseases, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 70 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Models of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the Luxurious Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, lightsome, graceful literature; and a collection of pic ures, the artistic merit of which is unsurpassed, in black and white. Although each succeeding issue has for its object to please the friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—the lonely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume can defy duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shade or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will display choice examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvassers, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL of AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agricultural Men, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and, by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Superior and Inferior Producer, as well as the great Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, products and returns of each successive Season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But, immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines have been sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer Machines, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

"A New Thing Under the Sun."
SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!
Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustrations; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,
Woman in Sacred History,
is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the
make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous binding, in the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous

IN KITTERY CHURCHYARD.

[Celia Thaxter in the Atlantic Monthly.]

"Mary, wife of Charles Chauncy, died April 29, 1780, in the 34th year of her age."

Crushing the scarlet strawberries in the grass,
I knelt to read the slanting stone. Alas!
How sharp a sorrow speaks! A hundred years
And more have vanished, with their smiles and tears,
Since here was laid, upon an April day,
Sweet Mary Chauncy in the grave away,—
A hundred years since here her lover stood
Beside her grave in such despairing mood,
And yet from out the vanished past I hear
His cry of anguish sounding deep and clear,
And all my heart with pity melts, as though
To-day's bright sun were looking on his woe
"Or such a wife, O righteous Heaven! bereft,
What joy for me, what joy on earth is left?
Still from my inmost soul the groans arise,
Still flow the sorrows ceaseless from mine eyes."
Alas, poor tortured soul! I look away
From the dark stone,—how brilliant shines the day!
A low wall, over which the roses shed
Their perfumed petals, shuts the quiet dead
Apart a little, and the tiny square
Stands in the broad and laughing field so fair,
And gay green vines climb o'er the rough stone-wall,
And all about the wild birds flit and call,
And but a stone's-throw southward, the blue sea
Rolls sparkling in and sings incessantly.
Lovely as any dream the peaceful place,
And scarcely changed since on her gentle face
For the last time on that sad April day
He gazed, and felt for him, all beauty lay Buried with her forever. Dull to him
Looked the bright world through eyes with tears so dim?

"Soon shall follow the same dreary way
That leads and opens to the coasts of day."
His only hope! But when slow time had dealt Firmly with him and kindly, and he felt
The storm and stress of strong and piercing pain,
Yielding at last, and he grew calm again,
Doubtless he found another mate before
He followed Mary to the happy shore!
But none the less his grief appeals to me
Who sit and listen to the singing sea.
This matchless summer day, beside the stone
He made to echo with his bitter moan,
And in my eyes I feel the foolish tears
For buried sorrow, dead a hundred years!

Mr. Whipple in the N. Y. Stock Exchange.
Danbury News.

Mr. Aminadab Whipple of Danbury was in New York, Thursday. He went to look at the new buildings, and visit a friend in the Stock Exchange. Mr. Whipple took a view of the Grand Central depot, Barnum's iron structure, and the Post Office, examining the latter more critically than the others, because of its being built by the government, and Mr. Whipple owns taxable property. At a seasonable hour Mr. Whipple appeared at the door to the Exchange. To our home readers it is not necessary to speak of his personal appearance, but to the many who have no acquaintance in this section, but who will undoubtedly take an interest in this recital, a description of his person will not be amiss. Mr. Whipple is about forty-five years old, is rather stout built, long in the body, and short in the legs; is of a florid complexion, with a nose that lops down over his upper lip: and perfectly bald on top of his head, as to the product of nature, but quite luxurious in wax-colored hair as to the product of art. On this occasion Mr. Whipple had on a nice high hat, and a very bright and very broad red neckties. Out of justice to Mr. Whipple we should say that he hesitated a moment at the door, in doubt of the propriety of projecting so much of worldly vanity upon so grave an assemblage. He would have taken the tie off and slipped it into his pocket, but it was difficult to detach, and would be still more difficult to affix again, so he threw as much gravity into his face as possible to offset the frivolity of his neckerchief and marched in. The grave assemblage became immediately aware of Mr. Whipple's advent, and watched his wandering eye with feverish expectation. Upon his advance into the room, a pale looking man of remarkable attenuation stepped briskly behind him, and almost simultaneously Mr. Whipple's new high hat came down over his wondering eyes, being impelled thereto by a sharp blow. Acting on the first impulse, Mr. Whipple shouted "Git out!" and made a move to raise his hat so as to relieve his eyes, when the movement was anticipated by some one else, and the hat suddenly left his head and flew into the midst of the grave assemblage, while at the same moment Mr. Whipple was taken sharply by the back of the neck and given such a violent shake as to completely shed his wig. At this there was a derisive shout from the assembly, and cries of "Bounce him!" resounded from side to side. It was just here that Mr. Whipple became possessed of the idea that the entertainment to come off as shadowed forth by the expression, "Bounce him," was of a private nature, which his presence might embarrass, and he straightway made for the door, and would have probably reached it had he not been caught up by each leg, and passed bodily over the heads of the grave assemblage, accompanied by hoots and screams which entirely drowned his remarks and punches in the ribs and stomach, which tended to make those remarks vague and unsatisfactory in the last degree. While Mr. Whipple was being thus handled, the hat, and wig and flaming red tie were undergoing evolutions on their own account, and affording the spectators an infinite amount of delight. On reaching his feet, which he finally did, and in a state closely bordering on lunacy, Mr. Whipple was called upon for a speech, but in his anxiety for his property he did not hear the call, and made no response beyond the simple interrogation "Gosh-all-hemlock; where's my things?" which he continued to repeat with great frequency and fervency as he bobbed crazily about the room. The crowd, as if animated simultaneously by a generous impulse, set to work to recover the property, and after stepping in the hat, and slapping the wig against a railing to free it from dust, soon had both those articles in their right place. But the necktie had dis appeared, and despite offers of ten, twenty and fifty dollars, freely made by the grave assemblage for its recovery, it was not found. With his rescued property Mr. Whipple made for the street, kindly but firmly declining the escort and fire-works tendered him. Once on the street he lost no time in reaching the Grand Central depot, and took the first to Danbury. To say he is indignant, is to but feebly describe his feelings. It was certainly a disgraceful affair,—a bit of unrelieved ruffianism for which there can be no excuse whatever. Possibly, had the members of the Stock Exchange known Mr. Whipple's circumstances, he would have escaped the assault. But their ignorance is no fault of his. Several times he essayed to explain to them the extent of his real estate and his position in politics, but without success. He could barely mention the two lots on Franklin street when a sudden bounce left him without wind; and the faintest reference to the Board of Burgesses was immediately dispelled by another bounce. He became so faint at the last that he was not able to mention the property near Colonel's pond, although it is but a two-story house, unpainted and with a common flat roof. He is going to write them a list of his property and the offices he has held in Danbury, and "he only hopes we will be there to see them writhe and twist in fear and remorse." We think we can see them now, writhing and twisting.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1873.

Coroner's Inquest.

At Kennebunk, Monday, Mr. Charles T. Pettee, conductor, was the first witness called. He testified as follows: Reside in East Boston; have been in the employ of the Eastern road eight years; have had charge of a train five years; was conductor on freight train F, bound east from Boston to Portland on Friday night last; received verbal orders from Mr. Wing, train despatcher in Portsmouth, to make time to each station if possible; received no other orders; saw the telegraph operator and the watchman at Kennebunk; there were no signals at the station; it was about ten minutes before one on Saturday morning; had some conversation with the operator, asking him where freight W was; he answered that it had broken apart and that the engine had been there after water and wood; asked him if there were any orders to hold me there, and he said "No;" repeated the question, and he again answered "No;" asked him what time the engine went back after the train, and he replied, "Ten minutes past twelve," and made no further statement with regard to their whereabouts; before leaving the station I told my engineer to move slowly round the curve, for we had plenty of time; supposed I would pass the other train at Kennebunk depot; ran along at about the rate of twelve miles an hour; I was in the rear car; the first I knew of anything wrong was when I felt the engineer shut off the steam; told my men in the car to set the brake; about two minutes after, I felt the jar of the collision; had three brakemen; one was on the engine and two on the saloon car; freight W was due at Kennebunk at half-past seven; did not know the exact locality where it had broken apart; didn't run with more than ordinary care; the train despatcher at Portsmouth said to me, "I have given no orders to-night to train W, and I shall let you pass them where your time will fetch you." In answer to questions by the jury he said that a red flag by day and a red light by night were the signals by which a train is stopped; there was no such signal at Kennebunk; could have seen a lantern the length of the train on Friday night; it is against the rules for two brakemen to be in the saloon, and it is required that one will be there and the other on top of the train; all freight trains are limited to four men. In reply to questions of Mr. Hubbard, he said that every train hand had the following order:

When freights stop at any telegraph station on a single track, they will report immediately their arrival to the operator, who will send same to despatcher at once; and before the train leaves the train-men must ascertain if any order has been received and govern themselves accordingly.

When a train is running on its own time no orders to go ahead are required; when the trains struck mine was not driving more than five miles an hour; in case of accidents between stations delaying trains it is the duty of the conductor to send men each way a distance of half a mile with a red and white lantern by night or a red flag by day to stop the train following or coming; they also must take torpedoes to put on the track to alarm the engineers; these are explicit orders; train W was on my time, yet from Kennebunk to the place of the collision we met no flagman; all trains are provided with copies of the rules and the time tables of all other trains, every man has a book containing these; we each run on the time laid down in the book unless otherwise ordered; our watches are regulated from Boston. He then related the circumstances immediately connected with the disaster. After he had seen to the condition of the men, he started back to Kennebunk and telegraphed to Portsmouth and Portland for help. He received a despatch from the train despatcher at Portsmouth to take an engine from Berwick and run to the scene of the disaster regardless of all trains, get all his cars and draw them back to Kennebunk. In reply to Mr. Lunt, he said, if the operator at Kennebunk had told him a bridge was down, he would have waited for orders; if an order then came to go ahead he should have obeyed and gone as far as the bridge, where if anything was wrong he would expect to find signals; we are always bound to stop at a red light; we always keep spare oils burning on the engine and in the saloon car ready for instant use; my train had the right of way over all inward freights; we are obliged to recognize any signals of alarm, even made by simply waving the hand or handkerchief, but we can take no orders except from the train despatchers or superintendent. Mr. Hubbard submitted the following from the rules and regulations:

"If any train breaks down, stops or is delayed from any cause on the road, the first duty of the conductor and of all persons connected with the train is too see that efficient measures are taken to prevent other trains from running into the delayed train. One, and in case of danger, two official men must be sent backward or forward, or both, as the case may require, with red flags or lanterns, at least half a mile to stop any approaching train. Not to have the signal-men go on in the delayed train must prevent their going forward or backward at least half a mile, and staying there till the approaching train is stopped; and if a second, third or fourth train is to follow, the same precautions must be observed until the track is clear for any following train. All employees are expected to exercise the greatest care and watchfulness to prevent injury to persons or property, and they must in all cases of doubt take the course which involves no danger. Not more than one person on a division shall be permitted, at the same time, to give special orders for the movement of trains. The superintendent and the train-despatchers under their direction are the only persons authorized to give such orders. Such orders must be read aloud in hearing of the conductor and engineer to whom they are addressed; the conductor shall write his understanding of them, which shall be read by the engineer and signed by both. All orders or messages involving the movement of trains must be written in full, and no figures or abbreviations shall be used.

The telegraph operator at Kennebunk was examined on Tuesday. Solicitor Yeaton prevented any person but the jury and coroner being present.

The Portland Press says: The W. freight men insist that red danger signals were hung out. The F. freight men say they were not. The testimony of the Kennebunk employes will settle the question. The drift of the evidence is toward the condemnation of Bisbee, the dead conductor. Pettee, the W. freight conductor, seems to have been the victim of a too strict adherence to rules, and incapable of breaking through webs of technicalities in a case of emergency.

Felch, the dead brakeman, had his station on the rear of the train. At Kennebunk the forward brakeman got a drenching by falling into the water tank, and asked Felch to take his place while he dried his clothes in the saloon car. So Felch went to his death on the engine, while the other is congratulating himself on the saving effects of baptism.

Washington despatches say that the acceptance of the resignation of General Sickles has without doubt been determined upon and the next mail will carry to him the official notice of his recall.

The election in San Domingo has resulted in the success of Gonzales, completely changing the political aspect, and exciting fears that the Samana contract will be annulled.

There are heavy snows on the mountains in Utah, and it is difficult to work trains. The Union Pacific and Central Pacific roads however, are still making regular connections at Ogden. It has been snowing at Salt Lake every night for a week past.

The completion of the great tunnel of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, which passes under the streets of Richmond, opens another great highway between the western States and the Atlantic cities, by which Richmond will become the seaport of Cincinnati, and the internal resources of the country be materially developed.

The next step of our government is to try the case of the Virginius in the proper court. If the evidence upon which the Attorney-General has based his opinion be there established there will first be a forfeiture of the vessel and all her equipments, and next the prosecution of those involved in fitting her out in violation of our neutrality laws, the penalty in the case of each offender being three years' imprisonment and three thousand dollars' fine. The evidence submitted on this occasion is much more complete than a year since when Spain called the attention of the State department to the operations of the Virginius, claiming that she had no right to our flag. The Attorney-General then decided that she was entitled to American papers and to carry our flag.

The Portland Advertiser reports that as a gentleman was walking down Temple street, in that city, on Monday, he dropped one of his mittens down a grating by the Adams House, and as it was an old one he thought he would leave it, and walked along. In a moment he felt the cold nose of a dog touch his hand, and looking down saw a Newfoundland dog looking up in his face. Paying no attention he passed along, but had not proceeded far when the dog touched him again. A third time this was repeated, when a hackman sang out, "You've lost something, and that dog wants you to go and get it." The gentleman retraced his steps, recovered the mitten, and the dog was satisfied.

UNDER THE EVERGREENS, OR A NIGHT WITH ST. NICHOLAS, illustrated, by Rev. George C. Lorimer. This as its name indicates is a Christmas story for children, teaching them by means of an interesting story lessons of charity and good will. Published by Shepard and Gill, who have this season issued so many attractive juvenile books. For sale by J. H. Foster; price $1.50.

THE LITTLE PEOPLE OF GOD and what the poets have said of them; being a selection of one hundred choice poems collected by Mrs. George L. Austin with an original introductory poem by John G. Whittier. This book considered not only in a literary point of view, but also in its more mechanical details of paper, print and binding, is far ahead of the majority of juvenile publications, making a most acceptable present for the holidays. Published by Shepard & Gill. For sale by J. H. Foster, price $2.50.

Snow in California.

Nearly a foot of snow in all fell at Sacramento on Wednesday of last week, but it melted so fast that there was not more than four or five inches at any one time. Snow-balling was the order of the day, and some of those engaged in it made use of the opportunity to make an attack on Chinamen. The Union says:

Men, women, and children, entering into the sport of the thing, snowballed till they were tired; rested and handled snow again. During the entire day J and K streets, from Front to Tenton, were lined with men and youths, who pelted unmercifully almost every passer-by, whether pedestrians or people in vehicles. Stove-pipe hats and Chinamen were especial objects of attention, and frequently received unkind treatment. In fact, in a few instances, the Celestials were treated in such a shameful manner that the impression was apt to be created in the mind of a looker-on that some of the snowballers would have been just as willing to assail the Chinamen with cobble-stones if there were no danger of the'courts. We are happy to be able to say, however, that these instances were not numerous. Many pedestrains endeavored to shelter their upper stories beneath umbrellas, but the device often brought ruin to umbrallas and dismay to those carrying them.

The ladies appeared to relish the amusement greatly, and frequently sent showers of snowballs upon the unprotected; their strong suit, however, appeared to be the gathering of snow in balls about the size of a water-bucket, and gently dropping them upon the heads of people passing beneath an awning, thus enhancing the interest of the occasion by creating a pleasing little illusion of snowballs and avalanches in the minds of the recipients of the attention. One crusty individual in the lower portion of the city didn't like it, and expressed the belief that he didn't see any fun in such foolishness. In a second the assault upon him was renewed by the ladies; he threw back, and finally, as the firing ceased from pure exhaustion of the contestants, he remarked, as he endeavored to remove a few pounds of snow from around his neck, and made wry faces as small quantities dropped down his back, that he believed he hadn't enjoyed such a glorious spree in all his life. During the forenoon we met a Celestial emerging from his wash-house, canopied by an umbrella, and suggested to him, "Plenty snow John." He smole a smile, and inquired, "You call him snow?" "Yes." "Ah, he bell plitty." Three minutes later he was running the blockade on K street, his umbrella in ribbons, and a score of snowballs ringing about his head, and an expression on his face that indicated a change of opinion and a belief that the snow was not half so pretty as he had at first believed.

A Chinaman at Fourth and K streets, who had been pelted unmercifully, in a great rage drew a knife and five-shooter, threatening to change the current of hostilites, and he doubtless would have got more than even but for Captain Stevens and Officer Harris, who took his arms away from him, and directed him to call at the Station-House to get them to-day. During the day numerous impromptu cutters and sleighs made their appearance, some of them quite comfortable affairs, but the greater number little more than burlesques. One individual had a sled constructed of planks rounded at the end, with cross pieces to hold them in place, and a huge crockery-hogshead by way of box. He found the letter a great convenience when he had to "duck down" to avoid a shower of balls. There was also a four-in-hand sleigh, with bells on the horses, etc., in which vehicle several gentlemen had a good time, and last evening went serenading. Another sleigh had a crockery-crate for a box, and in this several Second street demoiselles started out for a ride, but before they had gone far there was a break-down, the "box" was pitched upon end, the women and driver thrown out into the snow, and everything so mixed that it was some time before the party could get disentangled.

The Vallejo Chronicle of Wednesday evening says the snow-fall at that place during the day amounted to nearly five inches, and it was still falling. A sufficient quantity had fallen at a comparatively early hour to make snow-balling a possible pastime, and a large portion of Georgia street soon joined in the fun. Business men whose snowballing days have been past, twenty years, joined with as much zest in the sport as the school-boy with his satchel on the way to school. The occasion was, in fact, made a gala day, and hurling snow missiles became the chief occupation. The air was thick with flying balls, and neither age nor condition enjoyed impunity from being made their targets. In the early part of the day a decided sensation was created by the appearance of a sled coming up Georgia street and appended to a wagon drawn by a couple of horses. The form of a well-known citizen seated upon this strange vehicle, however, was the chief attraction, and soon became the recipient of united attention. Volley after volley of snowballs were rained on the unfortunate man from every direction. He would probably have been compelled to endure the enfilading fire the whole length of the street, had not the sled stuck and tumbled him into the street. An interview with the 'oldest inhabitant' develops the fact that the present is the heaviest snow-fall known to have occurred in this section.

Business Notices.

"A friend in need is a friend indeed;" and such a friend is HELMBOLD'S BUCHU to the unfortunate sufferer who has been sowing his wild oats. Warranted to cure all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs. Look out for counterfeits. Genuine has private proprietary stamp of H. T. Helmbold on each bottle. Directions accompany. Sold by all druggists. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

A Manual of Health.

The edition for 1874 of the sterling medical annual known as Hostetter's Almanac is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the United States and British America, and indeed in every civilized portion of the Western Hemisphere. This Almanac has been issued regularly at the commencement of every year for about one-fifth of of a century. It combines with the soundest practical advice for the preservation and restoration of health, a large amount of interesting and amusing light reading, and the calendar, astronomical calculations, chronological items, &c., are prepared with great care, and will be found entirely accurate. The issue of Hostetter's Almanac for 1874 will probably be the largest edition of a medical work ever published in any country. The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

Old Probabilities. Our learned friend, who sits at Washington, and receives, from the signal stations of a continent, reports on the vicissitudes of the weather, sorts, compares and infers from them the daily bulletins which everybody reads, might reasonably add, in view of our late sudden changes, "Colds, Coughs and affections of the throat and lungs will prevail in the East and North. Warning signals continue in the West and South." In view of the truth of these probabilities, we commend to all sufferers that excellent and potent specific, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has, in countless instances, saved life, and has, within the knowledge of every one, alleviated most alarming symptoms and effected cures almost surpassing belief. So excellent is it that the medical faculty largely use it in their practice. In cases of seated consumption, it prolongs life and softens the stay of the afflicted sufferer. About these days it is well to have it in the house. By its timely use, serious disease may be checked and turned aside.—Nashua (Iowa) Post.

Local Matters.

Emotional Insanity.

A Scotch terrier ran about Market square Tuesday afternoon, yelping and dodging about in the proximity of a group of children near the police station. Seeing the door of the station open, he ran in and out. Officer Shannon being present, the dog sprang at him, but Charles pulled his revolver in time to prevent the mad animal from biting him. Five shots were necessary to give a final quietus to his howlings, and a large crowd assembled to see his last kick. The prompt action of officer Shannon probably saved many persons from danger of hydrophobia. He had snapped at a gentleman and lady before making his raid on the police.

Laconics.

Don't forget the unique concert to-morrow evening.

Services at St. John's Church on Christmas eve (Wednesday) commence at 8 o'clock, and on Christmas day at 11 o'clock.

Passengers by the first afternoon train from Boston, Monday, observed a very large bald-headed eagle perched on a tree at Hampton Falls.

Dearborn S. F. Engine Co., No. 1, give their sixth annual Ball at Congress Hall, this evening. Guests from other cities will be present. It is to be an enjoyable affair.

Mrs. Mary A. Brewster has presented to Howard Bingham, son of Rev. Dr. J. F. Bingham, a valuable collection of curiosities from the estate of her late husband, Dr. George G. Brewster.

We understand that Mr. L. Thos. Sanborn, of Rye, one of the mail agents injured by the Seabrook accident, has settled with the Eastern Railroad for the sum of $9,000. Injury to the spine caused the excessive damages.

Advertisers crowd our columns with announcements of articles they have for Christmas gifts. Henderson & Co. have a great assortment of holiday goods, and the store is constantly crowded. The success of A. Robeck & Co., the wholesale and retail dealers in cake and confectionery, is assured. Their goods are of the nicest and their prices are very low. Neatness and promptness are watchwords at this establishment. Persons desiring to purchase, should consult our advertising columns.

Members of the city government and of the Board of Trade have visited several water localities to examine the privileges and situations. We hope their investigations will be fruitful in result. It is suggested by various parties, some having been members of the Board of Engineers, that a large reservoir of sufficient capacity might be built at a small expense in the low ground between Union and Madison streets, to protect that portion of the city from fire. The locality for a large space has numerous springs, ten or dozen large ones and a large number of smaller ones. We sincerely hope the city authorities will not delay action in the matter.

Now is the time to aid the needy. An entertainment is advertised for the poor boys and girls at Congress Hall. There will be an hour's play, a supper and Christmas tree. Contributions from charitably disposed citizens are desired, and are coming in generously, and the benevolent enterprise promises to be quite successful. Many poor children will have a "merry Christmas" who otherwise would go hungry to bed. Some of the originators of the idea will call upon the bakers and provision dealers of the city for contributions of bread and other articles of food. Persons willing to promote the happiness of destitute and friendless children by giving a few articles of clothing, fruit, cake or candies, may send their gifts to Congress Hall, Thursday afternoon, at two o'clock.

City Physician.

Messrs. Editors: From the official communication of the City Physican published in the CHRONICLE of Tuesday, it would seem that the Overseer of the Poor has been added to his list of responsibilities. The "distressed" families on Water street, however, are not so numerous as he would have us believe, and no emergency has yet arisen wherein his valuable services have been required either in the capacity of Overseer of the Poor or City Physician.

WATER STREET.

Extraordinary Story.

A remarkable case of apparent death is now attracting great attention at Avon, N. Y. A woman has been lying in that village for five weeks without giving any sign of life whatever, and the remarkable thing about it is that she predicted her present condition several months ago. Her name is Eleanor Bonney, she is unmarried, and has been an inmate of the house of L. O. Preston, a farmer residing about a mile and a half west of the village, for more than eight years. She has been a reputed clairvoyant, for a long time, and an intimate friend of Mrs. Jennie C. Dutton, a clairvoyant physician of Rochester, N. Y. She had stated several times in months past that at 2 o'clock, on the morning of the 11th of November, she should go into a trance of very long duration, in order to prove to the unbelieving the principles of Spiritualism. She was to prove that a person could die, the soul be completely separated from the body, the first stages of decomposition even set in, and then, by a miraculous power, be restored to life again in all respects as she was before. She also stated that her body would lose 50 pounds in weight, which would be indicated by the ringing of bells, and that when the soul had entirely separated from the body, the house would be violently shaken. Having pledged her friends not to have her body interred, and enjoined them not to touch her, she went into the state predicted exactly at the appointed time, whereupon the house was shaken as she foretold. The bells also rang as she predicted, and her weight has diminished about 50 pounds, her usual weight being about 208 pounds. She lies on her back, slightly turned on one side. Only a few of her friends are allowed to enter the room, and the coroner has been urged to look into the matter, but nothing has thus far been done. A Rochester physician—not a Spiritualist—has visited the room, and declares the body dead. There is a peculiar odor in the room, but he thinks it does not arise from decomposition. The friends believe that Miss Bonney is dead, but confidently expect that her soul will return. Several strange phenomena have occurred in connection with the affair; for example, Mrs. Dutton was taken sick, soon after visiting the room, and for 17 days lived without food, drink or sleep. The whole story, of course, looks absurd to most people, but the Rochester Democrat, which protesses to have obtained its information from responsible persons, declares that the facts are notorious in the neighborhood of Avon.

DIED.

TREFETHEN. In Boston, on Monday, Dec. 22, SAMUEL H. TREFETHEN, aged 20 years, son of the late Samuel A. Trefethen, of Rye. His death was occasioned by falling about 55 feet from a building upon which he was at work.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choknigs, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I resided at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Hennikor, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,
No. 27 Manchester Corporation.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27, 1872.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother states is true.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among not only one but many generations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured a wide a reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long-continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well-founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH ANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left unried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work, often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. DeQ. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

The Scarlet Fever—A Simple Remedy Suggested.

(San Francisco Chronicle.)

Robert Christie, of the Pioneer, suggests a remedy for the scarlet fever, which he avers has invariably proved successful. It is very simple, and lies within the reach of those whose limited means preclude them from employing the services of a physician. It is this: Take an onion and cut it in half; cut out a portion of the centre, and into the cavity put a spoonful of saffron; put the pieces together, then wrap them up in a cloth and bake them in an even until the onion is cooked so that the juice will run freely; squeeze out all the juice, and give the patient a teaspoonful, at the same time rubbing the chest and throat with goose-grease or rancid bacon, if there is any cough or soreness in the throat. In a short time the fever will breakout in an eruption all over the body. All that is then necessary is to keep the patient warm and protected from draught, and the recovery is certain. Mr. Christie says he has been employing this remedy for many years, and never knew it to fail when proper care was taken of the patient after its application. One family in which there were five children down with the disease at one time recently, used this simple remedy upon his telling them of it, and every one of the little ones recovered in a short time.

Missing Men Picked Up.

(Cape Ann Advertiser.)

Patrick O'Neal and Frank Miller, two of the crew of schooner Tubal Cain, of Gloucester, who left the vessel to visit their trawls, Oct. 16, and were lost in the fog, and supposed to have perished, have been heard from, at London, by a letter received in Gloucester the present week. The men were six days and nights in their dory without anything to eat or drink, and their sufferings were excruciating in the extreme. On the sixth night, when they had given up all hope of ever being rescued, they were visited by a refreshing rain, and caught enough in their oiled jackets to relieve their raging thirst. The night dragged wearily along, but on the seventh morning their eyes were gladdened by the sight of a vessel which they signalized. It proved to be a Norwegian brig, bound to London. Their signals were seen and the men were taken on board in an extremely exhausted condition. No tidings have yet come to hand of the two men (George Cook and Jesse Oliver), belonging to the same vessel, who nobly risked their lives to go in search of these, their companions, but never returned.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND TUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Great Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Want of Nutritional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, imparting strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their case and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a delicacy of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household.—To the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly good and excellent. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," so readily yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign ma ters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire, the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid to any mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; each form of subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without intervention of the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to disregard recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by actual returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETY-SEVEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (297,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for FAMILY USE. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. The superiorities are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in security and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

A Touching Epistle.
[New Orleans Times, Dec. 1.]

General Quesada has been so kind as to permit the writer to make a transcript of the letter written by the gallant Fry to his wife. The pages of the original bore the impress of the tears shed by the heroic writer. It was the last communication ever made to the world by the true American, and the blended expression of affection, of religious hope, of dignified resignation with which it teems, will cause its words to be remembered so long as virtue and courage are honored among men. It may be well to state that the letter necessarily omits all reflections on the Spanish Government, but before his death Fry gave utterance very forcibly to his opinions on that subject, his silence coming only with his death. The allusions to family matters are, of course, not reproduced herein below:—

On Board the Spanish Man-of-War La Tornado, St. Jago de Cuba, Nov. 6, '73.

DEAR, DEAR DITA: When I left you I had no idea that we should never meet again in this world, but it seems strange to me that I should to-night, and on Annie's birthday, be calmly seated, on a beautiful bay in Cuba, to take my last leave of you, my own dear, sweet wife, and with the thought of your bitter anguish my only regret at leaving.

I have been tried to-day and the president of the court-martial asked the favor of embracing me at parting, and clasped me to his heart. I have shaken hands with my judges; and the secretary of the court and interpreter have promised to attend my execution, which will, I am told, be in a very few hours after my sentence is pronounced. I am told that my death will be painless; in short, I have had a very cheerful and pleasant chat about my funeral to which I shall go in a few hours from now. How soon I cannot yet say. It is curious to see how I make friends. Poor Bambetta pronounced me a gentleman, and he was the brightest and bravest creature I ever saw.

The priest who gave me communion on board this morning, put a double scapular about my neck and a medal which he intends to wear himself. A young Spanish officer brought me a bright new silk badge with the Blessed Virgin stamped upon it to wear to my execution for him, and a handsome cross in some fair lady's handiwork. These are to be kept as relics of me. He embraced me affectionately in my room with tears in his eyes.

Dear sweetheart, you will be able to bear it for my sake, for I will be with you if God permits it. Although I know my hours are short and few, I am not sad. I feel I shall always be with you right soon, dear Dita, and you will not be afraid of me.

Pray for me and I will pray for you. * * There is to be a fearful sacrifice of life from the Virginius, and, as I think a needless one, as the poor people are unconscious of crime, and even of their fate up to now. I hope God will forgive me if I am to blame for it.

If you write to President Grant, he will probably order my pay due, when I resigned, to be paid to you after my death. * * People will be kinder to you now, dear Dita, at least I hope so. Do not dread death when it comes to you; it will be as God's angel of rest—remember this.

I hope my children will forget their father's harshness, and remember his love and anxiety for them. May they practice their religion, and pray for him always. * * * Tell ——that the last act of my life will be a public confession of my faith and hope in Him of whom we need not be ashamed, and it is not honest to withhold that public acknowledgment from any false modesty or timidity. May God bless and save us all.

Sweet, dear, dear Dita, we will soon meet again. Till then, adieu, for the last time.

Your devoted husband, JOSEPH FRY.

The Newspaper.
[Hartford Courant.]

The newspaper in conscientious hands, is becoming more and more the guardian of the public. It is almost the only thing which the public plunderers fear. Its exposures strike at the New York ring; they are overthrowing the Philadelphia ring; they have just stopped the great "exposition" swindle in New York. They have developed a late conscience in Congress on the "salary grab." It is the newspaper which cannot be bought or silenced that is alone feared by those who have designs on the public treasury. And we rejoice that the newspaper that cannot be bought or silenced is becoming more common than it was. It is the only newspaper that can live and be profitable. A paper may get a temporary support by sharing in plunder, or it may slide along, weakly acquiescing in the corruptions about it, but it will have no character, and by and by no influence and no confidence—and then it must sink into decadence.

There is one thing that the public need never fear, and that is a newspaper despotism, at least in this country. There is no clannishness in the press; there is not as much esprit de corps among the newspapers as there is among the members of any other profession. They do not stand by each other. Each represents itself and its own public; and a newspaper justly sued for a libel gets no sympathy from any other newspaper. They are quite as ready to pounce upon each other as the public are to have them. They do not stand by their own order. We can think of only one thing that would unite them all, and that is any government interference with their freedom.

Coroner's Inquest.

The inquest in the case of the Eastern Railroad disaster was continued Wednesday with closed doors. There is a general dissatisfaction expressed in all circles at the turn the matter of conducting it has thus taken. Mr. G. C. Yeaton, the county attorney and also counsel for the Boston and Maine Railroad Company, is made to bear the blame, and the indignation of those who are disappointed in not being allowed to enter is directed against him. E. W. Wedgeworth, who had been retained by Mr. White, telegraph operator at Kennebunk as counsel, applied for permission to be present during the examination of his client; but his request was refused. Certainly on the part of the Eastern Railroad, as represented by those connected with it, there is a desire to give the greatest publicity possible to all the facts connected with the case; for they are confident that the public, if it knows all, will indorse the system of running trains adopted by the road, and in its verdict will free it from blame. The subjoined report has been gathered from various sources and is the substance of the testimony given. The witnesses examined were the engineer and fireman of freight F, the down train, the telegraph operator at Kennebunk and Portland, and the train despatcher at Portsmouth. Conductor Pettee was also recalled. The evidence has been straightforward, each man telling substantially the same story. The only conflict appears in the testimony of the telegraph operator at Kennebunk and the train despatcher at Portsmouth with regard to the conversation which passed between them over the wires in regard to the position and condition of freight W. No one has been implicated by direct charge, but all the evidence appears to point to neglect on the part of those having charge of train W, and a disobedience of rules. This appears most glaringly in the testimony of Mr. Wing, train despatcher at Portsmouth, who presented the rules applicable to the case, with the statement that had they been observed the accident would not have happened. The responsibility resting on the operator at Kennebunk was not so great, and his negligence, if in his case any existed, was not so culpable.

Mr. Wallace H. Morrison, engineer of freight F, the down train, was the first witness. His statements were in substance as follows: Reside in Portsmouth; am engineer on the Eastern railroad; been employed four years and a half; have been engineer for a year and a half; was running on freight F on the night of the nineteenth of December; my time for leaving Portsmouth is 10:20; was on that night fifteen minutes late; at Portsmouth the conductor told me freight W was at Saco, and to make my time by time book; didn't receive any orders from the train despatcher; wasn't quite able to do this, but kept a few minutes late; next received information about train W at North Berwick; conductor told me it was at Day's Siding; received the next information about it at Kennebunk; the conductor told me it was down by Day's Siding; had no conversation with the operator, but the watchman told me that I had better go on to the turnout at Kennebunk as quick as I could, for the train W had broken apart at Kennebunkport, and would be coming up pretty soon; told him we were an express and had the right of way; he said, "Oh, is that so? all right then"; he came to me again and asked what train it was, I told him F; he replied "all right" and from the way he spoke I judged he thought it was the local train E, which should have been ahead of us, if it had been on time; we passed it at North Berwick; the conductor told me that W was near Day's Siding broken apart, and wanted me to haul up around the curve just before it; the conductor then went to the operator's office, and returning soon after said W was at Day's Siding and we would have to "saw by" it there; the weather was thick and I could not see more than the distance between the telegraph poles; when I saw W approaching I was going twelve or fifteen miles an hour; reversed the engine and gave her steam and sand and whistled for brakes; reduced the speed about one half before we struck; there was no red light at Kennebunk; if there had been one we would have gone ahead; we never pass a danger signal.

Frank Batchelder, fireman, was the next witness. His statement was as follows: Reside in Portsmouth; have been employed on the Eastern Railroad about six years, and fireman about six months. Was fireman on the engine 78 on Friday night last; first I heard about freight W was at Kennebunk, when the conductor said we would pass it at Kennebunkport; heard the watchman and engineer in conversation; watchman wanted to know why he was there, and he replied, "Because I have a right to be;" the watchman said: "There is a train coming up the hill now"; to which the engineer replied that it had no business to be, for it was on his time. The watchman then asked what train he was, E or F, and being answered that he was F, an express freight, having the right way over all others, he replied "all right," just as though he had thought it was the local train, but when he found it was the express he knew it was "all right"; the conductor then said to the engineer, "We will pass freight W at Kennebunkport, they have a long train and we will have to saw by them"; he then gave the signal go ahead. There was no red light in sight at Kennebunk; he said that he didn't know about the rules for running the trains; his business was to keep the fires under the boilers and the steam up; the conductor and the engineer had the responsibility; he always had a red light burning hung up in the cab so that in case of delay it would be ready for him to run forward with immediately.

The next witness was the operator at Kennebunk. Mr. White. His story is as follows: The engineer of train W came to the station for water, and Deverson, engineer on the Chelsea, said they had broken apart and told him to hold freight F; immediately hung out a red light; in a few minutes the engines returned towards Biddeford; just then Portsmouth asked me where train W was; told him the engines were here, at Kennebunk, after water, having broken apart somewhere on the road, and asked, "Shall I hold train F?" Portsmouth asked, "How many cars did they leave on the side-track? answered, "None," land again asked, "Shall I hold train F?" the answer came, "No"; then went out and took down the lantern; engineers of W did not tell me whether they were coming back to Kennebunk, or going on to Day's Siding, or where; when train F came along told the conductor that W had broken apart and was somewhere below; didn't know where; conductor asked me if I had any orders to hold him, and I answered, "None"; the engineers of train W made no report to the train despatcher at Portsmouth through me; did not report to the train dispatcher that a red light had been hung out before the engineers of W left the depot.

Mr. Harry B. Wing, night train despatcher of the Eastern Railroad at Portsmouth, said he had been an engineer about twenty-five years; a machinist by trade and thoroughly acquainted with his business; ran on the Eastern road about nine years, eight of which were on night trains. [Witness stated to the jury his experience of the usages in running trains in the United States and Canada.] Had I been in the position of engineer of train W, when the engines were at Kennebunk taking in water, would have reported to the train-despatcher, through the operator, the whole condition of my train and asked him for orders to go for my train and return to Kennebunk or keep clear; the orders would have been given in full form according to the rules of the Eastern Railroad. This he had actually done at the same station last summer while engineer of a train delayed under similar circumstances. Did not hear till after the accident that the operator at Kennebunk hung out a red light; received no report from train W at Kennebunk; the operator said that train W was coming and had broken apart; asked him what they did with the cars they had; he said they had no cars, had taken water and gone back to their train; asked him then, if there was any trainman of freight W there: he replied, "No, both engines and all the men have gone back to the train"; after a little while word came that freight F was coming; my question was, "How about freight W?" "Nothing from freight W yet," was the answer; the same question was repeated at intervals till 12:30, when freight W's right to the road expired; this being so, as by time card, operator said, "Freight F is here"; and asked "Is there any order for freight F?" and I replied, "No orders for freight F"; received no intelligence whatever that any arrangements had been made by the engineers of freight W and the operator at Kennebunk, or that any red signal had been displayed; when freight W failed to arrive at Kennebunk clear of freight G's time, and freight F had failed to reach Saco at 1:55 to cross train No. 2, the Pullman, I sent a despatch to the conductor of the Pullman to run warefully from Saco to Kennebunk, as there was something the matter with freight W, did not know what or where; had rule 14 of general orders of December 5 and 30, 1873, been complied with, no accident could have occurred. [These provide that when trains arrive at telegraph stations they shall report to despatcher and ascertain before leaving if there are any orders for them, and govern themselves by the orders received; if away from telegraph display danger signals at the required distance to warn any approaching train.]

Mr. Bigelow, night operator at Portsmouth, corroborated the evidence of Mr. Wing in regard to the despatches that passed over the wires, relating to trains F and W.

Mr. Walter Gowen, engineer of the Mattawamkeag, says that he has been an engineer on the Eastern road for five years and on Friday night last he was running on train W; was on the leading engine; reached Kennebunkport, Day's Siding, about eleven o'clock, and let the Pullman train pass; we then had thirty-five minutes to get to Kennebunk before freight F's time; we started, but after going a short distance the engines broke away; we put on steam and drove ahead; my engine broke from the other, and I shot some ways beyond Kennebunk station; the other engine stopped in front of the telegraph office, and when I went back Mr. Deverson its engineer, was just finishing a conversation with the telegraph operator; the latter hung out a red light, remarking as he did so that "they wouldn't dare to go by that"; and told the watchman to be sure to hold F there, for we were going back after our train and advised him to let F out the tunnel; he said he would; we then went back, leaving a red light there; reached the train and Conductor Bisbee hooked us on; went up to Deverson and asked him if it wasn't all right that we should go on to Kennebunk; if it was all understood; he said yes, there could not have been any misunderstanding; we told the conductor that the red light was out, and he told us to go ahead.

Adjourned to one o'clock Wednesday.

Readables.

Of the one hundred and thirty-one members of the House of Representatives who voted last week to give themselves a salary of six thousand dollars per annum, thirty-six were Democrats, and ninety-five Republicans. Of those who voted against the bill ninety-one were Republicans and forty-one Democrats.

It is said that Gen. Ames will resign his seat in the Senate in the early part of January to be inaugurated Governor of Mississippi, and then he will decide whether he will remain Governor four years or will be re-elected to the Senate for the term beginning March 4, 1875.

It appears by the official figures of the last Virginia election that James L. Kemper's (Conservative) majority for Governor over Robert W. Hughes is 27,239.

State News.

Dover had a serious shooting affair on Wednesday morning. George Smith, janitor of the school buildings on the north side of the river, was shot by a man whom he found intruding in the school-house on State street, the ball passing through the neck, just escaping the jugular vein. The wound is a serious one. Mr. Smith can give no information about his assailant.

Manners in the Theatre.

An American, accompanied by a lord, gave an exhibition of manners at the Union Square Theatre, New York, an evening or two ago, and this is the way the story is told: Lord Talbot, the second son of the Duke of Sutherland, visited the Union Square Theatre to witness the performance of "Led Astray." He was accompanied by Mr. Joseph Stone, the son of the great American banker in Paris, one other gentleman of New York society, and two ladies. The party were seated in the private proscenium box of Mr. Sheridan Shook. In the second act, as the Mr. Burroughs as the Baron was swinging his love for the Countess, (Miss Rose Eytinge), Mr. Stone picked up a spittoon in the box, and coolly reached out and sat it on the stage nearly in front of the performers. This act was greeted with cries of "Shame!" from the audience, and the ladies in the box shrank back from the indignant looks of the people. At the fall of the curtain, as our reporter was informed by Mr. Shook, he sent a message to Mr. Stone requesting him to come to the office of the Union Square Hotel, which adjoins the lobby of the theatre. Mr. Shook there asked Mr. Stone for an explanation of his conduct. The latter in turn inquired of Mr. Shook who he was, and added:—"You can't go anywhere in this country but what you find spittoons." Mr. Shook replied that the act was an insult to the audience and the company, and characterized the author of it as a blackguard. Mr. Stone made an impertinent retort, whereupon Mr. Shook seized hold of his nose, and pulled it until the blood flowed, at the same time applying his boot to the gentleman. Mr Stone subsequently made an apology, after which he returned to his box, where he remained through the play.

A Frozen Body Steering a Boat.

The Detroit Free Press relates the following: "Sunday morning two farmers and their families, who were driving to Malden to attend church, noticed, when about eight miles east of the town, a ship's yawl on the lake heading toward the beach and about half a mile away. They could plainly make out a man in the stern sheets steering the boat with an oar. Passing the same spot on their return the men found the yawl hard on the beach and the man sitting stiff and motionless in her stern. Leaving their wagons they ascertained that the man was lifeless and frozen hard as a rock. He sat bolt upright on the seat, the oar out behind and both hands clasping the handle, and it required hard work to wrench it from his death-grip. There was much water in the boat, but the craft did not show rough usage. The man's legs were almost covered with icicles far up as his knees, and the spray had dashed over his back and shoulders and frozen there. There was no name on the boat, and the person who brought the information to Windsor yesterday could not say that anything was found on the person of the man to reveal his identity, nor to show how he had been cast adrift. He must have been dead at least three days or more. There was neither sail nor mast to the boat, and nothing in it but the one oar, showing that the poor fellow had not intended a long trip anywhere, and that he must have been blown off the shore. He had used his oar to keep before the wind, and had frozen to death on his seat, where he was so firmly held by the ice that it had to be broken with a stone before he could be pulled off."

Stories about Animals.

All cats celebrated for sagacity are now consigned to back seats by a most intelligent creature in Preston, Conn.—a cat with a passion for clams, and without anybody to open them for her. First, she stimulates the clam's mouth with her tail; he closes it on the cat's continuation; she immediately leaps a fence, and thus the clam shell is broken on the top rail, and the clam himself rewards puss for all the suffering which she has suffered. We may say that we believe this story, inasmuch as it is a matter of no great consequence whether we believe it or not. At the same time we must add that the mania for zoological anecdote is becoming somewhat alarming.

An eccentric cow in St. Paul, having a wish for something better than the cold, bare barn, cautiously stole up the front stoop and stairs of a dwelling house, and surprised its mistress by poking a pair of horns through the second floor front door. The lady, with the characteristic presence of mind of her sex, attempted to drive the now belligerent foe out with the broom stick. Failing in this, she called in the "tyrant" man, who disposed of the cow, and a great part of the furniture, stair-carpet, and matting, not to mention suffering a few broken fingers and a scraped nose. This excursion of "Bossey" to the boudoir of its mistress cost the family a little less than "Bossey" was worth. But the children think more of her now than ever.

—A young beau, at his sister's evening party, began to sing, "Why am I so weak and weary?" when a little brother brought the performance to a sudden close by yelling out, "Aunt Mary says it's 'cause you come home so late and drunk 'most every night!"

Business Notices.

Vegetine has never failed to effect a cure, giving tone and strength to the system debilitated by disease.

"A friend in need is a friend indeed;" and such a friend is HELMBOLD'S BUCHU to the unfortunate sufferer who has been saving his wild oats. Warranted to cure all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs. Look out for counterfeits. Genuine has private proprietary stamp of H. T. Helmbold on each bottle. Directions accompany. Sold by all druggists. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent.

ANAKESIS is without doubt, the most infallible cure and scientific cure for PILES ever discovered. 20,000 grateful patients attest its virtues, and physicians of all schools endorse it unequivocally. Lotions, ointments, and electuaries are only a waste of time and money. ANAKESIS relieves pain at once and cures absolutely. It is the discovery of Dr. Sherman, a scientific physician, and has been pronounced the greatest contribution to medicine of the age.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

A Manual of Health.

The edition for 1874 of the leading medical annual known as Hostetter's Almanac is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the United States and British America, and indeed in every civilized portion of the Western Hemisphere. This Almanac has been issued regularly at the commencement of every year for about one-fifth of a century. It combines with the soundest practical advice for the preservation and restoration of health, a large amount of interesting and amusing light reading, and the calendar, astronomical calculations, chronological items, &c., are prepared with great care, and will be found entirely accurate. The issue of Hostetter's Almanac for 1874 will probably be the largest edition of a medical work ever published in any country. The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburg, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

Old Probabilities. Our learned friend, who sits at Washington, and receives, from the signal stations of a continent, reports on the vicissitudes of the weather, sorts, compares and infers from them the daily bulletins which everybody reads, might reasonably add, in view of our late sudden changes, "Colds, Coughs and affections of the throat and lungs will prevail in the East and North. Warning signals continue in the West and South." In view of the truth of these probabilities, we commend to all sufferers that excellent and potent specific, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has, in countless instances, saved life, and has, within the knowledge of every one, alleviated most alarming symptoms and effected cures almost surpassing belief. So excellent is it that the medical faculty largely use it in their practice. In cases of seated consumption, it prolongs life and softens the stay of the afflicted sufferer. About these days it is well to have it in the house. By its timely use, serious disease may be checked and turned aside.—Nashua (Iowa) Post.

Local Matters.

Stratham.

Messrs. Editors: J. B. Wiggin, Esq., is a hard man to beat in the hen department. He dressed a hen on the 24th that weighed nine pounds and twelve ounces.

Recently Capt. James W. Kelly picked a chicken in thirty seconds. Several bystanders were of the opinion that the bird was poorly skinned.

The wife of Mr. Alexander McFay of this town, who sustained severe injuries by being thrown from a carriage at Exeter on the 9th inst. is rapidly recovering.

Last evening, between the hours of six and seven, Mr. Mark Roberts, and wife accompanied by a friend named Albert A. Batchelder, were on their way to Exeter. When near Thompson brook, Mr. Roberts' vehicle came in collision with another and was overturned. Mr. Roberts was stunned and somewhat bruised, Mrs. Roberts had one of her arms broken and received a number of bad cuts in the head besides injuring her spine. Her condition is considered critical. Mr. Batchelder escaped with a slight sprain in his left shoulder. SO I HEARD.

New Castle.

At a meeting of the republicans of New Castle, held Dec. 23d, the following persons were elected officers of the republican club, and delegates to the several conventions:

President, Charles E Whitehouse; Vice Presidents, John W. Bickford, Lewellen Trefethen; Secretary, William A. Muloon; Treasurer, Albert H. White; Executive Committee, Leander Garland, chairman, J. Mahlon Bickford, Nathaniel W. Yeaton, Nathaniel P. Campbell, Charles Card, John W. Amazeen, Charles W. Cole, Joshua K. Card, Sylvester Yeaton; State Convention, J. Mahlon Bickford, John W. Bickford; Councillor Convention, Nathaniel P. Campbell, Leander Garland; Senatorial Convention, Charles E. Whitehouse, Lewellen Trefethen; County Convention, Charles W. Cole, Nathaniel W. Yeaton.

The Pension Agency.

The impolicy of making any change in this office is manifest in various ways. The injustice to a tried and faithful public officer, as contemplated in the proposed removal of Major Vaughan, would produce not only an immediate but a lasting injury to the party permitting it.

Very few gentlemen in public life have enjoyed greater popularity—none have given more general satisfaction in the discharge of public duties. On principle, political favors are granted to those who have deserved them of their party. Of Major Vaughan's services it is useless to speak here. They are too well known. It was the subject of general remark, at the time of his appointment, that, in his selection for the office he holds, the principle above mentioned had been well adhered to. Surely he has maintained the reputation so unanimously accorded him at that time—why then should there be any change?

The gentleman mentioned as his successor may possess all requisite qualifications for the position—but the office is well filled, and there is no occasion for his services. There can be no question of reform in this matter. No reform is needed. Upon what hypothesis, then, is the proposed change based? Is it policy? Will it be politic to make a movement certain to affect the party at the polls? Is it politic to make Republicans who have remained apathetic, to become belligerent?

We hope the gentlemen of the delegation are not determined to reward a favorite at the expense of the party. Unless the removal suggested can be justified by something more than expediency, until some shadow of blame, irregularity, or incapacity, lies at the door of the present incumbent, let there be no change in the administration of this agency. VETERAN.

Mechanics' Association.

The "Associated Mechanics and Manufacturers of New Hampshire" are to dedicate their new building on Thursday evening, Jan. 1st, by a celebration in their fine new hall, reading room and exchange. A social picnic supper will be served in the hall at 7 o'clock, free to all members and subscribers to the rooms, with two ladies each. Hon. M. Bufford will deliver the address, and brief remarks will be made by other members, clergymen, and others, interspersed with vocal and instrumental music, &c. The committee on arrangements are, President Isaiah Wilson, F. W. Miller, Joseph H. Gardner, A. F. Craig, D. J. Vaughan, Francis I. Wilson, John Knowlton, E. M. Brown, J. C. Carr, C. H. Downs. The last celebration of the Association was in 1855. The ladies of the members will furnish the supper.

Laconics.

No paper to-morrow.

Many persons having expressed a desire to be present at the poor children's festival to-day, the committee will issue tickets to the gallery at 25 cents each.

The republicans of Ward One and Two will meet at their respective ward rooms to-morrow evening at 7,30, to choose delegates to the various conventions.

The colored people will doubtless give a fine concert this evening, at the Temple, and we hope good encouragement will meet their endeavors to please and the object they sing for. Their programme embraces a variety of plantation melodies and sacred songs.

Messrs. Editors: The editor of the Times howls about the killing of a little-cur, and the officer who despatched said cur thinks if the Times man can do any better he can have the job, but would suggest that in order to have plenty of room the shooting be done on Guppy's Island. POR-GUN.

The poor children at Congress Hall will have a feast this afternoon, if our citizens do not forget their duty to them. We know of no better way of conferring charity than to contribute articles for the tree or eatables for the table. The entertainment is not connected with any church or society. Send your contributions to the Hall.

At the annual meeting of Washington Chapter R. A. Masons held at Masonic Hall, Tuesday evening, Dec. 23, the following were elected officers for the ensuing year:—Benjamin F. Webster, H. P.; Harry G. Tanton, K.; William A. Aske, S.; John Nutter, Treas.; Oliver G. Fernald, Sec.; John Dame, C. of H.; John R. Holbrook, P. S.; Charles Norton, R. A. C.; John Somerby, William B. Grogan, Alfred J. Hill, M. of V.

The sacred festival so long observed is upon us once more with all its sacred remembrances. Christmas is gift time, too—a season of joy to juvenile and parent. The blessing of giving should be as enjoyable as that of receiving, and there are always more to receive than to give. The hallowed associations clinging to the observance of the day have their effect on all. May brightest hopes attend the thoughts of our readers, to whom and to all their friends and their friends' friends we wish "A MERRY CHRISTMAS."

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choking, Strangling, Pains in the Head, Loins, Kidneys, Dizziness and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N. H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 10 years old; I had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1872.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, choking and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could use my toe much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among not only one but many nations, have their extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured a wide reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most astonishing cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dreadful diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of security from their fatal effects, that is well-founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good, as new by the little but outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident here I offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

The Story of a Lost Check.

[Max Adler.]

McDougal received a check for $500 some time ago, and before he could have it cashed he lost it. To make himself safe he sent to the banks to have the check stopped, and then he advertised it, and offered a reward of $50 for its return. On the next Sunday he found the check just where he had put it, in the pocket of his best vest. So on Monday morning he went down to get the money for it. He was not acquainted with the officers, and when he presented the check, the teller looked at him, and whispered to one of the clerks, who instantly went out. Then the teller pretended to be counting the money over slowly. Presently his eye lighted; the clerk entered with a policeman; the teller jumped over the counter and collared McDougal; the clerk seized him by the leg, and the policeman hit him over the head with a club. Then they got McDougal down and the crowd stood around while the policeman searched him. The more he kicked and screamed and struggled, the harder they held him, until at last when they had emptied his pockets, and torn nearly all his clothes off, the policeman dragged him up the street to the station house, followed by a crowd of small boys, who whistled on their fingers and criticised the appearance of Mr. McDougal. After a while he was taken before an alderman, and at last he was permitted to explain the situation and prove his identity. He says now that only one thing in connection with the tragedy troubles him, only one thing; he can't exactly understand how that policeman could have had the unblushing and brazen impudence to come to him when he was discharged, and demand the $50 reward, on account of the trouble he had had trying to make things comfortable and correct.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Hunger, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Harper's Bazar.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of tact and talent that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the great world of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-robes. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of pure art, in black and white, the value of each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals on a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—its lofty aim fully comprehended in every character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the previous of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plate engravings" is yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plates, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray her anxious thoughts of home.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced, or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases wherein a receipt is given, bearing the fac-similie signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agricultural Men, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Best Farmers and Horticulturists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of a large corps of practical men, the Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Production and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and use it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each successive season, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions, what to Raise and where to Sell.

TERMS.—The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.00; FOUR COPIES, $10, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

The Singer Still Triumphant!

At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.

But immeasurably more valuable is The Worlds Award as shown by sales—proved by actual returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

In Amendment of Ordinances No. 41—Requiring Sidewalks to be Cleared of Snow.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Portsmouth as follows:

That ordinance number forty-one, requiring sidewalks to be cleared of snow, be amended by adding to section one the following clause, viz: That when any of said sidewalks are covered with ice, so as to make the passing dangerous, said owners or occupants shall spread over said sidewalk ashes, sand or salt in such a manner as to prevent the same from being dangerous.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!

Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; every one who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,

Woman in Sacred History,

is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scripture, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the

make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous bindings of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous Peck's Experience with a Coal Stove.

[La Crosse Democrat.]

We never had a coal stove around the house until last Saturday. Have always burned pine slabs and pieces of our neighbor's fence. They burn well, too, but the fence got all burned up, and the neighbor said he wouldn't build a new one, so we went down to Jones's and got a coal stove. It is called the "Radiant Home," and any man that says we didn't have a radiant home at our house for about four hours last Saturday night is a republican and a villain. You see we didn't know anything about coal stoves. We filled the Radiant Home about half full of pine fence, and when the stuff got well to going we filled the artesian well on top with coal. It simmered and sputtered about five or ten minutes and all went out, and we put on our overcoat and a pair of buckskin mittens and "went out, too," to supper. We remarked, in the course of the frugal meal, that Jones was a "froad" for recommending such a confounded refrigerator to a man to get warm by. After supper we took a piece of ice and rubbed our hands warm, and went to where that stove was, resolved to make her draw and burn if it took all the pine fence in the First Ward. Our better half threw a quilt over her and shiveringly remarked that she never knew what real solid comfort was until she got a coal stove. Stung by the sarcasm of her remark, we turned every dingus in the stove that was movable, or looked like it had anything to do with a draft, and pretty soon the Radiant Home began to heave up heat. It was not long before she stuttered like the new Silsby steamer. Talk about your heat! In ten minutes that room was as much worse than a Turkish bath as Hades is hotter than Liverman's ice-house. The perspiration fairly fried out of a tin water-cooler in the next room. We opened the doors, and the snow began to melt as far up Vine street as Hanscomb's house, and people all round the neighborhood put on linen clothes. And we couldn't stop the confounded thing. We forgot what Jones told us about the dampers, and she just kept a biling. The only thing we could do was to go to bed, and leave the thing to burn the house up if it wanted to. We stood off with a pole, and turned the damper every way, and every turn she just sent out heat enough to roast an ox. We went to bed, supposing that the coal would eventually burn out, but about twelve o'clock the whole family had to get up and sit on the fence. Finally a man came along who had been brought up among coal stoves, and he put a wet blanket over him and crept up to the stove and turned the proper dingus, and she cooled off, and since that time has been just as comfortable as possible. If you buy a coal stove you want to learn how to engineer it, or you may get roasted.

Sam Weller on the East River.

[Brooklyn Argus.]

Sam Weller was seated on the quarter-deck of a coal barge not far from the Brooklyn Navy Yard, sunning himself a day or two ago, when the following incident occurred, which he relates in his own characteristic way:

"I was sitting takin' it easy like," says Sam, "when up steps a gen'lm'n, and says:"

"You don't remember me?"

"Can't say I do," says I.

"Oh, I know you," says the gen'lm'n, 'known you when you was a boy," says he.

"Well, I don't remember you," says I.

"That's werry odd," says the gen'lm'n.

"Werry," says I.

"You must have a bad mem'ry," says the gen'lm'n.

"Well, it isn't werry prime on recollectin'," says I.

"Then he grows more confidentialer and says: "It's a werry narrer channel here for a Spanish big 'un to get through?"

"It's rather narrer," says I.

"Nasty bit," says he, "and more especialer it suthin' should upset and get stuck in the mud, what couldn't be dug up less nor a fortnight or so, till this Cuby question riz off the public mind."

"Werry nasty sitwation," says I.

"Well," says the gen'lm'n, "you're a werry good bargeman as can do as he likes with his own barge."

"It's werry kind o' you," says I, concealin' suthin' as he handed over to me.

"Good afternoon," says I. And you wouldn't believe, but next morning afore daybreak a barge was upset on that werry spot as the gen'lm'n pinted out.

The $40,000 Cow.

It appears by a statement in the Country Gentleman that the agent of Mr. Davies, the English purchaser, exceeded his instructions in his bidding, amid the excitement of the competition, in running the price up to the above fabulous sum, for the 8th Duchess of Geneva, at Mr. Campbell's September sale of Shorthorn cattle. After becoming fully acquainted with the circumstances, Mr. Davies requested Mr. Campbell to sell the cow, on his (Mr. Davies') account, which has been done, and Col. Lewis F. Morris, of Fordham, N. Y., has become the fortunate owner, at thirty thousand six hundred dollars,—only one—the 10th Duchess of Geneva—excepting herself having brought more than that sum at the sale. The 10th Duchess was bought by Lord Bective for $35,000. She now stands at the head.

One Manifestation of the Sun's Power.

One wheel, driven by water, sets a vast amount of machinery in motion and produces great results. Ask the head man, what turns the water wheel, and he replies, water. Ask him how? He can only say it falls in its downward course on the wheel and puts it in motion. Tell him that the attraction of the earth draws the water down to the lowest place it can find, and that wonder has no interest to him.

I go farther and tell him that there is a wonder beyond this, which is, that the distant sun is the great cause of the wheel operation. He stares and considers it mockery. I explain and say, the sun performs a prodigious amount of labor in this one thing, and itself brings about the important results. It worked with thousands of pumps the water from seas and lakes to a height in the atmosphere, before it could descend in rain and snow, feed the springs, and form the rivers. This power of raising water by evaporation on one acre alone is equal to 30 horse power: and on the whole surface of the earth is 300 times greater than all the water power in the world. Such is the mighty work of the sun in one of its forms of labor. J. F.

Senator Booth.

A San Francisco dispatch says: "Much gratification is expressed here on account of the election of Booth, the Independent candidate for Senator from California. It is a triumph of the opponents of the railroad and other monopolies, and seals the fate of the Central Pacific and Bank of California despotism. Booth is the first Senator elected on an Independent platform. He is a cultivated man and an orator, and is represented as being more of a literary man than a politician, and retiring in his habits. His presence in the Senate will be a great addition to the republican party, when he takes his seat, in March, 1875.

Aldrich's New Novel.

The opening chapters of a new novel by T. B. Aldrich appear in the Atlantic Monthly for January. It is entitled "Prudence Palfrey," and its action (so far, at least) is located in "Rivermouth," the author's pseudonym for his native town — Portsmouth. The chapters already published give token that the story, aside from its interest to the general reader, will be replete with sketches of local tradition, character, society and scenery. We make a few extracts below, which will serve to give some idea of what the new romance promises to be in this respect:

A SUPERANNUATED PARSON.

Parson Wibird Hawkins had been prattling innocently to half-averted ears for many a summer and winter. The parish as a parish, had become tired of old man Hawkins. After fifty years he had begun to pall on them. For fifty years he had christened them and married them and buried them, and held out to them the slightest possible hopes of salvation, in accordance with their own grim theology; and now they wanted to get rid of him, and he never once suspected it,—never suspected it, until that day when the church-wardens waited on him in his study in the cobwebbed old parsonage, and suggested the expediency of his retirement from active parochial duties. Even then he did not take in the full import of the deacons' communication. Retire from the Lord's vineyard just when his experience was ripest and his heart fullest of his Master's work, —surely they did not mean that! Here he was in his prime, as it were; only seventy-nine last Thanksgiving. He had come among them a young man fresh from the University on the Charles, he had given them the enthusiasm of his youth and the wisdom of his mature manhood, and he would, God willing, continue to labor with them to the end. He would die in the harness. It was his happy prayer that when the Spirit of the Lord came to take him away, it might find him preaching His word from the Old Brick Church.

A RIVERMOUTH MAIDEN.

It was a girl of nineteen or twenty, but looking younger with her hair blown about her brows by the fresh May wind. She held in one hand a chip straw hat which had slipped from its place, and with the other was pushing back an enviable mass of brown hair, showing a serious, pale face, a little flushed at the cheeks with talking. It was a face which, passing it heedlessly in the street, you would be likely to retain in your memory unconsciously. The wide gray eyes, capable of great tenderness and great haughtiness, would come back to you vividly, may be years afterward. The girl was not a beauty in the ordinary sense, but she had what some one has described as a haunting face. Who has not caught a chance expression on some face in a crowd, —a lifting of the eye, a turn of the lip, an instantaneous revelation of strength or weakness,—and never forgotten it? I have a fancy, which I do not thrust upon the reader, that the person who casts this spell on us would exert a marked influence over our destiny if circumstance brought us in contact with him or her. He or she would be our good angel or our evil star.

THE RETIRED BREWER.

Among those who had been instrumental in removing Parson Hawkins from the pastorate of the Brick Church was Mr. Ralph Dent, a retired brewer of considerable wealth and much local influence. He was not, as a general thing deeply concerned in parish affairs; he contributed liberally to every worthy charitable project, and was always to be seen in his pew at the morning service; but it was of comparatively small moment to him whether the parson's discourse was long or short, brilliant or dull, for he invariably went to sleep. Mr. Dent, for reasons which will appear, did not admire Parson Hawkins warmly; but if Mr. Dent had loved him he would have gone to sleep all the same. There are men who cannot, to save themselves from perdition, keep awake in sermon-time.

RIVERMOUTH SOCIETY.

It must be understood that there are circles in Rivermouth into which a brewer in the present tense could no more penetrate than a particularly fat camel could go through the eye of a remarkably fine cambric-needle,—charmed circles, where the atmosphere is so rarefied that after you have got into it the best thing you can do perhaps, is to get out again. It is not well to analyze the thing closely. It is all a mystery. One is pained to find that the most exclusive people have frequently passed their early manhood in selling tape or West India groceries in homœopathic quantities. This is not an immoral thing in itself, but it is certainly illogical in these people to be so intolerant of those less fortunate folks who have not yet disposed of their stock. However, this is much too vast and gloomy a subject for my narrow canvas.

RIVERMOUTH'S EAGLES.

He was superior to any young man she had ever seen. She had seen few, to be sure, for Rivermouth is a sterile spot in which to pick up a sustenance, and her young male eagles generally fly from the nest as soon as they are fledged, some seaward and others to the neighboring inland cities. They are mostly sickly eagles that are left.

—A Chicago paper, speaking of the interest due on Chicago securities in January, remarks that where the money is coming from to pay it "is not so plain as the way to the village church."

—The styles in ladies' dresses have now got back as far as the days of Catharine de Medicis. At this rate we shall soon have reached the styles prevalent in the Garden of Eden.

—"We buy nothing at the door," is the watchword in New York to prevent sharpers taking master's coat, while Bridget is handing a package of saw dust to the lady of the house.

"A friend in need is a friend indeed;" and such a friend is HELMBOLD'S BUCHU to the unfortunate sufferer who has been sowing his wild oats. Warranted to cure all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs. Look out for counterfeits. Genuine has private proprietary stamp of H. T. Helmbold on each bottle. Directions accompany. Sold by all druggists. John F. Henry, New York, Sole Agent.

ANAKESIS is without doubt, the most infallible easy and scientific cure for PILES ever discovered, 20,000 grateful patients attest its virtues, and physicians of all schools endorse it unequivocally. Lotions, ointments, and electuaries are only a waste of time and money. ANAKESIS relieves pain at once and cures absolutely. It is the discovery of Dr. SILSBEE, a scientific physician, and has been pronounced the greatest contribution to medicine of the age.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and truly refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

A Manual of Health.

The edition for 1874 of the sterling medical annual known as Hostetter's Almanac is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the United States and British America, and indeed in every civilized portion of the Western Hemisphere. This Almanac has been issued regularly at the commencement of every year for about one-fifth of of a century. It combines with the soundest practical advice for the preservation and restoration of health, a large amount of interesting and amusing light reading, and the calendar, astronomical calculations, chronological items, &c., are prepared with great care, and will be found entirely accurate. The issue of Hostetter's Almanac for 1874 will probably be the largest edition of a medical work ever published in any country. The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburg, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

Old Probabilities. Our learned friend, who sits at Washington, and receives, from the signal stations of a continent, reports on the vicissitudes of the weather, sorts, compares and infers from them the daily bulletins which everybody reads, might reasonably add, in view of our late sudden changes, "Colds, Coughs and affections of the throat and lungs will prevail in the East and North. Warning signals continue in the West and South." In view of the truth of these probabilities, we commend to all sufferers that excellent and potent specific, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has, in countless instances, saved life, and has, within the knowledge of every one, alleviated most alarming symptoms and effected cures almost surpassing belief. So excellent is it that the medical faculty largely use it in their practice. In cases of seated consumption, it prolongs life and softens the stay of the afflicted sufferer. About these days it is well to have it in the house. By its timely use, serious disease may be checked and turned aside.—Nashua (Iowa) Post.

Christmas at Kittery Point.

The exercises at the vestry of the Freewill Baptist Society in their new church at Kittery Point on Christmas evening proved to be a most interesting and enjoyable entertainment.

The audience room of this church is not yet completed; the vestry having been, this most opportune holiday evening was chosen to dedicate its sacred use by Christmas gifts. The room was tastefully festooned with evergreens and floral decorations and the walls bore mottoes and sacred quotations of the same attractive hues. The exercises showed that they had offerings of the heart as well as of the purse.

The pastor of the Society, Rev. Mr. Towne, after brief appropriate remarks introduced Rev. Wm. Christie of the Congregational church, who has just returned from Europe. He happily referred to the elaborate churches and cathedrals of the old world profusely rich in their statues and other works of art—saying they had no living soul, that the spirit of Christ could dwell as well in the plain temples dedicated to the worship of God or in his groves, as elsewhere, that his spirit dwelt in the temples of their hearts, and if their hearts were in God's work his temple would be where they met for his worship.

Rev. Mr. Harmon of Portsmouth next followed in his facetious style, by way of encouragement to the society in their noble enterprise of building so good a church, contrasting the advantages of Christendom with Pagan countries, its advantages of education, of rapid, cheap and commodious means of travel, its social elevation and numerous other benefits, all derived from the establishment of churches. He said that instead of our offerings in behalf of churches being a donation to God, it was the return to him of but a tithe of what God gave us through them. If the effect of his argument could last we doubt not a new impetus will be given to the society in their new enterprise.

Rev. Mr. Hutchinson, of Kittery, followed in the same line of argument and said in a financial point of view churches should be supported. He said some men were too mean to get rich, and illustrated his argument by a story of two men in the West, whom he knew, both of whom started at the same time to invest in land, but in different places. One gave liberally for the establishment of schools and churches where he invested, in several places, selling his farms at great advance and accumulating a competence. After several years he visited his former companion in pioneer life who asked him how it was that he could make money so much faster than himself in the same time. The reply was "you are too contemptibly mean to make money." This was because he gave nothing for education or the Gospel.

After the exercises by the Sabbath school, consisting of songs, recitations and dialogues, the presents from the Christmas tree were distributed and the services ended at ten o'clock. The place was filled to overflowing, yet all passed off harmoniously.

M.

Newcastle.

Mr. Santhoff has, after a month's absence, again made his appearance, this time as superintendent of repairs on Forts Constitution and McClary, each of which have a gang of hands busily engaged "fixing up" certain weak points.

Old and young had a Christmas tree in the chapel of the Christian church on Christmas eve. The tree was beautifully decorated and the burning tapers, illuminating its branches, showed the good taste of the managers in that art. It was estimated that there were over 300 fine clusters of fruit, ranging from a "witch" up to a whistling toad, and from a candy walking stick down to a "sharp-shooter" handsled.

One of the happiest recipients was the pastor of the church, Rev. Frank R. Wade, who received a handsome watch chain and other articles, among which was a paper having thirty-seven names with these words attached: "This chain and these handkerchiefs are from the church, society and friends." Rev. Mr. Goss and wife of Portsmouth, who gave cheer to the festival tree by their presence, were not forgotten. R.

Police Court.

Mayor Marvin complained of John S. Wendell, Jr., employed by Mr. E. H. Balch, on Friday, for cruelly beating a horse on Fleet street. On a plea of guilty, the court having no jurisdiction to impose a fine, the horse beater was held in the sum of $300 to appear at the S. J. Court at Exeter next April. The officers of the S. P. C. A. have requested Judge Page to give his views in reference to the statute law referring to cruelty to animals and to suggest such modifications as to allow the Police Judge to impose a fine or punishment in cases not too grave.

Laconics.

Eleven hundred and eighty men are employed at the navy yard.

Poultry was in demand on Christmas, bringing thirty-three cents per lb.

Republican delegate caucus in the third Ward this (Saturday) evening at 6,30.

Mr. Joshua Smith of Durham is a candidate for the republican nomination for Senator in this district.

Wanted at this office—two numbers of the N. H. GAZETTE of March 1, 1873, to complete files.

The principal feature of Christmas was the entertainment at Congress Hall provided for poor children; some three hundred partaking of a generous supper. It was every way successful.

A young lad by the name of Lane celebrated Christmas by breaking through the ice on South Mill Pond. He was rescued by a young man named Harmon after taking a cold bath.

The individual who left this city at 7 o'clock, Tuesday, and arrived in Washington 23 hours afterward, staying there 16 hours, and arrived here Thursday night at 10 o'clock, thinks he did a good job.

The annual meeting of the Mechanic Fire Society was held at the Franklin House last week; and B. F. Webster elected president, and E. M. Brown secretary and treasurer. The quarterly supper was spread in the best style of mine host Parker.

Semi-annual dividend, due Jan. 1st, will be paid on Tuesday, the 30th inst., to stockholders in the Concord & Portsmouth Railroad, on their calling on William H. Hackett between the hours of half-past ten A. M. and four P. M. of that day.

Christmas Day was cloudy, but comfortable in temperature—presenting a marked contrast to Thanksgiving Day, which was cold and stormy. The sleighing of November had all disappeared, but the skating was excellent on the ponds.

The Journal stepped far beyond the truth when it declared its circulation equal to that of the CHRONICLE and NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE. The wish was doubtless father to the thought; but the owner of the Journal should tell the truth rather than guess at a falsehood.

On Christmas eve, a number of the young people of Kittery, of both sexes, who had clubbed together to raise money to introduce "a merry Christmas" into a number of houses where it would probably not have otherwise got, bestowed turkeys, chickens, vegetables and other "fixin's" upon a number of poor people, mostly widows. The young folks' Christmas was none the less merry.

At the ball of the Athlete Base Ball Club of Kittery, Christmas evening, several shockingly severe "ladies" from Portsmouth intruded and behaved in such a manner as to make evident the "class" they belonged to. They were promptly ejected from the hall, and the indignant remonstrances of their "protectors" were soon quieted by the soothing remarks of a big base-ball man, who looked as though he was really anxious for an hour's lively exercise. The ball was well filled and the ball a well-conducted and successful one.

Mr. John D. Swain of this city was the recipient of a handsome present from Mr. L. S. Boomer, for his aid and advice in placing the truss on the P. & D. R. R. bridge at Dover Point. Mr. Boomer is from Chicago and was contractor for building the truss. The placing of it on the bridge required more than ordinary engineering and mechanical skill, and Mr. Swain's prompt and efficient assistance was both verbally and substantially acknowledged.

One cause of the success of Hon. Frank Jones, and not a minor cause by any means, is his careful selection of agents to do his business. This is shown by the confidence he reposed in the late Daniel Marden and has now in Messrs. Justin V. Hanscom, Daniel E. Leavitt and Josiah Morrison. Mr. Hanscom was the surprised recipient of a gold watch on Christmas day from Mr. Jones, while Mrs. Hanscom received a beautiful set of silver tea and table spoons from Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Leavitt. Other presents were also given the worthy couple by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Sinclair.

At York, Christmas morning, while two employees of S. W. Junkins & Co. were engaged in packing shingles in the loft of their shabby, the flooring gave way under too much weight, and flooring, shingles and debris fell to the lower floor, nearly demolishing a new barouche which had been stabled there for the night. Stanley Moulton, one of the employees, falling down with the shingles, received some very severe bruises about the face, and also injured his side and back to a considerable extent. S. W. Junkins and H. R. W. Eastman were in the lower part and escaped, but Junkins received a heavy blow on the side of the head and shoulders. P.

The New England Jubilee Singers' concert, at the Temple, on Christmas night, was a very creditable and enjoyable entertainment, and netted a considerable sum for the Mount Olivet church fund. The troupe consists of eleven female and four male colored vocalists, all residents of this city, one of the latter, Mr. M. B. Thompson, being their capable and efficient leader. They sang entirely without instrumental accompaniment, and notwithstanding the severe hoarseness of Mr. Thompson deprived them of the important aid of his voice, they rendered their entire programme finely—actually delighting their audience more than the famous jubilee troupes which have appeared here. Notwithstanding all their selections were of a sacred character, much of their singing was "as good as a play," and all the more amusing that they did not appreciate it, but were entirely decorous, and even earnest and plaintive in manner, all the while. We are glad to learn that the troupe will give another concert here in a few weeks, and we shall expect to see a full house.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders. D. H. MONTGOMERY.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,

LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choakings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 33 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and have tried all the time, have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and strangulings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—It was about two o'clock on Friday morning that Mrs. Hennessey, thinking she heard a noise in the kitchen, crept out of bed and to that room to see if it was not Hennessey, who had been expected for several hours. On reaching the kitchen, she found her lord and master sitting on the floor with his new silk hat between his knees, and in the hat several dried herrings, and about two quarts of water. Hennessey was eyeing the mixture with profound gratification. "Jim Hennessey," screamed the lady, "what are you doing?" "Me?" inquired Mr. Hennessey, with a look of surprise. "Why, Matildy, I'm (hic) starting an (hic!) aquarium for your Christmas."

—Mrs. Young, the nineteenth wife of Brigham Young, who is now lecturing in New York, tells a story of a little girl feeling the want of fatherly attention. It had been an unusually sorrowful day with her mother, and her child had partaken of the sadness. She sat by the fire with her head upon her hand, thinking intently, when she suddenly said to her mother: "Mamma, I do wish God had made men enough so that every little girl could have a father to love her."

—A Beaver county, Pennsylvania, man threatens to bring suit against a young farmer who persists in sitting up with his daughter Sunday nights till 4 o'clock in the morning. The stern parent claims, firstly, that the following day, being wash-day, his gal ain't of no account; secondly, that if they could only use two chairs the one they do use wouldn't cost so much for repairs.

—A writer in Scribner says that when a man enters a restaurant, calls for fish-balls and beans "sleeve-buttons for one" ordered, and finds pork and beans transformed into "stars and stripes," he begins to wonder whether civilization is not a failure.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching the recondite recessions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the honsehold—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But the reading-matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity for the fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of the rare, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding issue heralds a fresh surprise to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception, alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDES!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its woodcuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in the White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the fountain of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

The Country Gentleman.

Volume for 1874.

THE CULTIVATOR & COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, for the past forty years, has ranked, both in this country and abroad, as the STANDARD JOURNAL OF AMERICAN AGRICULTURE. The Editors and Proprietors, in addition to their own personal labors, are regularly assisted by a very large number of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agricultural Men, in all parts of the Country, East and West—and by over Five Hundred Occasional and Voluntary Writers, directly in the ranks of the Farmers of the Land, and tourists of nearly every State in the Union. With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Products and Fertility of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crop—Breeders of Improved Stock, and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase such implements—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of crops, by more extensive Season, in throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and when to Sell.

TERMS.—THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is published weekly, on the following terms, when paid strictly in advance: ONE COPY, one year, $2.50; TWO COPIES, $5; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club; TEN COPIES, $20, and an additional copy for the year free to the sender of the Club.

OF

CONSUMPTION!!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.,

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Singer Still Triumphant!

At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either the competing machines, and was medal-more than any other exhibitor. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.

But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-ONE (219,751) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 5,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other Company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in durability and simplicity of mechanism, and quality for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

SIXTEEN OIL PAINTINGS IN A BOOK!

Never before was such an idea attempted for book illustration; everyone who has seen it pronounces it superb. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's latest work,

Woman in Sacred History,

is a series of narrative sketches, drawn from Scriptural, historical and legendary sources, ILLUSTRATED WITH SIXTEEN CHOICE OIL-CHROMOS, after paintings by the most celebrated artists in the world, giving a rich and magnificent variety of Oriental costume and beauty. Mrs. Stowe, in her charming style, has written a book full of interest, and without a dull page in it, which even if not illustrated would sell rapidly; but the

make it one of the most unique, original and remarkable books ever offered. The pictures, if published separately, would readily sell for $2 each, or $32, while the entire book, with the sixteen pictures, together with sumptuous binding of the volume, can be had for one-fifth of that amount. The book is published in ENGLISH and in GERMAN, and is making a tremendous and salesmen, because it is absolutely new and "has money in." To get pleasant work and good pay, send for terms, circulars, &c., to J. E. FORD & CO., New York, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, or Cincinnati. ...d12

Stowaways.

In the melancholy catalogue of the poor people engulfed in the Ville du Havre we read that there were twenty-seven third-class passengers and six "stowaways." The last-named term is sufficiently curious to call for explanation, and in tendering it we touch upon one of the most wretched features of emigrant life. A "stowaway" is an individual who, at the last moment, just before the vessel leaves the dock for her destination, slinks on board, creeps below and conceals himself as securely as he is able in remote nooks and corners of the lower deck or the forepeak. Sometimes he gets into the hold; but there, if the hatches are battened down, he runs the imminent risk of being smothered. At all events, he crawls into his colgn of vantage and crouches there like a rat behind the wainscot quaking for fear of discovery. And detection must sooner or later be the doom of the stowaway. So well is the practice of smuggling human baggage known to sea-going folk, that prior to a large emigrant ship sailing there is generally organized a picket of sailors, headed by one of the mates, and furnished with lanterns and rattans, who make a tour of exploration among the packing cases and provision casks. "Hunting for stowaways," is a most exciting sport, the wretched defaulters are "started" from their holes, roundly abused, hustled on deck "slanged" by the captain—happy they, in an American clipper, who escape being "Shanghaied" by the boatswain or "boosted" by the first mate—and are then contumaciously kicked over the side. Some stowaways, however, generally contrive to pass unnoticed in the search; and six—the number found on board the Ville du Havre—may be considered as a fair average among a hundred and fifty passengers. The ship, in any case, cannot be many days at sea before they are discovered. Every fresh hogshead of beef or biscuit that is unheaded diminishes their chances of immunity; still there have been known instances of unfortunate creatures being inadvertently jammed up between and behind heavy piles of merchandise, and so suffering a living entombment rivalling that of Constance de Beverley in horror. Stowaways dragged from their hiding places when the ship is in blue water have to take their chance; and a very calamitous chance it is. If the culprit be a woman she has not much to fear. Jack is proverbially gallant, and an active woman may make herself very useful in the cabin and the cookhouse. But when the offender happens to be a raw lad—which he generally is, and Irish, to boot—he has emphatically a "bad time" of it. He may consider himself fortunate if he is allowed to earn the worth of his bed and board by performing the most menial drudgery, and at the end of the voyage the captain can, if he chooses, take the stowaway before a magistrate and have him punished for fraud. It usually happens, however, that the skipper, when the run is over, is as glad to get rid of his unprofitable passenger as that passenger is to be well out of the ship. The former says nothing about the pecuniary loss his owners have suffered, and the latter is quite content to be silent with regard to the numerous attentions conveyed through the instrumentality of marlinspikes and ropes' ends with which he has been favored by the boatswain and his assistants. What the French authorities would have said to these waifs and strays on their arrival at Havre is uncertain; but the poor fellows need fear no frowns of human justice now. They are drowned.

The Midnight Cat.

Yes, sir, I know lots of men who will start up in bed and shiver and shake, and curse and swear if a tom-cat, prowling along the garden fence, but opens his jaws and utters one single yell. On the contrary, the midnight cat never disturbs me. In fact, I like to lay and listen to the music of a dozen cats holding mass convention on the garden fence.

As the first cat breaks out I heave a sigh and wonder if the world wouldn't be as well off without cats, but I don't get mad. Some men tear around and declare that they'll never sleep again until they kill every cat within a circle of four hundred and fifty miles; and nothing will soothe them.

After the third yell I wonder if it wouldn't be just as well if some bad boy should buy an ounce of arsenic, a pound of meat, and distribute the two around in back yards, but I don't go further. Some men jump out of bed and yell: "Where in thunder is that boot-jack—where's a club?" And they rush to the door and fling clubs and yell "scat" and wake everybody on the block.

After the fifth yell I wonder if I hadn't better raise the window and ask the cats to adjourn around the block, on account of my wife's nervousness, but I don't get mad. Some men allow their hair to come right up, fall over chairs, stub their toes against the stove, and exclaim: "Helen Blazes, but don't I sicken those felines?"

By-and-by the cats cease howling, and my eye-lids begin to ache. I am rapidly losing consciousness, when the old Maltese rises to a question of order, and the opposition commences yelling him down. He yells back, and I get up to see what time it is, and then wonder if it wouldn't be as well for me to go out there and explain matters, and entreat the convention to go down the yard to the grape-arbor. Mind, I don't think of this after the shot-gun, and wake up my wife and ask her for powder and old nails and broken glass, and bark my shin on the stove hearth, and exclaim out: "I'll kill a million cats to pay for this!"

Maltese yields the floor, and the convention goes ahead in an orderly manner. I imagine that the business which called the crowd together has been disposed of, and creep back to bed. My wife wakes up and wants to know what I got up for, and I tell her that I was after the peppermint for my neuralgia. Some men would lay and jaw and tame for an hour, and finally get up a fight with their loving partner.

I just close my eyes to sleep when old Maltese offers an amendment to some motion, and the opposition go for him again. He yells back, spits at them in scorn, and they fall upon him. He backs under my window and stands at bay. I creep out of bed and seize a club, but drop it again as I remember that I am not mad. It would, perhaps, be well to step to the door and throw the boiler, and the wood-box, and the cupboard, and the ax, and the woodpile, and the whole summer-kitchen, at the cats, but I refrain, and merely tap on the window and urge old Maltese to cover himself with glory. Some men would grab up the table or sofa, or the first thing handy, and ejaculate: "I'm a sinner it I didn't murder somebody or something!"

Years of observation have convinced me that the general antipathy to cats is entirely unfounded.

Forefather's Day in Washington.

The New England Society assembled in Marine Hall, Washington, to celebrate the 253d anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims. Col. J. C. Smith, the President, gave a brief address of welcome, and announced a series of toasts to the several New England States. Responses were made by Senator Morrill of Maine, Representative Willard of Vermont, Judge Snell, Hon. J. H. Ela and others. After the speeches came dancing, with music. The President called up Mr. Ela to respond to the toast,

New Hampshire—While a good State to emigrate from, still a good State to live in.

Go where you will over the wide world and you find them. Sometimes it will be building railroads among the Andes in Peru. Sometimes engineering them from St. Petersburg to Moscow in Russia. And sometimes on mid-ocean, rigging steering apparatus for the Great Eastern when disabled and beating about at the mercy of the waves. You will find some of them moved by religious fervor, making a lodgment at Joppa on their way to rescue Jerusalem from infidel hands. Others you will find as missionaries on the burning sands of Africa, by the banks of the Ganges, and among the Islands of more distant seas. They thickened the advance guard of emigrants all the way in the westward march of empire to the Pacific, and are now directing the seal catching of Alaska. You who are residents here have seen them coming back across the great father of waters to your national assembly from Dacotah, from far off Montana and still more distant Oregon. They turn up as Legislators, Congressmen, Judges and Governors in States both old and new. It was only the other day the Great Boss of the Empire City was convicted by a jury with a New Hampshire born foreman, sentenced by a New Hampshire born Judge in a State presided over by a New Hampshire born Governor. New Hampshire emigrants preside over the Senate,—fill the executive office in both Houses of Congress,—dispense justice from your Supreme Bench and preside over your National Bureau of Education. They led public sentiment through the Metropolitan Press, when the cry was "on to Richmond" and "on to amnesty." It has long been settled beyond dispute, that she was a good State to go to for emigrants; while many may doubt the sentiment of Webster that this is a good State to emigrate from.

But, Mr. President, what I want to say most is, that she is still a good State to live in. She is rocky and rough and crowded up into ridges and mountains, and so narrow and small, that a western land grabber once told me that if the whole State was stolen they wouldn't hold the thief for more than petty larceny in his State, and yet a prairie orator who had been campaigning among our mountains and valleys declared if she was only spreadout flat like his State, she was about as big as they made them. It is true it cannot compete with a prairie State in the general productions of the soil, though a thousand miles nearer the consuming markets, and raising as much to the acre on the average as the best of them. But even in that we have compensating advantages. There they cultivate vast tracts with machinery and hired servants—tenants at will upon the domain of the capitalist, who may buy and cultivate all that gains him, but the rough and rocky hillsides of New Hampshire forbid cultivation in large tracts, and hence small farms cultivated by their owners must always be the prevailing rule. It is in such regions of country you find a sturdy, independent class of men, above want and free from the enervation of luxury, who bow to no one as master, and are ready for any duty or to meet any danger. You will seldom, if ever, find in such a country either extreme poverty or great wealth. You would not seek there, for menials to wear livery, or snobbs to employ them. The industries of New Hampshire are so diversified, as to give scope to every taste and congenial employment to the great body of her citizens. Her productions are so varied that dull times and panics seldom if ever reach them all at the same time. And now since the financial tornadohas swept over the country I venture the assertion that there is not in the wide world, so large a population so well employed, so well paid, and surrounded by, and enjoying so many of the comforts of life and so free from want and suffering of every kind, as the people of New Hampshire.

I know it is said as it has been here to-night, that we have an inhospitable climate, and when comparing the range of the thermometer, with the mild weather hereabouts, some shrug their shoulders and exclaim it must be a dreadful place to live in. But we all know that cold as it is, it has its advantage. The ice of our ponds will buy us all we need of the fruits of the tropics. Our three months of winter snow, make roads over which more business and transportation and more travel can be performed with a pair of horses, than can be done anywhere within a hundred miles of this city, in the same time by any six horse team. Our winter is the intellectual and educational season of the year—the season of visiting and social intercourse—of public discussions, and discussion of public matters — of common schools, spelling schools—of debating clubs and village lyceums, where high aims and ambitions are stimulated. Who that has pushed through their graduations can ever forget them? But when the heat of summer comes, bringing prostration and lassitude and the music of mosquitoes, how is it then? You will see coming from the great valley of the Mississippi, from the broad savannahs of the south, and from the great belt of Middle States, thousands upon thousands wending their way to our cooling beaches and sea girt islands, and seeking health and comfort in the bracing air of our mountain and lake region. Then, if at no other time, all admit that New Hampshire is a good State to live in.

Mr. President, in attempting to respond to the sentiment just given, I may be pardoned for saying that I am not here by original selection, but by substitution. The eloquent Representative in the Lower House of Congress, was originally selected, and when Congress adjourned he put up your President to this substitution and left for his home. You will all appreciate my dilemma, when told that I get my rations from that gentleman's table and am therefore at his mercy and must obey. But ladies and gentlemen, when I recall the record made by the sons of New Hampshire in their wanderings from the Old Homestead, I think it fully justifies me in saying, that wherever their footsteps have wandered, they have kept in the front ranks in every sphere of action in which they have been placed, and out of all proportion to their numbers. This is partly owing to inherited qualities, partly to home training, and partly to an honorable ambition to do credit to themselves and their native State.

Seizure.

At Boston, Saturday, Special Agent Norman H. Bingham made a seizure of the books of Messrs. Jordan, Marsh & Co. for alleged frauds on the revenue department of the United States. The amount of the alleged frauds is about $3,000,000.

These alleged frauds have extended over a period of ten years it is asserted, and the suspicion which led to the seizure of the books, was aroused some eight months ago. The members of the firm court the fullest examination, and say that there was no occasion for the seizure, and are not a little indignant that it was made.

State News.

The Claremont Manufacturing Co. has issued the New Hampshire Register for 1874. It is handy for reference, containing the vote of the State for Governor in 1872 and 1873, names of representatives, statistical information and a business directory of officials in every town. For sale at the book stores.

Referring to the personnel of the new Senators, "Occasional" writing from Washington says: There is no place in the world where real practical ability is so readily recognized as in the United States Senate. Another Senator from whom usefulness at least is expected is Mr. Wadleigh, of New Hampshire. He is reported to be an eloquent and well-informed man.

Readables.

A formidable strike occurred Friday, the locomotive engineers on a score or more railroads west of Pittsburg, including the Pan Handle, the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago, the Illinois Central and the Northwestern, quitting work simultaneously at noon, on account of the reduction of wages. Business on the roads affected was generally suspended, although in some instances the efforts of the managers to obtain substitutes for the strikers were partly successful.

George D. Lybrand, son of a wealthy gentleman in Chicago, committed suicide in Saco by taking three ounces of laudanum and two grains of morphine on the day before Christmas. He had lost a fortune the past year and had previously been insane.

A steamer carrying a large number of workmen struck a sunken wreck in the river Tyne, England, Friday, and went down so suddenly that between thirty and forty men were drowned.

The President has appointed Caleb Cushing to be Minister to Spain vice Daniel E. Sickles, resigned.

The Danbury News had less than 2000 subscribers on the first of January, 1873, and on the first of September, 1873, it had a circulation of 25,000, and on the first of December 30,000 copies were issued. No premiums have ever been offered and no subscriptions solicited. We regard this as a remarkable personal triumph for Mr. J. M. Bailey, the editor, whose genial, humorous and witty paragraphs have been convulsing Christendom for a year.

The post-office department has decided that any member of advertisements may be printed on postal cards, or any amount of matter written, provided said advertisement be printed or written on the side of the card specified by law. The inquiry arose from the fact that a Boston clothing house has been buying postal cards in very large quantities, printing its advertisement on a part of the card, and then selling the cards to other parties at sixty-two cents a hundred for the purpose of using the remaining space. The decision is, in effect, that any number of individuals or firms may print their advertisements on postal cards before said cards are deposited in the mails.

Hale Catches Hell Columbia.

[Washington cor. Philadelphia Journal.]

During the consideration of the salary bill on Wednesday, several members "rose to explain." First was that grave and quiet man, Hale, of New York, who undertook to lecture those naughty members who had an eye to the loaves and fishes. He didn't want any; not he. He voted for the bill only to save the appropriation bill. It is really refreshing, in listening to these debates, to learn the extent of the lacerated feeling for which that wicked appropriation bill is responsible. It is the source of all the ills which Congressmen are heir to. Without it we should have had no "salary grab," and our pious democratic friends would never have been horrified at the depravity of those republicans who tempted honest democrats to vote for the "back pay steal."

Hale's speech woke up one or two passengers who had not been booked for the occasion. The first to enter the lists against the member from New York, was Wilson, of Indiana, who propounded several interrogatories showing that he possessed a disagreeable memory relative to the record of the innocent Hale. Next came Charley Eldridge of Wisconsin, one of the "unwashed," whose democratic proclivities one is almost inclined to forgive in admiration of his extraordinary appreciation of the ladies. Charley, since the retirement of Dan Voorhees, is the oracle of the democratic side of the House, where he is as potential as was ever "the tall sycamore of the Wabash." He asked several leading questions which were exceedingly disagreeable. He desired to be informed as to the amount of salary the gentleman received as attorney for the government in certain claims, while he was drawing pay as a member of Congress? Hale said that was an impertinent question, and declined to answer it. The facts are that Hale was employed by the Secretary of State to look after the interest of the government before one of the Foreign Claims Commissions sitting in Washington, for which service he received ten thousand dollars per annum by vote of Congress. The pungency of his remarks on the salary grabbers brought to his feet the gentleman from Essex county, no less an individual than Hon. Benjamin F. Butler.

Now, although, as in the story of old, the cup of Benjamin was undoubtedly found in the mouth of the sack, it is a subject on which that gentleman is sensitive, if the word may properly be used in connection with any attribute possessed by the hero of New Orleans, and there is no man in the House from New York or elsewhere who cares to rouse the powerful antagonism of General Butler in debate. His resources in sarcasm and ridicule, as in all qualities which render him master of the situation wherever hemay be placed, are exhaustless. Thomas F. Marshall of Kentucky, once passing through the lobby, heard the voice of John Quincy Adams administering a castigation to a brother member. Marshall, who had himself once been the recipient of a similar chastisement at the hands of the "Old Man Eloquent," paused and enquired who was the subject of the present discipline? Being informed, he uttered solemnly the words "May God have mercy on his soul," and passed on. Since that time there have been in the House of Representatives many brilliant intellects who were ornaments of their country, but probably no man who has been a member of the House within the last twenty years, commanded the abundant resources for a combat with words to enable him to cope with Benjamin F. Butler.

It is notstrange then if the cheek of the innocent member from New York turned a shade paler when he found himself confronted by this formidable antagonist. Butler obtained the floor by unanimous consent, while numbers left their seats and gathered round the speaker, as in the days of old Thad. Stevens they gathered near to catch the words of "the great commoner." His allusion to the story of the woman taken in adultery was very happy. Turning to his audience, he said, "let him that is without sin cast the first stone." Then casting his off eye, as Don Piatt would say, upon Mr. Hale, he added, "and I should like to see the gentleman from New York leading that stoning party." It is said that the members on the Democratic side, sent to the Library and read the story for the first time. One old sinner who was astonished to find it in the Bible, said that "Ben was such an infernal old liar that he thought he must have made it up as he went along!" The speech was frequently applauded, and like all of Butler's speeches brought down the House at brief intervals, members on both sides participating in the merriment occasioned by the "hits" which came thicker and faster as "Old Ben warmed up to business."

Vitreous Blasoiving Views.

[Danbury News.]

French plate glass in windows is not an indication of snobbishness. Every house in the land should have its French plate, and the present glass should be buried far below the surface of the earth. An incident which occurred on Sunday afternoon illustrates the grievous defect of the American window-glass. A young lady living on Rose Hill had seated herself at the window which commanded a range of the road, to wait for a young man who is all in all to her in this life. When he came in sight she was ranging through one of those panes which are capable of almost an unlimited number of changes. She perceived her lover as he approached over the hill, and recognized him at once. Immediately he ceased to become her John, and closed up to a waddling party of about four hundred pounds burden. Then he suddenly split in two lengthways, and each half hobbed up and down toward her. She would have shrieked in horror but a new transformation turned the tide of her emotions. The parts came together again and shot up to a great altitude, and immediately sunk down again, and what but a moment before was her admired John was now an object of many revolving legs, like a beetle drunken with new wine. The poor girl was so affected by this marvelous change that she burst into an uncontrollable laughing fit, and emerged from it a maniac. She was removed to Middletown this morning, accompanied by her distressed parents, and all that medical art can do will be done for her relief, but the case appears almost hopeless.

ANAKESIS is without doubt, the most infallible cure and actual remedy for PILES ever discovered, 20,000 grateful patients attest its virtues, and physicians of all schools endorse it unequivocally. Lotions, ointments, and electuaries are only a waste of time and money. ANAKESIS relieves pain at once and cures absolutely. It is the discovery of Dr. SILOMON, a scientific physician, and has been pronounced the greatest contribution to medicine of the age.—Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Roots and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

A Manual of Health.

The edition for 1874 of the sterling medical Annual known as Hostetter's Almanac is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the United States and British America, and indeed in every civilized portion of the Western Hemisphere. This Almanac has been issued regularly at the commencement of every year for about one-fifth of a century. It combines with the soundest practical advice for the preservation and restoration of health, a large amount of interesting and amusing light reading, and the calendar, astronomical calculations, chronological items, &c., are prepared with great care, and will be found entirely accurate. The issue of Hostetter's Almanac for 1874 will probably be the largest edition of a medical work ever published in any country. The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburg, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

Odd Probabilities.—Our learned friend, who sits at Washington, and receives, from the signal stations of a continent, reports on the vicissitudes of the weather, sorts, compares and infers from them the daily bulletins which everybody reads, might reasonably add, in view of our late sudden changes, "Colds, Coughs and affections of the throat and lungs will prevail in the East and North. Warning signals continue in the West and South." In view of the truth of these probabilities, we commend to all sufferers that excellent and potent specific, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has, in countless instances, saved life, and has, within the knowledge of every one, alleviated most alarming symptoms and effected cures almost surpassing belief. So excellent is it that the medical faculty largely use it in their practice. In cases of seated consumption, it prolongs life and softens the stay of the afflicted sufferer. About these days it is well to have it in the house. By its timely use, serious disease may be checked and turned aside.—Nashua (Iowa) Post.

Local Matters.

The Children's Christmas Tree.

We desire to make a public report to the benevolent ladies and gentlemen who responded so heartily to our call for contributions to the Christmas entertainment for the poor children of our city. The gifts were appropriate to the occasion, abundant and of generous quality. The little folks had a merry Christmas." Their gratitude was evident through their orderly conduct, and the heartiness with which they sang their songs. The exhibition of a magic lantern by Mr. John H. Slater was very interesting to them. 'Twas enough to do one good to hear the children laugh at the comical figures displayed.

After supper, an hour was devoted to play. When the fur-clad, white-bearded Santa Claus made his appearance, he was greeted with shouts of joyful welcome, and then the distribution of presents began. When the two trees were unloaded every boy and girl in the hall had received a gift to take home.

Many ladies and gentlemen who came in to witness the scene were so much pleased that they want to establish the custom of giving an annual festival to the little folks whose parents are unable to have Christmas entertainments. Two hundred and sixty-seven children from all parts of the city were present. Contributors were so numerous that the committee cannot remember the names of all who gave. We have recorded the following:

Mrs. B. F. Thorndike, Miss Sarah Foster, Miss Mary Foster, Mrs. Wm. Day, Mrs. Jos. Grace, Mrs. Charles Akerman, Mrs. Albert Jones, Miss E. Pearson, Miss Parrott, Mrs. Aaron Hill, Miss Emily Fernald, Mrs. John J. Pickering, Mrs. John N. Handy, Mrs. J. P. Morse, Mrs. F. W. Miller, John Stokeli & Co., A. A. Payne, James W. Nutter, Henry M. Clark, Edmund M. Brown, William Simes, Ebenezer Lord, Leonard Akerman, Fred Moses & Bro., A. W. Stavers, Thompson & Son, Charles H. Mendum, Charles M. Laighton, J. M. Tredick, J. P. Bartlett, J. J. Pickering, Dr. E. B. Goodall, H. F. Gerrish, C. E. Myers, Paymaster Eldredge, Frank Rice, J. H. Foster, John Slater, A. W. Haven, Mr. Buzzell, Butler & Laighton, John Hodgdon, 2d, Charles Joy, T. P. Moses, Ed. S. Fay, N. F. Mathes, Hartley W. Mason, H. C. Locke, Rev. L. L. Harmon, S. W. Moses, C. H. Hayes, James Sowersby, Charles Vaughan, George Plummer, George A. Perkins.

If others who helped the enterprise and will give us their names we will record them for future reference.

The following named persons gave their time and personal attention to the work of preparation and to the entertainment of the children:

Mrs. C. A. Norton, Mrs. Phineas Goodrich, Mrs. and Mr. George H. Andrews, Miss Hattie Andrews, Miss Louisa Andrews, Miss Mary Andrews, Miss Anna Goodrich, Miss Robelina Goodrich, Mrs. Thorndike, Mrs. Marvin, Miss Simmons, Mrs. Sanborn, John Slater, E. Q. Norton, —— Plummer, James W. Nutter, Henry Wallace, John E. Milton.

Thanks are due to the ladies of the Universalist Social Circle for a large variety of rich cake, fancy articles and cooking utensils; also to Sagamore Engine Co., for the use of their tables. The children were all satisfied, and enjoyed the occasion to the utmost. Respectfully submitted,

T. E. O. MARVIN,

Councillor—John Colcord, Frank Junkins, John Dame, J. Sullivan Rand.

Senatorial—Joseph H. Gardiner Daniel R. Neal, Charles N. Osgood, Charles W. Bailey.

Ward Committee—William H. Rollins, Charles W. Bailey, John E. Colcord, Joseph H. Gardiner, George M. Ayers, Job Woodsum, Charles N. Osgood, Daniel Neal, Frank P. Junkins, Frank E. Osgood, Alonzo Wise, John Dame, J. S. Rand, John S. Whidden, Gardner M. Goodrich, Joseph Stickney, John A. Yeaton, Thomas Moore.

The Pension Agency.

Major Vaughan's friends are not confined to the city of his residence. The pensioners in all parts of the State have petitioned for his reappointment, and now the Great Falls Journal has the following friendly notice:

"The proposed removal of Major Vaughan from the Pension Agency at Portsmouth, is creating considerable talk in political circles in this locality. No question or political expediency demands the change; indeed it is of vital importance that the administration of this office be continued undisturbed. Aside from Major Vaughan's record in the field, his service cannot be thus ignored with impunity. There are some qualities besides importunity and pertinacity which qualify an officer for the position he holds, or may seek. If there be policy in politics, we trust the 'other half' of the delegation in Congress will recognize the fact, harmony being the strength and support of all institutions, more particularly this of politics. During Major Vaughan's one term, he has given the highest satisfaction to all with whom he has come in contact, and notably the pensioners. He has been a faithful officer, is above reproach as a citizen and has troops of friends who do not like to be trifled with. Let there be no change, if you please, gentlemen."

Laconics.

Thanks to Congressman Small for copies of the Congressional Globe for the 42d Congress.

The colored singers are advertised to give a concert at Great Falls next Thursday evening.

Some days since the young ladies of the High School, as is their custom, made elegant presents to their teachers, Mr. Payson and Miss Morgan. To the principal, Mr. A. M. Payson they gave a very beautiful and costly pickle-jar of frosted glass, set in a very handsome silver frame, and to Miss Morgan, a splendid silver card-receiver, gold lined.

Dr. A. P. Stevens has been elected to the honorable position of Corresponding member of the Massachusetts State Dental Society, and has been invited to deliver a course of lectures upon Operative Dentistry at the Boston Dental College. Dr. Stevens is the seventh person honored in this manner by the Society, there being three from New York, one from Philadelphia, one from Hartford and one from Paris.

The members of Kearsarge S. F. E. Co. No. 3 propose to give their third annual ball at Congress Hall, New Year's Eve, Dec. 31st. We learn that the committee who have the matter in charge intend to make this ball first class in every respect, and any lady may feel assured that no objectionable persons will be admitted. Tickets may be obtained at H. Buzzell & Son's, or of any of the members of the company.

An editorial in the last Portsmouth Journal (the Journal has but one editor, you know,) closes with the following: "We lay down the pen until another year." A friend at our elbow, who is a subscriber to the Journal, wants us to suggest that if the editor of that paper should lay down the pen for a year, it would be better for the paper. Our friend ought to know, as he has taken the Journal seven years or more, and paid for it.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Chokings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.:

I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Rennikers, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would generally sit up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, choking and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,
No. 17 Manchester Corporation.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27, 1873.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother states is true.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and obstinate. It purifies blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, Nervous Debility. With this departure, health returns.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

MAMMOTH WHITE ASH COAL,
FINE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of improper preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

and other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Carload or at retail from our wharf.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, so easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out and expelling secretions, and leaving nothing for diseases to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable rates. PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, lightsome, graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each successive issue has been advertised as being for our friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other periodicals may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel engraving" is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, as a rule, procure a gem, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in New White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the loneliness of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will hereafter be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

With the co-operation of so large a corps of practical men, this Journal is intended to possess exceptional value as the chosen Medium of Intercommunication among all classes interested in the Production of Wealth of the land—those who Cultivate and those who Consume—the Buyer and Shipper, as well as the first Owner of the crops—Breeders of Improved Animals and their Customers—Manufacturers of Improved Machinery and those who purchase and employ it—Nurserymen and Fruit Raisers—and, especially, to supply fuller and better data as to the progress, prospects and returns of each. The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, which is the prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the original Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in superiority and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. Let the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all doubt, as shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

TWO CHILDREN.

[N. Y. Graphic.]

Pretty blue-eyed baby Nellie,
Child of wealth and love and joy,
Shared her box of Christmas candies
With a tattered beggar-boy.

"Wats oo name? My name is Nellie.
Wes oo mama? Don't oo know
Dis is Kismass? Se soud dess oo,
Den oo tum and be my beau."

"Jack they call me—that's the people;
I've no home—no clothes but these;
Mother's dead, and father—don't know,
S'pose he's drowned in the seas.

When I was a child, like you,
Father went across the sea,
And his ship was wrecked, they say,

"Oh, dat's too bad! Tum to mamma.
Se will dess oo nice and clean;
Oo sal be my little bazzer,
Taus I dot none—ain't it mean?"

But the world had taught the beggar
That a mother seldom smiled
On a ragged, starving outcast,
Though presented by her child.

So he bid "good-night" to baby,
Wandered back to cold and snow;
But ere Nellie woke from dreamland,
Death had rescued Jack from woe.

CHARLES WILLIAM FOSTER.

EPISCOPACY vs. PURITANISM.

The third sketch of Rev. Mr. DeNormandie's series on the history of the South (now Unitarian) Parish, of which he is pastor, commences at the time of the building of the first chapel, prior to 1640, and extends to the time of building the first South Meetinghouse, in 1657-58. The first discourse treated of the first settlers on the Piscataqua at Odierne's Point, and their character; the second brought their religious history and traditions down to the building of the first chapel, about 1638, in Portsmouth.

Richard Gibson, the first permanently-settled minister of Portsmouth—then Strawberrie Banke—had assumed the duties of the parish prior to May 26, 1640. The tradition is that he had preached in the chapel in August, 1638, but the exact date of his settlement can now never be determined. It is more than probable that all these earlier settlements received the ministrations of preaching by clergymen passing from one to the other, and abiding temporarily, or that the larger ones, furnished with a permanent ministry, granted an occasional leave of absence for their pastors to preach at the smaller ones. And inasmuch as all the clergymen from England must at that time have been in holy orders—as the movement of Puritanism reached over but a few years—it could hardly have been a difficult thing for the colony at the Piscataqua to obtain the services of clergymen not only familiar with Common Prayer, as all were, but willing to read it; or a clergyman was sent for to perform a funeral, marriage or christening service.

We find the name of Gibson as early as 1636 on the records of the courts of Maine, as the settled minister of a colony near the Saco River, at the head of which was one Trelawney. From an item of a later date, that he had "corn growing at Saco," it is probable that he had settled according to the English custom of paying tithes, or a tenth of the products of the soil. His ministry appears not to have been one of perfect peace at either settlement, for we find in the Maine records, that Richard Gibson, minister, and his wife Mary, complain against a man for slandering her and calling him a base priest; and Gibson says that he is much disparaged thereby in his ministry; so that the Episcopal settlements here and along the coast of Maine were not without some elements of Puritanism, as on the other hand, in the Bay Colony, there constantly came to the surface some elements of Episcopacy or Popery.

Mr. Gibson appears, between 1638 and '42, at the Saco settlement and the Shoals, as well as Strawberry Bank. In 1642 he was summoned to appear before the General Court of Massachusetts, for the crime of marrying and baptizing at the Isles of Shoals, because the islands were found to be within the jurisdiction of Massachusetts. The account in Winthrop runs thus:

At this General Court appeared one Richard Gibson, a scholar, sent some three or four years since to Richman's Island to be a minister to a fishing plantation there, belonging to one Mr. Trelawney of Plimouth, in England. He removed from thence to Pascataquack, and this year was entertained by the fishermen of the Isles of Shoals to preach to them. He being stoutly addicted to the hierarchy and discipline of England, did exercise a ministerial function in the same way, and did marry and baptize at the Isle of Shoals, which was soon found out to be in our jurisdiction.

No union of Church and State under papal jurisdiction, has even been more complete, than under the sway of Puritanism; no ecclesiastical laws in all history more strict, than those by which they compelled obedience to their doctrines and subjection to their clergy. It is difficult to obtain any correct estimates of the character of the clergymen of that day, because they are colored by sectarian animosities; but if we turn to the records of their doings, there is abundant reason to congratulate ourselves upon a marked improvement in ministerial morals at least. This is partly to be accounted for in the nature of new settlements. The persons who are the most able, most successful, most influential, are not the ones most likely to join the distant colonies. Those whose lives or ability are most questionable, go at once. There is in every old community a large number ready to engage in any enterprise, not only because of restlessness, but generally because of unfitness to succeed anywhere.

So some of the early ministers of our neighboring churches, it not noted for weakness, were not examples in the Christian virtues they probably taught, and were expected to set forth in their lives. Burdett of Dover, Batchelder of Hampton, Knowles of Dover—contemporaneous with Gibbons of Strawberry Bank—left anything but worthy memories. There was at Dover—which seems to have had an undue proportion of these clergymen of questionable morality—one Larkham, who had serious trouble with another there by the name of Knollys. Larkham used the Episcopal service at funerals. Both were charged with immoralities, although both are, nevertheless, spoken of as men of great piety in their latter days. Their quarrel at Dover became so violent that the Piscataqua settlement was called upon to interfere; and Governor Williams sent an armed force—"more readily," one account reads, "because the authorities of Portsmouth sympathized with him (Larkham) in his zeal for the national church"—which shows that at Dover, also, was this element of Episcopacy.

While Larkham was settled at Dover, Gibson wrote to him in regard to the jurisdiction of the Puritans over the Piscataqua Colony, denying the right of Massachusetts, and encouraging the society at Dover to join in the opposition. For this, Gibson was arrested by the Bay Colony, and summoned before the court at Boston, for "scandalizing the Government there and denying their title." No greater violation of justice could possibly be incurred; but no religious body has ever yet been witness to any remarkable sense of justice toward any other sect. It is something which, in their zeal for the glory of God, they utterly neglect,—for the question of jurisdiction was the very question which was then greatly agitating the settlements at the Piscataqua; and to summon a person, the subject of another Government, to answer for an offence beyond their limits, must only have aggravated the animosities already bitter and pungent.

The Bay Colony was, however, the lion in the contest, and Gibson answered the demand of the marshal, and appeared before the Court of Massachusetts in 1642. Either because the Court recognized the fact that it had no authority in the case, or because Gibson expressed his determination of leaving the country, made a full acknowledgment of all he was charged with,—doubtless without thinking himself guilty,—and submitted himself to the Court—he was dismissed without fine or imprisonment, and soon after returned to England. And it has been suggested to me as not improbable that we find his name afterwards in the court records of that country.

Gibson appears to have been far above his contemporary ministers in the neighboring settlements, for the persecuting of the Puritans could lay nothing to his charge but that he was strictly attached to the Established Church, which they give him praise for scholarly ability and culture. One says he was a learned and decided Episcopalian; Winthrop says he was a scholar, and again he is spoken of as accomplished and scholarly.

Thus ended the first regular ministry at Strawberry Bank. Gibson officiated here as early as August 4, 1638, and probably preached occasionally in the chapel; was chosen parson in 1639, and left in 1642. His ministry differs from that of his successors, until the time of Moodey, inasmuch as I was a regular settlement of a regularly ordained clergyman, with all the appointments of worship according to the Church of England. No other fact in history is more easily substantiated by themost abundant testimony, direct and indirect; and the manner in which this has been constantly ignored does little credit either to the completeness of investigation or the desire for the truth of those who have written upon the subject. Nor is there the slightest foundation for the sentimental expression that the bride of Moodey was perhaps the first minister's wife that Portsmouth had seen, when it is clearly stated of Gibson that "his wife's name was Mary, who partook with him in the trials of his precarious and shifting ministrations."

Great confusion has also been introduced into all these quasi-historical accounts by using the word "church" on one page to denote the organized body of communicants, and on another to denote the building in which worship was held. Now, the antiquity of any church, either the communicants or the place of worship, is not of slightest consequence of itself, as regards any parish; the question of some importance is merely the trueness of helpfulness of its religious life, in which a new may far excel an old. But accuracy in historical statement is of vast consequence, and the carelessness and misrepresentation which are born of inaccuracy and partisanship, introduce great and harmful confusion.

The first church of Portsmouth—meaning thereby the place of worship, and doubtless as well a body of communicants, however small—was that of which Richard Gibson was parson; with the parsonage and glebe land of which we shall immediately speak. The second church of Portsmouth (being the first according to the worship of the Puritans)—meaning thereby only the body of communicants—was organized in the Old South Meeting-House in 1671; but the church as a building was not then the South Church, but simply the one church of Portsmouth, while the old and new parishes of Portsmouth afterward known as the South and North, and the parish at Newcastle (parish being a more inclusive word than church) have for a long time one history, each running back into the one parish and church of the town, of which three the South Parish retained the old place of worship, and embraced the first congregation and first church building, reaching back to 1638. Of the accuracy of these statements there cannot be the least question.

Whenever, in these lectures, I have occasion to use the word "church," it must be understood as meaning the place of worship; unless I distinctly explain it to be the body of communicants; for this is the more familiar use of the word among all congregations at the present time.

In the next sketch I shall trace the relationship of Puritanism and the Established Church in England and New England, and the change of the Piscataqua settlement from Episcopacy to the rule of Puritanism. It remains for us in this lecture to continue the history of the religious matters of the settlement, and the building of the second place of worship, which came to be the first Old South Church of Portsmouth.

In 1791 Dr. Langdon of the North Congregational Church gave a most remarkable interpretation of this grant, which has been followed ever since by those who came into possession of the glebe. He says "they made a grant with a general pious design that the advantages of public religious worship might be enjoyed among them—but they drew it up as they did because they had no forms but such as were accommodated to the Church of England." It is something unknown in ecclesiastical history, for a sect to build a church and settle a pastor, and provide for his maintenance with a general pious purpose—it is always a very particular, pious purpose, according to our own views. But this shows how easy it is for sectarian ardor to throw a veil over the love of justice—a matter of which all ecclesiastical records are full. When Gregory sent the monk Augustin to Briton he at first gave orders to destroy all the pagan temples, but afterward directed that if they were well built it would be better to sprinkle them by holy relics, and convert them into temples of the living God, so that the worshippers might assemble in their accustomed places.

In all ecclesiastical history the procedure is the same. Every denomination is so thoroughly assured of its superior faith that it has no conscientious scruples against appropriating for its defence and illustration the property belonging to worshippers of a lower faith. Property cannot be weighed against faith. The courts of law are crowded with cases which show how easy it is for the most strenuous and devout sectarian to be utterly wanting in any sense of justice to his opponents. The lawsuits about church property are endless and fierce; the instances of diversion from the original intent are abundant. As we go on in our history we shall see the fault in this particular instance—and whatever blame there was it belongs equally to the old and new parishes, the only difference being that, while the new got most of the advantages of the glebe after the division came, the old tried vigorously to keep them.

On the 25th of May, 1640, we find the grant of the glebe land in Portsmouth to the church—being the gift of fifty acres of land "by the inhabitants' common assent and consent toward the furtherance and advancement of the honor and glory of God," in consideration of the fact that divers persons had at their own cost erected a chapel (Episcopal, as we have seen) and a parsonage thereon, and made other improvements. This glebe was in two divisions, thirty-eight acres being at what is now called The Creek, and twelve acres in the centre of the city, on a corner of which now stands the North Church. In this grant, Mr. Gibson was recognized as the first parson, and his successors were to be elected by the parishioners, or a majority of them, forever. It appears from this grant that the whole land, with the buildings thereupon, were set apart for religious purposes, and that no part of it was ever to be converted to any other uses without the unanimous consent of the parishioners. What the true intent of the grant was readily appears from the whole plan of the settlement, which was the honor and glory of God, and his worship according to the ritual of the Established Church of England; and the second provision of the grant, that a majority might choose the pastor, could never so destroy the intent of the first provision as to anticipate the selection of one of any other faith. Yet in a few years the Puritan influence controlled and possessed the church, and the glebe lands were sold or leased by the Congregational Society, with but meagre results.

The Spanish Mission.

The appointment of Caleb Cushing as Minister to Spain is creditable to President Grant's sagacity. Were all his selections as fortunate, but little criticism would be deserved, although the opposition press would still misjudge and malign him. The Spanish mission, now to be filled by a first-class diplomat, may prove the most important post of duty and honor in the coming decade. Our relations with Spain are more delicate than with any other power, and to prevent hostilities or to be prepared in case of war to avail ourselves of the best results that diplomacy can accomplish, should be our aim. The Cuban question, fraught with so much of possibility, is as unsettled as it was before the Virginius affair. Though quiescent now, a few months, a few weeks even, may bring it again into national discussion, and events precipitate affairs that will lead our people to consider forbearance a trygone virtue.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.

The action of Congress before the adjournment for the holidays, seems anything but satisfactory to the country. The repeal of the Bankrupt law, is more in the interest of collecting lawyers, and failed and failing corporations than of a business people overtaken by financial disaster. It needed amendment in its involuntary provisions but there is no general desire for its repeal aside from collecting lawyers and crippled corporations. The salary bill as it passed the House was still more unsatisfactory. It left all salaries as they had been increased, except that of members of Congress, which are to be put at $6000 after the bill becomes a loan, with actual traveling expenses in addition. The necessity for increased salaries is not to be seen since the price of every article of living has declined at least twenty per cent. on an average since salaries were raised to $5000 in 1866. On the test vote, ordering the main question to be put, it was a matter of surprise to see New Hampshire divided and Small of the first District voting with the salary grabbers, and Pike of the second District against them. This was a close vote as well as a test vote, standing 131 for ordering the main question and 130 against it. A solid vote from New Hampshire would have defeated it and given Joe Hawley the floor to move a recommitment with instructions to bring in a new bill. The fate of the Salary bill and the Bankrupt bill in the Senate are quite uncertain.

Christmas, of which great account is made hereabouts, passed off much as usual, only with greatly increased drunkenness. What else can be expected where there is a rum license to every twenty families. The snapping-crackers, trumpets and firing of guns, all day and night, is much like an old fashioned fourth of July.

The contingent fund account of the Departments are now studied as never before. The effort to defeat Williams' confirmation as Chief Justice, has uncovered a carriage purchase for the use of his wife out of the contingent fund, which was brought to public attention and the old practice of pickings and perquisites to eke out cabinet salaries, some of which have been stretched to an extent demanding restriction, and especially since the increase of salary. Those contingent expenses were very much curtailed in the Treasury Department during Mr. Boutwell's administration, but there is still room for further retrenchment. In this connection I want to say a good word for one department, which has sometimes been harshly assailed. Under the administration of Hamilton Fish the State Department has been managed with marked good sense, produce and economy, and if Mr. Orth, Chairman of Committee of Foreign Relations is able to find a place in all its management to save $100,000 or a tenth part of it, I shall confess to disappointment, if it be within the control of the Secretary. I have no hesitation in saying, that for good judgment in administering his department at home and abroad, and a knowledge of all its details, and a scrupulous, old fashioned sense of propriety and strict economy in all its expenditures, the Secretary of State has had no superior if any equal, in the Cabinet. You hear no rumors of questionable expenses in that quarter.

The papers here don't like what they call the paring down policy. It cuts off too many of their supports, and don't promise a great amount for streets and the like to be spent here or for new buildings. The last session of the last Congress voted about four millions for street and reservation improvements alone. Within two years there has been spent upon streets in this city an amount equal to one hundred dollars for every man, woman and child living within the district limits. What would be thought of such an expenditure for the streets of your city.

We have had several attempts at snowing which melts as it falls, making mud to almost impassable depths when you get off a pavement. EXE.

Old Time Chronicles, No. 100.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

INDIAN RELICS IN RAYMOND.—Chester was settled about 150 years ago. Raymond, originally a part of the town, was settled 120 years ago. Before that time the Indians were in the place much, as is evident from mortars in stone and implements of their construction. The writer of this has from time to time seen several, and lately has been favored with an examination of quite a collection possessed by Capt. David Parker of the Riverside hotel in the upper part of the village. They are found in town and mostly in the vicinity of the center and not far from Lamprey River. Near its banks the red men evidently had temporary habitations, fished in the stream, and perhaps planted in small openings.

The main articles are the following: A stone axe. It is about the size of the axe as now used, only thicker. It is wonderful that its shape is so much like the axe as now made. Of course there is no bale for a handle, but a groove cut for a withe to encircle it.

Next we notice two of their war clubs, one about a foot, the other perhaps nearly a foot and a half in length. They are of stone and one readily feels that he would dread a blow from one of them, especially held in the hands of a fierce Indian. Then there are gouges several in number and different in size. One has places cut in the side for the fingers when in use. One is remarkable for the smoothness of its surface. It has a woodlike appearance and possibly was that material, petrified.

There is a stone knife. This has a hard flint like appearance.

There are articles the use of which cannot be determined. They resemble a pea, used on some steelyards, or some squashes, large at one end, and tapering to the other.

There are two articles about the size of a hen's egg, but not so regular in form. A nicely cut hole is cut through lengthwise. It puzzles many to know what these are for. We have no doubt they are whistles, and with them they called each other in the immense woods and dark forests where they roamed and hunted wild animals.

Pope speaks of "The poor Indian with untutored mind." As a race they have done but little for the benefit of the world. In character they were lofty and independent. They were ingenious, as what they left shows. "Necessity is the mother of invention." And the uncultivated savages acted somewhat on the principle of a daring adventurer, "Some things can be done as well as others." Enlightened and civilized, what might they not have done for the good of themselves and others?

Ten thousand dollars is paid to the widow of Col. Geo. H. Pierce, in Dover, as the amount of a life insurance policy held by Mr. Pierce. There are other policies amounting to $25,000.

Mrs. Polly Bickford of North Wakefield claims to be the oldest person in this part of New England. She was 104 years old Dec. 2, 1873, and bids fair to live some years longer.

A son of Daniel Young, of Haverhill, 14 years of age, while sliding down hill on the 19th, had an arm badly broken. His mother, who was convalescing from an attack of pneumonia, was so shocked as to produce a relapse, from which she died in 48 hours.

Won't our considerate Aldermanic Board please put a stop to the barbarous practice of tolling bells at funerals?

The Lake Village Times describes Hon. Hiram R. Roberts, a democratic candidate for Governor, as a "farmer" whose hands "have grown tough and calloused by his agricultural labors as president of the Rollinsford Bank since 1850, or as president of the Salmon Falls Bank since 1852; who toiled and delved for thirteen years as a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and then, not disheartened, took upon his shoulders for three years more the burdens of Judge of Probate." Enough!

Readables.

The Virginius prisoners have arrived at New York on the Juniata. All reports relative to the treatment at the hands of the Spaniards are that it was uniformly harsh and in some cases barbarous. The crew of the Tornado robbed the prisoners of everything. The prisoners were confined in a small room in Santiago, 50 by 15 feet. The provisions were rice and water.

The Gloucester fishery season of 1873 has been one of the most disastrous everknown. There have been 174 lives lost, and 31 vessels worth, $118,700 and insured for $100,918. The Gloucester churches united in a service in commemoration of the dead.

Our Motion.

Motion is a law of matter. The earth, other planets and other heavenly bodies so far as we know, are in motion, some of them flying very rapidly. We will speak of some that exist, and from our connection with them, of the motion we have.

The earth revolves on its axis once round in 24 hours. Its circumference is 25,000 miles. This is a motion then of more than 1,000 miles an hour. At our latitude, call it 1,000, it not being so rapid here as at the equator. This is about 16 miles a minute.

The next motion to be named, is that of the earth around the sun. This is a rapid motion, and with the earth we fly 64,800 miles an hour, 1,080 a minute and 18 miles each second. While I am repeating these words, "it moves, yes, it moves," we are gone forty miles.

Our next motion is not so rapid, yet it is a grand one. There is evidence that the sun with the earth, the other planets with their moons, is driving forward through space very likely in an orbit around some great center. The evidence of this motion of the Solar system need not be stated, only that in the course of very many years, say ages, the stars in one part of the heavens grow in appearance larger and farther apart as if we are approaching them. In the opposite, they grow dimmer as if we are receding from them.

By this motion we are carried 5 miles per second, 300 a minute, 18,000 an hour, 432,000 a day and one hundred fifty-seven million six hundred and eighty thousand in a year.

This subject is of interest and is a vast one. In one way it shows the wonder of the Creator's work. Some of these motions are so swift that we scarcely know of anything more so, only light, which Cowper speaks of in his poem, "The swift winged arrows of light;" or thought, which Thales of ancient Greece said, was the swiftest thing of all things, as in an instant we could send it off to the most distant place we know of in the universe. J. F.

Stokes Redivivus.

The New York Medico-legal Society has been discussing the effect of pistol shots on the late Fisk, Jr., as administered by Stokes and morphine as administered by the physicians. Dr. Eugene Pauguet read a paper in which he expressed the conviction that Stokes wilfully waylaid Fisk with the intention of murdering him, but that he did not die from the wounds received, but from the effects of narcotics the physicians administered. Dr. Sayre, who attended Fisk, replied that perhaps the only way to settle the question would be to place Stokes at the foot of a flight of stairs, and have some one shoot him exactly where he hit Fisk. Then allow no physician to attend him, and if he recovered it would prove conclusively that the doctors and not he had murdered Fisk; and if he died, vice versa.

Glimpses of Famous People.

[Danbury News.]

What a strange thing is memory! It plays such tricks with us, bringing up detached and absurd reminiscences when more important ones have faded from the mind. Every newspaper glanced at, each magazine glanced into, will recall memories that have lain dormant for years, and a flood of recollections rushes over us, carrying us back further than we care to count! For instance—was a most pleasant friend of our household— earnest, absorbed, determined, a man among men. Yet, of all my many memories of him, comes the evening when, having left his extra sized India rubbers in our hall, we children played they were boats!

MOTLEY, THE HISTORIAN,

I remember as dancing at a child's ball one Xmas eve and I thought him the most splendid looking being I had ever seen; whenever I read the "Dutch Republic" I cannot keep my mind on it, for seeing Mr. Motley and a very minute girl galloping all over the delightful pages.

N. P. WILLIS

I can see now, as he once stood, talking to my father, and saying, "If I had three wishes, as fairy gifts for my children, I would ask for each one of them, Impudence! IMPUDENCE!! IMPUDENCE!!! There is nothing like it for helping one in life." And he lived up to the belief. Of whom I admired and loved, I remember best, being taken shopping with her in Paris, when she requested that a Capuchin friar might be sent to her room without fail at 10 P. M., (she meant to order a hood), and also when she wished to purchase a handsome citizen in place of the candlestick she intended to ask for. In Italy she once asked for a coachman to stir her tea with, instead of a spoon. I heard the famous critic and feuilletonist, expatiate upon the exquisite color of the "Cardinal of the Seas"—he meant a lobster! He had never seen any but a boiled one! What blistering sarcasm would here be vented on any other learned man who had made so ridiculous a mistake! I saw standing in the famous niche in the Tuileries, holding and restraining a mob of 90,000 from murder and rapine, by the immense power of his eloquence, and where for thirty hours he poured forth that resistless volume of wrath, and indignation, and persuasion, and pleading. Yet I remember him best as I last saw him, deeply interested in a spirit-rapping seance, where the deception was patent to all eyes but his! I once met the soldierly, dignified in all the glory of his war toggery. He saluted us with his well-known, finished courtesy, only to step the next moment on a piece of orange peel, and execute a series of plunges wildly forward before he could regain his equilibrium; while he hurried away amidst the yells of some disgusting small boys who shrieked, "Go it! Old Fuss and Feathers!"

JULES JANIN,

Business Notices.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compliance with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, take Dr. Dow's Celebrate Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

A Manual of Health.

The edition for 1874 of the sterling medical annual known as Hostetter's Almanac is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the United States and British America, and indeed in every civilized portion of the Western Hemisphere. This Almanac has been issued regularly at the commencement of every year for about one-fifth of of a century. It combines with the soundest practical advice for the preservation and restoration of health, a large amount of interesting and amusing light reading, and the calendar, astronomical calculations, chronological items, &c., are prepared with great care, and will be found entirely accurate. The issue of Hostetter's Almanac for 1874 will probably be the largest edition of a medical work ever published in any country. The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburg, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

Local Matters.

Sold Again.

It was a cruel thing, but it was handsomely done. Albert R. Hatch, Esq., has been perfectly willing to have the title "Hon." prefixed to his name at any time since he ran for Mayor of Portsmouth in 1863 and received but 435 votes out of 1289 cast, being beaten by Hon. Jonathan Dearborn. After the success of Ex-Gov. Weston in 1871 and his renomination and defeat in 1872, Hatch thought his time had come—but it hadn't. He received a large vote in the democratic convention, but Weston obtained the nomination, with the understanding that the Portsmouth candidate should be put forward at this time.

This arrangement would doubtless have been carried out had not the the democratic leaders scented the possibility of success at the coming election. To achieve it, no such man as Hatch could be nominated. To have the liberal republican support, Weston was their man. To get the votes of the farmers, Judge Roberts was a necessary candidate. But how to get rid of Hatch, whom they had promised to support, was the question. The Manchester people would stand by their promises: "We shall be solid for Hatch." Of course, they would. "And upper Coos, and Grafton, and Cheshire will send down delegations for your Portsmouth man." Yes? Promises must be kept, but Hatch must not be nominated. How defeat him? And then the wily leaders commenced playing a shrewd and bold game.

Saturday night, the caucus in Ward Two was held and much to the surprise of all but the initiated, eight anti-Hatch delegates were chosen to the democratic State convention. They are said to favor the nomination of Hon. Daniel Marcy for Governor. Hatch is slain in the House of his friends and Manchester, and upper Coos, and Grafton, and Cheshire needn't "come down solid" for a man who "cannot carry his own town." We confess that we are disappointed—sadly; the republicans of Portsmouth mourn for once with the beaten candidate. It is the only time they have been in perfect sympathy with him. They wanted him nominated—he could have been so easily beaten.

Kittery Point.

The Christmas festival at the Universalist church at "Foreside" held last Thursday evening, was a complete success, well attended and passed off admirably. Mrs. Roberts, the able and deservedly-popular pastor of the church, is doing good service for the cause of truth, as taught by Him who loved and still and ever loves us. Success to her earnest endeavors to proclaim God's good will to all humanity, and to lead them from darkness to light and the practice of every virtue.

A very tasteful and elaborate display of Christmas trees, profusely covered with useful, ornamental and cheerful things for the young, middle-aged and older ones, with a musical entertainment, declamation &c., were well prepared at the Congregational church at Kittery Point; and though attended and enjoyed by the comparatively few present on Friday evening last, would have had an overflowing audience but for the snow storm of that evening. Consequently very many were much disappointed, but as none could control the weather, nor as it then happened, restrain the eagerness of the infant and other juvenile voters, indiscretely encouraged thereto by a few of older growth, to secure their sugar plums and other presents, without regard to wind or weather, or the expectations of many others, voted to "go it," and did Nothing like experience. Well, they've learned something, and it is hoped will improve by age, and do better next time. The old parish is now in a prosperous condition; and with its live, intelligent and popular pastor, long may it wave, and much good may it do.

Last week Mrs. Lucy Mills fell on the ice and broke her right leg; very unfortunate, dependent as she is on her daily labor for support.

Last Saturday evening, as Capt. Jere. Gunnison, a cooper at the Navy Yard, was about leaving there in his boat, he fell overboard, and came very near being drowned. When taken from the water he was very much chilled and almost exhausted. The kind care the Captain received at the yard, and is probably still receiving, will, no doubt, soon put him on his taps again.

Friday's and Saturday's snow, from ten to twelve inches, dry and drifty.

Rye.

At the republican caucus on Saturday evening, the following persons were chosen delegates to the various conventions:

State—Otis D. Marden, John D. Marston.
Councillor—Charles W. Jenness, George A. Lougee.
Senatorial—Lemuel J. Bunker, John O. Foss.
County—Morris Perkins, Uri H. Jenness.

The following persons were elected officers of the club, for the ensuing year:

President—Horace Sawyer; Vice President—Jenness Marden; Secretary—Lewis E. Walker; Executive Committee—Thomas W. Rand, Ruel G. Shapley, L. Thomas Sanborn, Supply F. Trefethen.

Mr. J. Disco Jenness had all the fingers of one of his hands badly cut last week by a circular saw. He was fortunate enough to save them, however.

The life-saving station at Straw's Point is nearly finished.

Laconics.

New subcribers for the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE are coming in numerously.

A man named James Dorrity fell from a two-story building in Concord on Saturday, and to the surprise of passers-by was not injured in the slightest degree.

We hope all lovers of the festive dance will bear in mind the Ball of Kearsarge S. F. E. Co., No. 3, to-morrow evening. The members of this company mean to do the thing up in good style.

Irving Moses was arrested on Monday evening on the charge of picking the pocket of George Parker, who states that Moses took his pocket-book and when he found that Parker was following him, took two dollars from it and threw it over a fence, where Parker found it.

A young son of Mr. B. Frank Martin had a narrow escape from injury on Monday afternoon. A horse attached to a baker's cart knocked him down, but having presence of mind he rolled clear of the horse's heels. The runner struck him, but young Martin dodged his head as the runner struck it, making a slight contusion.

An exhibition of Prunty's Automatic Relief Valve was given on Market Square, Monday afternoon, the committee on Fire Department being present. By means of the valve, the stream of water is under the immediate control of the hoseman, thus saving the time usually taken in sending a messenger to the engine to have the stream stopped. By this invention a stream of water may be turned back in an instant. The trial was very successful.

The Treasurer of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals acknowledges the receipt of $245.69 from the Children's Fair held a few weeks since in the Unitarian Chapel. Miss Mabel Storer (of Gov. Goodwin's family) was the originator of this Fair, the success of which was due to her and her young assistants. The amount is quite large considering the inclemency of the weather during the two days of its continuance.

Why He Was There.

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Herald says:

It is stated that the object of the recent visit of ex-Senator Patterson of New Hampshire to Wasnington was to induce the Senate to take his case from the file of the last Congress and act upon it. He still hopes to be vindicated by the Senate although everybody outside the Senate considers that his reputation was ruined by the Credit Mobilier disclosures last winter. It will be recollected that the special committee appointed by the Senate to investigate Patterson's case reported two or three days before the end of the session that he ought to be expelled, but no action was taken on the report, and when Patterson's term expired on the 4th of March he left the Senate with the understanding that the Senate at its extra session should pass upon the report. This it did not do and Patterson went to Europe, whence he recently returned to engage in the futile task of gaining a vindication at this late day. The probability is that he would have been expelled if the question had come to a vote previous to the day when his term of office expired.

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners desiring to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, "Cockings, Stranglings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.: I reside at Manchester N., H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or cough. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the hardest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 53 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, chokings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left, Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,
No. 17 Manchester Corporation.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27, 1873.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother states is true.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membranes and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sassaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most efficacious cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—The sketch of President Peirce is one of the best things in the gossipy book of Maunsell B. Field, lately published. Peirce was taken by surprise by his nomination for the presidency. He had resigned his position as senator and left Washington on account of his intemperate habits, and his wife dreading to have him return to that city. They were in Boston, and driving in Mount Auburn, when the news of his nomination reached them. Mrs. Peirce fainted away. Shortly after the nomination Hawthorne, who had not seen his classmate in several years, called on him at his hotel. Pierce was in his room. Hawthorne, upon entering, wrung his hand, and then, without a word of salutation, abruptly threw himself upon a lounge at the other side of the room. Here he lay for several minutes without speaking, and tangling himself into all sorts of contortions. At last with an expression of sympathy and woe upon his countenance, he gazed upon the general's face and exclaimed: "Frank, I pity you! Indeed I do, from the bottom of my heart."

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
PIKE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced, in every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS ENTERED A CONSIGNMENT by him, will be stamped on pieces provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to prey upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, imparting strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

The BAZAR is edited with a contribution of talent and taste that we seldom find in any journal; and the journal itself is the organ of the general taste of fashion.—Boston Traveller.

The BAZAR commends itself to every member of the household—to the children by droll and pretty pictures, to the young ladies by its fashion-plates in endless variety, to the provident matron by its patterns for the children's clothes, to paterfamilias by its tasteful designs for embroidered slippers and luxurious dressing-gowns. But to a reading matter of the BAZAR is uniformly of great excellence. The paper has acquired a wide popularity by its fireside enjoyment it affords.—N. Y. Evening Post.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Repository of the Choicest and Champion Productions of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary serials. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pic ures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception, entirely unprecedented—also totally without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quality of the paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes FOR THE TIMES HE COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is an admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding, as a more cultivated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cut of THE ALDINE possesses all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest, thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by four artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos, from original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, "Mt. Washington from the Glen," the other gives a View in The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject the publishers will send "Thoughts of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian exile whose speaking eyes betray the longings of his heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, varnished, and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; each subscription must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

The Singer Still Triumphant!
At the Vienna Exhibition, the SINGER received the Medal of Merit, the Medal of Progress, and three other Medals for superiority of productions. These are the highest Sewing Machine Awards at Vienna. The SINGER received all the medals awarded to either of the competing machines, and two medals more than any other obtained. Then, in the name of Truth, what is it that prompts people to claim recommendations for the Diploma of Honor? The fact is, no Diploma of Honor has been given to any Sewing Machine Company.
But immeasurably more valuable is The World's Award as shown by sales—proved by sworn returns to the owners of the principal Sewing Machine Patents—which last year amounted to TWO HUNDRED AND NINETEEN THOUSAND, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-EIGHT (219,758) machines, nine out of ten of them being for Family Use. This is over 45,000 more Sewing Machines than were sold by any other company during the same period, and over One Quarter of all the machines sold in 1872. These enormous sales are owing to the long-tested merits of the Singer Machines, which meet the wants of the public in reliability and simplicity of construction, and capability for great variety and excellence of work. That the users of Sewing Machines find these desirable qualities in the Singer beyond all others, is shown by the sales above given, aside from the awards of International Juries, either at home or abroad.

EPISCOPACY vs. PURITANISM.

[Concluded.]

In 1641 we had the four separate republics of Portsmouth, Kittery, Dover and Exeter, each with independent jurisdiction; but there had been all the time a desire on the part of the Bay Colony to assume the control of these, and on the part of some, by reason of the power of Massachusetts, a desire to be placed under her rule. It was the part of wisdom, certainly, to ask the protection of Massachusetts; and, after long discussions, consultations and treaties, on the 14th of April, 1641, the settlement of Strawberry Bank came under the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, on condition of enjoying the same liberties with her, and have a court of justice. Williams, Warnerton and Gibbons were appointed magistrates; and a remarkable concession was made by which the people of Strawberry Bank were allowed to vote in town affairs, and their deputies to sit in General Court, although they were not church members, which was a requirement of the Massachusetts law, and dispensed with here out of forbearance to the Episcopal element. One of the historians says, "Could the Bay authorities have had the submission of Piscataqua without such liberty, they would undoubtedly have preferred it rather than granted this indulgence, which tended to weaken its opposite and confirmed rule for their previous jurisdiction."

Being without a minister after the departure of Gibson, we find this item in the Massachusetts Records soon after the union: "It was ordered that the elders should be desired to take the care of the inhabitants of Strawberry Bank into consideration, and afford them help for providing a minister for them;" the result of which was an invitation to Mr. James Parker of Weymouth to be the minister for the lower part of Pascataquack.

He had been a deputy in the Massachusetts courts, and Winthrop says was a "godly man and a scanlar." One Thomas Dudley of Massachusetts, whose son was afterwards a clergyman here (?), writes to a son-in-law of his desiring him to embrace the ministry, saying "he had been stirred up to think of it by hearing of Mr. Parker's calling to preach at Pascataway, whose abilities and piety (for aught I know) are not superior to yours."

Parker came for the winter of 1642, and preached in the chapel, although he was not an ordained minister. Winthrop says, "It pleased God to give great success to his labors, so as above forty, whereof the most had been very profane, and some of them professed enemies of the way of our churches, wrote to the magistrates and elders acknowledging the sinful course they had lived in and bewailing the same, and earnestly desiring that Mr. Parker might be settled amongst them. Most of them fell back again in time, embracing this present world."

The next spring Parker went with a power of attorney signed by Williams and Warnerton, to the General Court, as deputy from this settlement, "because," the paper reads, "in the state we now stand we know not whether any of us may be admitted as a deputy in the General Court"—revealing the Episcopal bearing of the colony here. Parker remained as teacher and deputy about three years, for he writes from here to Winthrop as late as 1645. We once more hear of him at the Barbadoes, from whence he writes, "How oft have I thought in my hearte O, howe happie are New England people!" While officiating at the chapel he evidently did not use the Episcopal service; but how so great a change could be consented to without any outbreak we shall try to explain in our next lecture.

After Parker's departure, the only reason we have for supposing that services were regularly or generally held in the chapel, are the entries in the town records respecting the minister's wages. The next notice is of one Mr. James Brown,—like Parker, an unordained or lay preacher. The record in the town book is, "At a publique meeting held the 11th day of April, 1655, the inhabitants do generally acknowledge that they are willing that Mr. Brown should continue their minister, as he hath been, if he be so pleased." And again, "It is ordered that Mr. Brown, our minister, is to give an account of what is his due from the inhabitants before this day." An invitation to settle, and a regard for one's compensation, which would hardly be thought at the present day to show any great interest; but all which does reveal the reason for a want of interest, in the divided views of the colony. The next year we find that Henry Sherburne provided to entertain the minister, Mr. Brown, and this is all the knowledge we have of him. In 1656 Sherburne was authorized by the town to go in search of an "able and sufficient minister," and in the same year it was voted in town meeting to send to Mr. Samuel Dudley to give us a visit to treat with us to be our minister;" and later in the same year, it was agreed to give him forescore pounds the year, and that he should come the next spring. This was the son of Governor Dudley of Massachusetts. He came in the spring, but remained only a short time and went to Exeter. Then Mr. Sherburne—who was as prominent in ecclesiastical as in civil affairs, and as efficient in the Puritan as in the Episcopal Church, was sent in 1657 to give a call to a Mr. Worcester—but without success. For a period of about fifteen years, the parish at Strawberry Bank was in diligent but unsuccessful search for a permanent minister. Something, I doubt not, is to be attributed to the fact that the parish must have all the time had several prominent Churchmen, while all the ministers who came followed the forms and worship and views of the Puritans; so that, even if there was no open disaffection, there could hardly be that unity of sentiment and earnestness of cooperation which give zeal in the search or success to the work of a minister.

In May 1653, we find this petition "to the Generalle Courte assembled att Boston; Whereas, the name of this plantation att present beinge Straberry banke, accidentally so called by reason of a banke where strawberries was found in this place, now your petitioners' humble desire is to have it called Portsmouth, being a name most suitable for this place, it being the river's mouth, and a good harbor as any in this land." So that it was in this year 1653, that our name of Portsmouth was first authoritatively used.

Soon after the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, we find a petition from the settlers of Bloody Point, to be allowed to be regarded as within the township of Dover. These settlers write the petition with an overawing sense of the dignity of the Government. It is directed to the right-worshipful governor and the worshipful assistants of Massachusetts; and after praying to be ordered to unite with Dover instead of Strawberry Bank, the petition goes on to say, "You petitioners further show unto your good worships, that Strawberry Bank lyeth four miles from them or thereabouts, whereby they are all debarred from hearing the word, by reason of the tides falling out that we cannot goe but once a fortnight, and then can stay but part of the day, which will rather be a day of toyle and labour than rest unto the Lord and yet must be forced to pay for the maintenance of their minister." This petition, although without date, and yet perhaps not far from 1644, is of some importance as showing that with or without a permanent ministry, there were regular services in the chapel at Strawberry Bank.

Sometime before 1646 there came from Wales three brothers, Robert, Richard and John Cutt, who were destined to have an important influence in all the affairs of the colony. Major Cutt, a descendant, when at the siege of Louisbourg, met an English officer by the name of Cutts, and upon becoming acquainted they found they had sprung from the same family; so thereafter the major added an a to his name, as did all the descendants of the family in Portsmouth. Robert settled at Great Island; Richard settled first at the Shoals, and seems to have owned about all of Star Island in its day of greatest prosperity. After making his wealth by the fisheries at the Shoals, he removed to Portsmouth, and became a leading and respectable merchant at the Bank, with vessels, mills and warehouses on the "greate river" Piscataqua. He had two daughters, who married; one Major Vaughan and one Captain Daniel, from whom our two streets Vaughan and Daniel were named.

John settled at Strawberry Bank, where he became a leading merchant of great probity and esteem, and president of the first council of New Hampshire. At the time of his prosperity the town was built principally about the Point of Graves, while Cutt had come into possession of the Great House, nobody knows how. Richard and John were inclined to take the side of the Puritans; Robert was a strong Episcopalian and royalist.

On the 27th of August, 1657, these two brothers, John and Richard Cutt, with Pendleton, Seavey and Sherburne, were commissioned by the town to build a new meeting-house. The change from Episcopacy to Puritanism is shown by the use of meeting-house instead of chapel, while the former sway of Episcopacy is marked by the use of church wardens, even at the present day, in the various parishes of Portsmouth—a term which the Puritans would never have consented to be used, unknown in Massachusetts, and retained here only out of a necessary concession to the leading members of the First Church and Congregation of Pleasant street. The colony had greatly increased, so that the first chapel was no longer sufficient for the worshippers, and the first buildings, rudely and hastily built of unseasoned timbers, were very unequal in duration to those substantial houses now being erected, to remain well preserved to our own day.

The settlement of Portsmouth was so widely scattered, and embraced such a great reach of territory, that it is not surprising there was, even at this early date, some difference of opinion as to where the new meetinghouse should be located. In the records of the General Court of Massachusetts for May, 1657, we find "in answer to the petition of several inhabitants of Portsmouth, it is ordered in answer to this petition for the settling of a minister, as also meetinghouse at Portsmouth, and for prevention of further inconvenences, the same, that the petitioners nominate and choose one man, the rest of the inhabitants another, and the County Court at Dover a third, who are hereby authorized to goe on the place and to heare what on both sides shall be alledged in the premises, and determine the same as they shall judge best conducive to the peace and welfare of the town."

Corresponding to this, we find in the Registry of deeds of Rockingham County, under date of Julie 9, 1657, the following: "Wee whose names are written, deputed to consulte and determine the difference between the inhabitants of Portsmouth concerning the placing of their meetinghouse, upon the arguments alleged on either side, doe judge and above conclude, all reasons weighed, that it is upon all respects considered the neatest and most commodious place to erect the meetinghouse, is the little hill adjoining to Goodman Webster's poynt." Signed, Daniel Denison, Samuel Dudley, Hatevil Nutter. The tradition has it, I believe, that Goodman Webster kept a place of entertainment, and in that day the location of the meeting house near by would not be without its convenience, and inasmuch as very trifling incidents, even the whim of a leading parishioner, sometimes determine the location of a church, the site of the Second Church of Portsmouth might have been determined, if not by the nearness of the inn, at least by the influence of the innkeeper.

Doubtless the importance of Newcastle and of the travel by that road, had something to do with determining the situation. At all events, the new meetinghouse, the second place of worship in Portsmouth, was built on that "little hill" just below the South Mill Bridge—"on the crotch of the roads," as an old record hath it, "leading to the Pound and Frame Point"—or what is now South and Newcastle streets; while the old chapel was converted into a house for the minister. So that all the worshippers of the old went down to the new church; it was the one church for the town—the first Old South Church. So you see the historical accuracy—as this took in all worshippers of the place, all who had gathered in the first chapel—of beginning our record in 1638. It had been a very different matter, if by any dissension, a part of the congregation had remained in the first chapel, and a part removed to their new meetinghouse. Of this new church we have a description minute enough to reerect the vanished structure; and to this we may see the inhabitants of the wide-extended town gathering, without any too tender regard for distances or for storms, from Rye, from Newcastle, from Greenland, from Newington, to hear the Word and tell the news. We have even the names of the worshippers; many of which are familiar and respected to the present day.

We are compelled to recognize them, and it is the Good Samaritan's duty to try and cure them. HELMBOLD'S BUCHU stands unrivalled for all such diseases. Get the genuine, which has the proprietor's private proprietary stamp. Beware of counterfeits. For sale by all druggists.

The great PILE remedy, ANAKESIS, the discovery of Dr. Sibbald, is entitled to be called the wonder of the age. 20,000 grateful sufferers bless the only infallible remedy for PILES ever introduced. Only those who have used lotions, ointments and internal remedies in vain, will understand the grateful feeling of instant relief from pain, and blissful hope of certain cure for the terrible disease, that ANAKESIS assures. It is used by Doctors of all schools. —Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Depot, 46 Walker st., New York.

The United States Dispensatory, standard and most excellent authority, says: "Pills are much better preserved in glass bottles than in the common wood or pasteboard boxes, and should always be dispensed in glass by the apothecary." If you would use medicine superior, not only in being preserved fresh and perfect by compactness with this very important rule, but also in being composed of choice, concentrated and chemically refined vegetable medicinal principles, instead of crude, bulky, cheap drugs, that constitute the huge pills put up in cheap wood or paper boxes, then take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or Concentrated Root and Herbal Juice, Anti-Bilious Granules, 25 cents a vial, by druggists.

A Manual of Health.

The edition for 1874 of the sterling medical annual known as Hostetter's Almanac is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the United States and British America, and indeed in every civilized portion of the Western Hemisphere. This Almanac has been issued regularly at the commencement of every year for about one-fifth of a century. It combines with the soundest practical advice for the preservation and restoration of health, a large amount of interesting and amusing light reading, and the calendar, astronomical calculations, chronological items, &c., are prepared with great care, and will be found entirely accurate. The issue of Hostetter's Almanac for 1874 will probably be the largest edition of a medical work ever published in any country. The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburg, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

Old Probabilities. Our learned friend, who sits at Washington, and receives, from the signal stations of a continent, reports on the vicissitudes of the weather, sorts, compares and infers from them the daily bulletins which everybody reads, might reasonably add, in view of our late sudden changes, "Colds, Coughs and affections of the throat and lungs will prevail in the East and North. Warning signals continue in the West and South." In view of the truth of these probabilities, we commend to all sufferers that excellent and potent specific, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It has, in countless instances, saved life, and has, within the knowledge of every one, alleviated most alarming symptoms and effected cures almost surpassing belief. So excellent is it that the medical faculty largely use it in their practice. In cases of seated consumption, it prolongs life and softens the stay of the afflicted sufferer. About these days it is well to have it in the house. By its timely use, serious disease may be checked and turned aside.—Nashua (Iowa) Post.

Local Matters.

Rye.

Among other amusements for Christmas day was the unusual one of a Town meeting, it having been called by the Selectmen to see what measures the town would adopt for "raising the wind" for the balance due on the new Town Hall. The authorities hold several thousand dollars' worth of State bonds, and it was proposed to sell enough of them to cancel the committee's bills to prevent extra direct taxation. After considerable discussion it was finally voted "to leave it to the Selectmen" to decide, which is a convenient way that all towns have of "shirking" whatever responsibilities they do not care to assume. After the heavy business of the meeting had been transacted there was considerable good-natured badinage between several gentlemen who possess the "gift of gab" and who are generally disposed to exercise it.

The second lecture of the School course is to be given on Saturday evening, Jan. 31., by Rev. A. C. Hardy. Subject:—"Crises."

The new life-saving station is completed, and ready to receive the boats.

The Christmas festival at the Christian church on Christmas eve was a success in every respect. The house was crowded, the singing and recitations very good, the presents numerous, and everybody happy.

ATLANTIC.

Laconics.

A four year old daughter of Michael Gregg, living on Cornwall street, was badly scalded by falling into a tub of boiling water, last Saturday, the skin peeling off her body.

A watch-meeting will be held in the Methodist Church, this (Wednesday) evening, commencing at 8 P. M. and continuing till 12 o'clock. Rev. Messrs. Mason of Kittery and Martyn of the North Church will assist the pastor.

The coroner's jury at Kennebunk has rendered a verdict which accounts for the accident and loss of life, viz., the incompetency and negligence of Mr. Wing, the despatcher, the gross error of judgment of White, the Kennebunk operator, and the culpable recklessness of Pettee the conductor, and Morrison, the engineer of the down train.

We are told that the item in Monday's CHRONICLE did injustice to some of the little ladies who worked so hard for the Childrens' Fair in behalf of the S. P. C. A., and that the credit of the movement belongs jointly to Misses Helen Kimball, Mabel Storer, Julia Ball, Alice Thompson, Edith Thacher and Mary Stewart; the little folks being named according to their age, the oldest numbering thirteen years, the youngest eight. Old children like sometimes to have their name in print; why not the younger ones?

The Eastern Railroad, which now effects a junction with the Portland and Ogdensburg at North Conway, has agreed to indorse a traffic guarantee upon the bonds of the latter road, and such arrangements have been made as will insure the immediate construction of the remainder of the road. For local business each company will act independently of the other. Work on the unfinished portion, both in Vermont and New Hampshire, is now being pushed forward, over 400 men being employed at this time.

The members of Kearsarge Steamer No. 3 are to give their third annual Ball this evening, and we predict for them a good attendance, as this company has established a good reputation in this direction, nothing ever taking place at any one of their entertainments that would offend the most delicate taste. We are assured by them that on this occasion, none but those known as respectable gentlemen and ladies will be admitted either to the floor or gallery, so that the public need have no fears in regard to those unseemly exhibitions of manners that have characterized some gathering of this sort, and cast a stigma upon the originators. Tickets may be obtained of H. B. Buzzell & Son, Exchange buildings.

—The editor of the Louisiana, Mo., Press, in relating what he knows about farming, touches up the hog question in this style: "To make Berkshire pigs out of your hazel splitters, select a cool day, stand them on their hams, tied to a sapling, and drive their noses back into their shoulders, leaving about an inch protruding. If you look at the agricultural papers, you will see that all blooded hogs are fixed that way. If you have any whose noses are longer than the rest of the body, better sell them to an artesian well company for drills, as you cannot drive the nose back without telescoping the whole pig. When you cut up hogs, leave the ham square, leave some hair, too, salt everlastingly, and they will be worth several cents less per pound than when trimmed and cured so that a Christian can eat them."

—The Danbury News says: "We have received a request from an anxious mother in Brookfield to write some verses about her little daughter, who is very ill. We should like to do it, but we can't write poetry. Besides, we don't see what benefit our poetry would be to her sick girl, unless she thinks the reading of it would induce the patient to look more hopefully upon death."

—A New York wine merchant recently failed, and offered 60 cts. on the dollar to his creditors. Some of them refused to take it, and were going to put him into bankruptcy, but he spent $2500 in getting up a banquet for his creditors, and under the mollifying influences of the champagne they unanimously agreed to settle for fifty cents on the dollar. He saved $200,000 by that reduction, which was a good percentage of an investment of $2500.

—One of the ladies of the Brooklyn Art Reception last week wore a black silk dress, the skirt of which was trimmed with thirty small ruffles!

MUSICAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDWARD DE Q. NORTON, formerly of Boston, late of Chicago, would inform the musical public that in the future orders for tuning, regulating and repairing Pianos and Organs may be left at MONTGOMERY'S MUSIC STORE, Market street. I should be happy to show the musical public that, with all the materials for work, and a thorough practical knowledge, both of music and mechanics, instruments neglected or pronounced by tuners destroy to get large jobs, difficult or costly to be repaired, that they can be scientifically, and with comparatively little cost, made nearly as good as new by the judicious outlay of material and labor. I have duplicates of all parts of the principal makes of instruments, so that if any part is broken or lost, it can be replaced at a small outlay, and be far superior to the jack-knife style of work so often done by irresponsible traveling tuners. I have opened rooms for the special purpose of Repairing, and being a resident tuner, offer advantages which I believe the public will not be slow to appreciate. Orders from out of town attended to with promptness. Old instruments bought and sold, or taken in part pay for new. E. DE Q. NORTON.

As my business requires my whole attention at the store, I am obliged to relinquish tuning, and would recommend my customers to Mr. E. De Q. Norton, a competent and faithful tuner, who will attend promptly to all orders.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by long and extensive use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately, restores the growth, and always surely restores its color when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thin brittle, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair grows with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its action is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

CATARRH!

A Woman Having Catarrh 35 Years, Cured.

And Droppings in Throat, Choking, Strangulings, Pains in the Side, Loins, Headache, Dizziness, and General Weakness, Cured by less than Three Bottles of the

CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY.

TO MESSRS. LITTLEFIELD & CO., Proprietors of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, Manchester, N.H.: I reside at Manchester N. H., and previously resided at Henniker, and am a native of Weare, this State. I have had Catarrh twenty-five years, ever since I was 19 years old; had it bad all the time. It run all that period, and nights it would fill up and drop down in my throat, causing a feeling of choking, so that I would spring up in bed to save myself from strangulation. It affected my head so that I felt confused, and was troubled with severe headache at intervals, for a week at a time. I also had bad pains in shoulders, back and kidneys, from which I suffered immensely. So bad were they, that a year ago last summer I was obliged to lie in bed most of the time for three months. I have tried all kinds of snuff and Catarrh remedies with no particular benefit, and consulted physicians. I had a hacking cough. I began to take the Constitutional Catarrh Remedy last August. I began to grow better before finishing the first bottle. I am now on the third bottle. My Catarrh is cured; my health is restored. I have no pains, aches, or coughs. My whole system is made over new. I know it is this medicine that has rescued me from intense suffering and almost the grave. I am now able to do the easiest work and bear the greatest exposure, and feel that I cannot say too much in favor of the Constitutional Catarrh remedy.

MRS. E. J. FLANDERS.

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 1, 1873.

I am now 55 years old, have had Catarrh ever since I was eighteen years old, and headache all the time; have suffered beyond description with running at the nose, droppings in the throat, choakings and stranglings. Have tried any quantity of Catarrh Remedies, but have found no relief till I tried your Constitutional Catarrh Remedy, six months ago. I found immediate relief.

Catarrh and all its attendant evils have left. Headache, Pains in Loins and Back, Dizziness, Loss of Appetite, and General Weakness. Less than three bottles of Constitutional Catarrh Remedy have cured me. I have not been so well since I can remember as now. I feel as if I could not say too much for the medicine, or thank God too heartily that through its instrumentality I have been restored to health.

MARY M. ABBOTT,
No. 17 Manchester Corporation.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27, 1873.

The above lady is my mother. I am a painter by trade, and a member of the City Council of Manchester. Every word that my mother states is true.

JACOB J. ABBOTT.

Hundreds of cases of a similar nature cured within the last year. Snuffs and Lotions are only temporary relief. The CONSTITUTIONAL CATARRH REMEDY strikes at the root, builds up the constitution, makes it new, and drives away Catarrh and all diseases of the mucous membrane and their attendant pains and aches, pertaining to head, back, shoulders, kidneys, and throat.

Price $1 per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists. A Pamphlet of 32 pages, giving a Treatise on Catarrh, and containing innumerable cases of cures, sent FREE, by addressing the Proprietors,

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the iodides of Potassium and Iron makes the most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very grevious and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system and undermines health and settles into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and various diseases, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protoxide Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and enters a thousand life, simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairs the damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Relief from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and screened to him, will be turned in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

PROSPECTUS FOR 1874—SEVENTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the handsomest Periodical in the world. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature, and a collection of pic ures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding issue will be found as fresh and interesting to friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be more appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—and lately without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume can conclude the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other sale or number of volumes for TEN TIMES ITS COST; AND THEN, THERE ARE THE CHROMOS, BESIDE!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.

The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the art centres of Europe it is admitted fact that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "black and white," is rapidly yielding; a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater facility of production. The wood-cut of THE ALDINE possesses all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the superior to THE ALDINE will, as a rising co-t, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos. The original pictures were painte in oil for the publers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to illustrate "The East" and "The West." One is a view in The White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory.

If any subscriber should indicate a preference for a figure subject, the publishers will send "Twilight of Home," a new and beautiful chromo, 14x 20 inches, representing a little Italian girl, whose speaking eyes betray the loneliness of her heart.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent, mounted, postpaid, and properly rolled by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no premium or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.
